

TRANSIT THREATENED WITH FURTHER DELAY OR CONTROL BY P. R. T.

Bill to Enable City to Force Company's Co-operation Sleeps in House Committee, Despite Taylor's Efforts.

Transit Director Declares Defeat of Measure, Which He Expects, Will Make Through Routing for Frankford "L" Hopeless.

Unless the Judiciary General Committee of the House at Harrisburg promptly reports a bill affecting the transit situation in Philadelphia, which it has been holding since March 23, the proper development of the high-speed transit system here will be seriously threatened and the placed at the mercy of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, so far as a joint fare rate with the proposed lines is concerned.

The bill was drafted by the Department of City Transit as a supplement to the Public Service Commission act, and it provides for through-routing of Frankford elevated trains via the Market street subway and for a joint rate of fare between the surface lines of the P. R. T. Company and the surface lines to be built by the city.

Failure of the committee to act promptly, Director Taylor declared, will make it impossible to secure terminal facilities for the Frankford "L" trains, will prevent the construction of much needed surface lines and will place the city at the mercy of the transit company when joint rates are concerned.

The Director stated that he has made every possible effort to have the bill reported and passed by the House. He expects it will be reported in the near future, but he is not optimistic.

Taylor's statement was made in a statement to the House of Representatives on March 22, 1915, and which was referred to the Committee on Judiciary on March 23, 1915, and is still in the hands of that committee and there is little likelihood of its being enacted by the Legislature at this session.

The city will thus, for the time being, be unable to require the through routing of Frankford trains via the Market street subway and joint rate of fare, unless reasonable terms and conditions are secured as a result of negotiations with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company with relation thereto.

The Department of City Transit has made every effort to secure this much needed legislation at this time without avail.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS HIT BY HAYWOOD FOR FIGHTING INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

I. W. W. Leader Expounds Doctrine to Industrial Commission. WASHINGTON, May 13.—German socialism is discredited in the eyes of the world because it has gone in for war, William D. Haywood, secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World, told the Commission on Industrial Relations today.

"The Industrial Workers of the World are opposed to war," Haywood said. He objected to the use of socialism and "I. W. W.-ism" as interchangeable terms. "The socialists would give the State supreme control; we would abolish the State and give the organized workers control."

Previously he had outlined to the commission a form of revolution by which the organized workers would seize all industry and banish capital overnight. Haywood quoted John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as describing "common labor as an animate machine." When Commissioner Steinbock questioned whether Rockefeller had used this expression, the latter replied: "Ask him when he comes before you next week. That is his viewpoint. We believe the common laborer is a human being."

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman interposed this question: "If you don't believe in war, why do you support the industrialists in labor disputes?" "The greatest violence that could be done to a capitalist is to drain his pocket-book," Haywood replied. "I believe in that kind of violence."

TWO BUILDINGS IN NEW OPERATION COLLAPSE

Three-story Structures Crash to Ground and Another May Fall—Drainage Blamed.

Two structures in an operation of 39 new dwellings nearing completion, between 11th and 12th streets and Dickinson and Tasker streets, collapsed early today. Several hundred occupants of surrounding houses were aroused by the crash, and ran into the street in their night clothing. Another house, at the southeast corner of 13th and Lint streets, is expected to collapse.

The operation is in charge of Margolin & Bloch, real estate dealers. A. J. Marston, who is in charge of the construction of the two dwellings, each of which was three stories, was due to poor drainage. Workmen say the cement was of a poor quality and so was washed out by the rain.

One of the dwellings was at the southeast corner of 12th and Cross streets and the other at the northeast corner of 12th and Lint streets. They fell in such a manner as to block traffic on the two streets and partially in 12th street.

SUNDAY'S DEFENDERS REFUSE TO BE MOVED

Mr. Welch said he did not take the Colonel's claim seriously. "I don't see much in any of it," he said. "And furthermore, who ever said Mr. Keegan was a real Colonel?" He was told that Colonel Keegan organized "Keegan's Brigade" during the Spanish war and was at the head of it.

"I'll find out," he said, and called some one on the telephone. The person replied that he had never heard Mr. Keegan had been commissioned colonel.

"There, you see, Mr. Welch announced, 'I told you so. We'll just tear this thing down piece by piece. There's nothing to it.'"

But Colonel Keegan insists there is. He is firm and more insistent as the days pass, and his ultimatum are allowed to go unanswered.

"In my house," said the Colonel, "there is one broken chair. It is the furniture for my broken furniture. It is the furniture I found when I took possession of my house after 'Billy' Sunday had left it. No; the marble dog is not there. The marble dog is one of the things that was missing."

It developed today that the liniment used by Jack Cardiff for "Billy" Sunday's rubdowns was probably responsible for the stain on the big leather chair that was found with a leg broken off in the room "Billy" Sunday occupied. At least Colonel Keegan believes so.

PATRIOTS MEET IN INDEPENDENCE HALL

Business Meeting of Order in Cradle of Liberty to Be Followed by Banquet Tonight.

Independence Hall witnessed an impressive sight today, when members of the General Court of the Order of the Founders and Patriots of America gathered there for their annual session. They are the guests of the Pennsylvania Society of the order.

The business sitting was held this afternoon and many members were early on the scene to inspect the many relics. Many seemed deeply impressed by the fact that their ancestors had gathered within the historic walls of Independence Hall, determined upon the freedom of the Colonies.

Tonight the annual banquet of the order will be held in the Bellevue-Stratford. The new officers will then be installed. The speakers will be: Colonel William C. Sanger, of New York, governor general of the order; Justice William P. Potter, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania; Rupert Hughes, of New York; Henry Darrach and A. B. Kunkle.

The officers of the Pennsylvania Society, deputy governor, John Edward Scran-ton, chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Charles Wadsworth, Jr., secretary, Samuel Leason Kent; treasurer, Dr. Eugene Larus Vanant; state attorney, Dr. Edward Baldwin Gleason; registrar, William Rutherford Claborn; genealogist, Dr. George Fales Baker; historian, O. MOUNTED POLICEMAN TO YIELD TO MOTORCYCLIST AND AVIATOR

Captain Mills, Formerly of Traffic Squad, Predicts Early Change Which Will Send the Horse Into the Background.

"The picturesque figure of the mounted police, now a familiar sight on the central thoroughfares and along the roads on the outskirts of the city, will be little more than a memory within a few years. He will be replaced by the motorcycle policeman, who, in outlying sections, will be aided by airplane patrolmen."

This prediction was made today by Police Captain William B. Mills, for several years lieutenant of the traffic squad. Captain Mills is regarded as one of the highest authorities in this country on traffic conditions.

The traffic regulations introduced by Director Porter and Superintendent of Police Robinson, at the suggestion of Captain Mills, were almost wholly adopted by the Detroit police after an official made a tour of large cities to determine which city had the best police regulations for automobiles. The semaphore signals and the system of parking automobiles in the center of Broad street were introduced by Captain Mills while he headed the traffic squad, and have since been introduced in other cities, including Paris.

"The tremendous increase of automobiles on the city's principal highways, especially since the advent of the jitneys, indicates that the usefulness of the mounted policeman is rapidly waning," the captain continued. "Although the motorcycle squad is larger than it was a few years ago, it is not large enough to cope with the automobile traffic problem as it is now. A much larger motorcycle force is needed. In New York the mounted police squad was reduced to such a small number that a uniformed horseman is rarely seen off aristocratic 5th avenue. At the same time the motorcycle force was greatly increased."

"The mounted policeman is of great service in case of a riot. His horse is trained to force his way into the crowd while his rider makes good use of his riot stick. The mounted policeman is also useful as a parade escort to accompany the President, as was shown on Monday night. The mounted squad in the rear of the procession on its way to Convention Hall prevented jitneys from rushing ahead of the escort. For the past several years the mounted squad has been urging the drivers to rush past the President's car so they could get a look at him. Had this been permitted the result would have been embarrassing. While the horsemen can regulate the horse-drawn vehicles in the business sections, the motor drivers can best be controlled by the motorcycle policeman. Joyriders going up Broad street at express train speed can easily outdistance the fastest horse, but cannot escape from the pursuing motor cop so easily. The motorcycle cop has also demonstrated his ability to get to a seat of trouble in considerably less time than a mounted policeman. Especially is this true in the outlying sections. Director Porter and Superintendent Robinson have been studying the matter of a motorized police force in Germantown. He patrols the roads in the sparsely populated sections or is kept at the police station to wait for emergency calls. Superintendent Robinson has statistics to show how swiftly the motor cop arrived on the scene of trouble.

"Since devices are being perfected to make aeroplanes safe, I venture to say that the time is not far off when the aviator patrolman will make his debut. From his lofty perch, several hundred feet above ground, he has a constant panorama before him and can easily detect a fire several miles away and can summon help. Law-breakers who are trying to elude the police can find no

Prisoner Sent to "Correction" on Woman's Complaint. Peace at any price is the motto of Mrs. Thomas Warner, of 303 Bonnell street, and to get it she slept standing up in the wardrobe to escape the wrath of her husband. But even this was better than dodging missiles from her spouse.

Cries of murder from the Warner home brought Policeman MacIntee to the scene, and he stopped a domestic battle with his club and took Warner to the Ridge and Midvale avenue station. Mrs. Warner unfolded a long tale of woe, which showed that her husband divided his time between the pawnbroker's shop and the saloon. A visit to the former was essential to a visit to the latter. As a result, the jewelry and household effects greatly diminished and Mrs. Warner began to have fears for the bed and the kitchen range.

Neighbors told Magistrate Morris, who listened to the trouble, that Mrs. Warner's life was spent chiefly in dodging blows from her husband, in which she was not always successful, as shown by numerous bruises and scratches she offered in the way of documentary evidence. "You should not be allowed at large," the Magistrate told the prisoner. "I'd like to keep you in jail indefinitely, but just as a start you can have six months in the House of Correction with a detainer."

Four Men Must Answer for Disturbance at Dobson Mills. Four strikers who took part in the riot at Dobson's Bradford Mills, Stenton avenue, and Godfrey street, Tuesday, were held in jail by Magistrate Penneck in the Germantown police station today before a large crowd of sympathizers.

Joseph J. Morris, 238 Godfrey street, was held in $500 bail for court for assaulting Samuel Raach, 39 North 42d street, a watchman, while the latter was attempting to send in a riot call. Frank Halligan, 629 Beechwood street, and Harry Wickman, 215 Spencer street, were held in $500 bail to keep the peace. For hitting John Piotrowski, 184 Leverage street, a strikebreaker, with a brick, Camille Hagen, 275 Haines street, was held in $500 bail for court. Willis L. Mallison, superintendent of the mills, and his son, George Mallison, testified at the hearing.

ALL-NIGHT COURT WILL SIT AT 8TH DISTRICT

Mayor and Director Porter Select Station at Tenth and Buttonwood Streets.

The 8th police district station, 10th and Buttonwood streets, was designated today as the location for the All-Night Court authorized by a recent Act of Assembly. Mayor Blankenburg and Director Porter, of the Department of Public Safety, made this choice at a conference this morning. The chief reason for choosing the 8th district headquarters in preference to the courtroom in the central station, City Hall, is that the 10th street house has sleeping accommodations suitable for the presiding Magistrate. City Hall has no such provisions at present.

It is understood that the creation of the All-Night Court will not do away with the regular night hearings held in City Hall. However, this point has not been definitely settled. President David Scott, of the Board of Magistrates, said that a meeting of the police judges will be held within a short time to choose the Magistrate to preside at the new court. He added that the 8th District was chosen to obviate any doubt that may arise as to the authority of the Board of Magistrates to choose a judge for City Hall hearings.

The act of Assembly, creating the all-night court calls for hearings between 10 p. m. and sunrise as the cases are brought in. A reason given is that most of the delinquents who are arrested are discharged, and an immediate arraignment would prevent keeping a man in jail over night when there is no legal reason to hold him.

ATLANTIC FLEET WILL NOT CRUISE ALONG SOUTH AMERICA. Navy Department Discredits Rumor as to Plans for Summer. WASHINGTON, May 13.—The report the Atlantic fleet would cruise along the east coast of South America this summer as a substitute for its Pacific cruise, which is to be abandoned, was discredited in Navy Department circles today. The fleet will engage in the usual summer maneuvers in Narragansett Bay and will remain in American waters throughout the season.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels declared today that the passage of the bill through the Panama Canal had been given up. He will reach New York in time to attend the dinner to be given the officers of the Atlantic fleet Saturday night by the City of New York.

FEDERATION OF LABOR ENDORSES SUFFRAGE

Delegates to State Convention, By Vote of 154 to 48, Pledge Support to Women.

HARRISBURG, May 13.—After a bitter fight, led by representatives of unions affiliated with the brewing and distilling interests, the delegates to the convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor today adopted a resolution endorsing woman suffrage. The vote was 154 to 48.

The battle on the floor of the convention was marked by the presence of Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, an anti-suffragist from Trenton, N. J., who, dissatisfied with the hearing given her on the opening day of the convention again attempted to place the anti's case before the delegates. Half a dozen representatives of the unions mainly connected with the liquor interests, fought hard in her behalf, but the chair ruled that only recognized delegates should be granted the privilege of the floor to discuss the suffrage resolution.

In giving this decision, President Maurer explained that both the anti's and the suffragists had an opportunity Tuesday to present their respective cases before the convention, and that further presentations from either Mrs. Oliphant or Mrs. Gertrude Breslau Fuller, who had represented the suffragists, were unnecessary. He was supported in this stand by a majority of the delegates, but was only after a heated discussion led by delegates from Philadelphia that the matter was dismissed and the vote taken on the resolution calling for the Federation to support the suffrage amendment at the polls this year.

Prior to the appearance of Mrs. Oliphant, vigorous arguments in favor of the convention supporting the woman suffrage resolution were presented by "Steve" McDonald, President of the Scranton Central Labor Union, and "Dave" Williams, of Allentown. Both speakers urged the delegates to remember that it was the working woman who needed the ballot and that to renounce her right would mean to be disloyal to the basic principles of organized labor.

JANE ADDAMS DEPLORES TALK OF WAR IN U. S. American Woman in London Has Faith in Wilson. LONDON, May 13. "Whatever might be the wisest thing to do, going to war would be the most fatal," was Miss Jane Addams' comment on the position of the United States with regard to the Lusitania case.

"The action to be taken is a question for the wise men of the nation. I have unlimited faith in President Wilson. He is absolutely safe," Miss Addams proceeded in a calm, but not unemotional, voice. "The war is a horrible thing, but it is necessary. As psychologists state, grief and strain are akin to irritation, and the present outbreak of feeling is only to be expected. At the same time, while I appreciate their feelings and absolute horror of the incident, yet I affirm that war should be the last thing America should think of. It would be to neutralize our powers for good."
