RAWA RUSKA RETAKEN BY TEUTONS; NOW EIGHT MILES FROM LEMBERG

Sweep on Galicia Capital Marks High Tide of Germanic Military Affairs. Victory Means Relief of Pressure by Diversion of Troops to Belgium and Italy.

With the sound of their giant artillery which hammered the Russians out of the Przemysl stronghold a month ago reverbating against the new objective of the Slav base at Lemberg, the crest of the high tide of German military affairs has been mounted.

Full of the Galician capital is momentarily expected by the Kaiser, who has taken the field to direct the final drive on the Slavs in Galicia.

Rawa Ruska, scene of a Muscovite triumph in the advance on Lemberg last August, has been taken by Mackensen, whose left wing has thus cut the foe's line of communication on the northwest. Zolkief, eight miles from Lemberg is in German hands, Berlin reports. Shells are bursting over the westernmost suburb of Lemberg and a fierce assault is being hurled at the center of the city. From the southwest another Teuton column is striking at the target. Russians are falling back on their base, from which wounded and munitions are being rushed to safety.

Expulsion of the Muscovites from their last foothold on Austrian territory will enable the Teutonic allies to entrench strongly along the South Poland border, thus keeping Galicia clear of invasion, protecting Hungary from future trans-Carpathian forays, and affording a tenable base for a summer sweeping movement northward on Warsaw. Above all, successful consummation of the Galician campaign will free vast forces of Germans for service on the Franco-Belgian front and Austrians for duty on the Italian frontier. Non-success of the Allies in the Dardanelles has already relieved Germany of necessity for reinforcing the Sultan.

The Allies' contention that the war would end in their favor through a policy of attrition may, however, have weight toward their advantage in view of the enormous German losses suffered to sweep the foe out of Galicia. The Russian shortage of ammunition continues a factor in favor of Teutonic success in the east.

French troops have made another advance of one kilometer near Fond-de-Bupal in their operations in the region north of Arras. The fierce artillery fire of the French drove the Germans back in the latter's attempts to recapture the ground lost. West of the Argonne the French have repulsed an attack by the Germans and captured some prisoners. The French have also captured two lines of enemy trenches in the Calonne sector, on the heights of the Meuse.

In Lorraine the French have successfully repulsed counter-attacks near Reillon, gained new positions and took 50 prisoners. The French offensive in the valley of the Fecht continues.

TEUTONS TAKE RAWA RUSKA; NOW 8 MILES FROM LEMBERG

Capture of Railway Centres Cuts Slav Communication on West.

BERLIN, June 21.—Lemberg is about to fall before the eyes of the Kaiser, who has taken up quarters on the field.

Austro-German troops are within eight miles of Lemberg. A War Office statement this afternoon said that a strong force has taken the railroad station of Zolkief, eight miles north of the Galician capital, while Mackensen's center is battling at the last Russian defenses, 11 miles west of the city.

Rawa Ruska, captured last August by the Russians, and on the railway leading through Zolkief, has been retaken by Mackensen's left wing, and the Russians are reported to be falling back all along the Lemberg-Rawa Ruska line.

Rawa Ruska lies 30 miles northwest of Lemberg. Its capture by the Austro-Germans cuts the most westerly line of communication leading from Lemberg into Poland and is another step in Mackensen's effort to encircle the Galician capital.

The Russians are preparing to evacuate the city. A dispatch from Przemysl early today reported that Austrian regiments are storming the last line of Russian defenses and that Austrian shells are falling on a western suburb of the Galician capital. Sound of the artillery that smashed Przemysl is audible in Lemberg.

Since early yesterday trainloads of Russian wounded have been hurrying out of Lemberg. They are moving northeast in the direction of Brody, 85 miles from

THE WEATHER

If you belong to the old school of almanacs it may be you deduced from the big "21" on your calendar today that this was the longest day of the year. Well, it isn't. It's tomorrow. If you care to look it up you will find your almanac gives the sunrise hour as 4:21 and the sunset hour as 7:53 for about five days in a row, beginning today. Without going into fractions these figures most nearly express the accurate time. But there is a matter of fact a divergence of seconds every day, and tomorrow has the most daylight in its favor at both ends. There are several classes of the community that will not admit that figures don't lie, however. Willis will tell you the year's longest day is July 1 or December 1. Our vote is for one of those scorching days last week.

FORECAST

For Philadelphia and vicinity—Generally fair tonight, probably followed by showers Tuesday; moderate temperatures; gentle winds, mostly northeast.

Scores of persons are searching the shore and under the pier pilings at Atlantic City today for the unrecovered bodies of persons who lost their lives yesterday when 35 bathers were swept out to sea by treacherous under currents and 33 drowned. Rumors persist that more bathers perished than at first reported, and at least one man, a Philadelphian, is believed to have drowned, although his name is not on the list of known dead.

GOVERNMENT WINS COAL MONOPOLY SUIT AGAINST LACKAWANNA

U. S. Supreme Court Declares Disposition of Product Through Subsidiary Concern a Violation of Law.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Government today won in the Supreme Court its anti-trust suit to put the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad out of the coal-selling business by alleged evasion of the commodities clause law through a subsidiary coal-selling company. The operating plan was declared illegal.

The railroad's plan was sale of the coal at the mouth of the company's mines to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western "Coal" Company, except such as it needed for operating the road. The subsidiary company then sold the coal, transported on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western lines.

The Government contended that the exclusive contract between the railroad and coal companies by which the latter exclusively purchased the railroad's coal was monopolistic and an evasion of the commodities clause act divorcing railroads from coal selling.

The New Jersey District Federal Court dismissed the Government's suit, but was reversed in today's unanimous deci-

FRANK SPARED AT LAST HOUR; MOB MUTTERS

Governor Commutes Sentence of Convicted Slayer to Life Imprisonment.

Fearing Lynching, Officials Keep Action Secret Until Prisoner Is Smuggled From Jail—Mob Tries to Visit Governor.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 21.—The death sentence of Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, convicted slayer of 15-year-old Mary Phagan, an employe of the factory, was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor John M. Slaton shortly before midnight.

Fearing an attempt to storm the jail, drag Frank from the grim old "Tower" and lynch him, the authorities suppressed the announcement of the commutation until the prisoner had been smuggled from the prison and rushed in an ambulance to the railway station, whence he was taken by train to Macon. The journey from Macon to the State Prison Farm at Milledgeville was made by automobile. As a precaution against surprise by any angry citizens that might have anticipated the Governor's action and the secret removal of the prisoner, Sheriff Mangum filled the ambulance with armed deputies, who stood ready to stand off a mob.

The ambulance ruse was carried out until the train drew out of Atlanta. Frank, on a stretcher, covered with white linen, was carried into the car.

The wisdom of the extraordinary precautions taken by the authorities was made manifest this morning almost before daybreak. As the news spread that the Frank sentence had been commuted and that the prisoner had been smuggled from the jail a muttering crowd gathered. By 9 o'clock hundreds of men thronged the downtown streets, their numbers rapidly increasing and their maledictions upon Frank and the Governor becoming more violent minute by minute. Police-

CHARITY WORKER GOES TO NEW YORK

William Bradford Buck, first secretary of the Public Charities Association of Philadelphia and superintendent of the Seibert Institution for the last ten years, has been chosen superintendent of the institution for Defective Children, Randall's Island, New York. He is now spending a vacation in Maine.

HIS SENTENCE COMMUTED TO LIFE TERM

Leo Frank is said to be on the Georgia State Prison Farm, following the commutation of his sentence by Governor Slaton. He was secretly removed from the Atlanta jail early today.

tic City were Philadelphians. In addition to these, one Philadelphian was drowned in the Delaware River, one below Gloucester City, one off Pennsgrove, one at Fort Mifflin, one in Sandy Run Creek and one at Hiverton, N. J. No less than 75 rescues were made yesterday.

Among the unrecovered bodies are those of Philip Arnold, 2113 Spring Garden street; John Lisle, an attorney, 2109 Spruce street, and Frank Brigham, 1481 South Broad street, all of whom lost their lives trying to save others.

Those drowned at Atlantic City were: PHILIP ARNOLD, 25 years old, 2113 Spring Garden street, spending the summer with his family at 21 South Stanton place.

JOHN LISLE, lawyer, 30 years old, son of the late Robert F. and Mrs. Fannie Lisle, 2109 Spruce street.

CHARLES D. MATELACK, 2801 Wallace street, 22 years old, superintendent of a mill at Hancock and Hurlingham streets.

WILLIAM CROWE, 48 years old, 2123 Belmont street, superintendent of a mill at Hancock and Hurlingham streets.

Justice Lamar read the opinion of the court. He declared the railroad retained an indirect interest in the coal and by means of its contract could control prices at New York. The court plainly indicated that the contract was monopolistic and directed the Government to bring new proceedings against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western to stop its alleged unlawful scheme of selling coal.

1000TH BOY WANTS FARM JOB

Dr. T. P. Garber Receives Great Number of Applications.

The 1000th boy who wants a job as farmhand this summer put in his application today with Dr. John P. Garber, associate superintendent of public schools. There has been a scramble for the positions ever since it was announced that the Board of Education would act as a medium for finding boys for farm jobs and farm jobs for boys.

School will be "out" Wednesday and then the active work of placing the boys will begin. Each prospective "hired man" must obtain a recommendation from his principal and a labor certificate from the Bureau of Compulsory Education. He must be at least 14 years old and must pass a physical examination, showing that hay-tossing, "tilling" a thrasher and gathering eggs will not be too strenuous.

"My only fear is that there will be more boys than jobs," said Doctor Garber. "The work will be profitable as well as healthy and will take the boys away from the city streets. The State Grange is co-operating with us in finding farmers who need boys for the harvest and we shall be glad to get the names of any such farmers."

The Kensingtonian Says:

Fred Whitehead will be one of the winners at Class Six Field Day next Saturday in Collingswood, N. J. Fred has about seven thousand friends today, and we have been wondering how many he will have after the game is over. Four am!

YOUNG TOWER'S WIFE GETS HER DIVORCE

Daughter-in-law of Former Ambassador Wins Decree on Charge of Desertion.

Mrs. Georgianna Burdick Tower, was granted a divorce today in Common Pleas Court No. 5 from Charlemagne Tower, Jr., son of the former Ambassador to Germany. The divorce was granted on the charge of desertion and the papers impounded.

The marriage of Charlemagne Tower, Jr. and Miss "Dixie" Burdick, in New Haven, in June, 1911, stirred Philadelphia and New York society. Miss Burdick was at that time well known on the stage. Young Tower was an undergraduate at Yale.

Another chapter was added to the romance October 5, 1913, when young Mrs. Tower instituted a suit for $10,000 against Charlemagne Tower, her father-in-law, for the alienation of her husband's affections.

The young couple have not lived together since the alienation proceedings. Tower, Tower created a sensation by suddenly signing that Mrs. Georgianna Tower was his wife.
