

RUMANIA'S DEFIANCE OF GERMANY PLACES TURKEY IN JEOPARDY

London Sees Speedy Fall of Constantinople With Only Land Route for Supply of Ammunition Barred.

LONDON, July 17.—Rumania's refusal to allow weapons and ammunition to pass through her territory from Germany to Turkey is accepted here as presaging the conquest of the Dardanelles and the capture of Constantinople by the allied forces.

With the only land route to her Turkish ally cut off, Germany cannot send the weapons with which the Allies were resolutely repelled up to the middle of June.

As the direct line through Serbia was closed, German co-operation with Turkey was established through Rumania.

Police Court Chronicles

Edward Grass, who declares he is not the slightest bit green, and Nicholas Coons, who says he's as white as anybody he knows, went out to test their ability as colorists.

The unhappy pair finally encountered Policeman Kayser on Girard avenue.

Outside, they tried flirting with numerous women on the street. A few slaps in the face and harsh words convinced them that they are far from popular.

DERAILMENT TIES UP P. R. R. Eight Freight Cars Leave Tracks on Main Line Near Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, July 17.—Traffic on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad was tied up when a broken drawbar left the track and derailed eight freight cars at Winans Station, near Baltimore, at 6:15 o'clock this morning.

WOODBURY FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

Four Horses, Three Cows and Hay Crop of W. D. Pancoast Lost.

WOODBURY, N. J., July 17.—The barn and outbuildings on the property of W. D. Pancoast were destroyed last night in a fire which started shortly before 9 o'clock.

BACON'S BODY RECOVERED

Philadelphia Newspaperman's Son Believed Killed by Lightning.

The body of Franklin Bacon, 18 year old son of Charles R. Bacon, a Philadelphia newspaperman, was found in Great Egg Harbor Bay yesterday afternoon by Captain Benjamin Henderson, of Ocean City.

BURGLAR THREATENS TO KILL

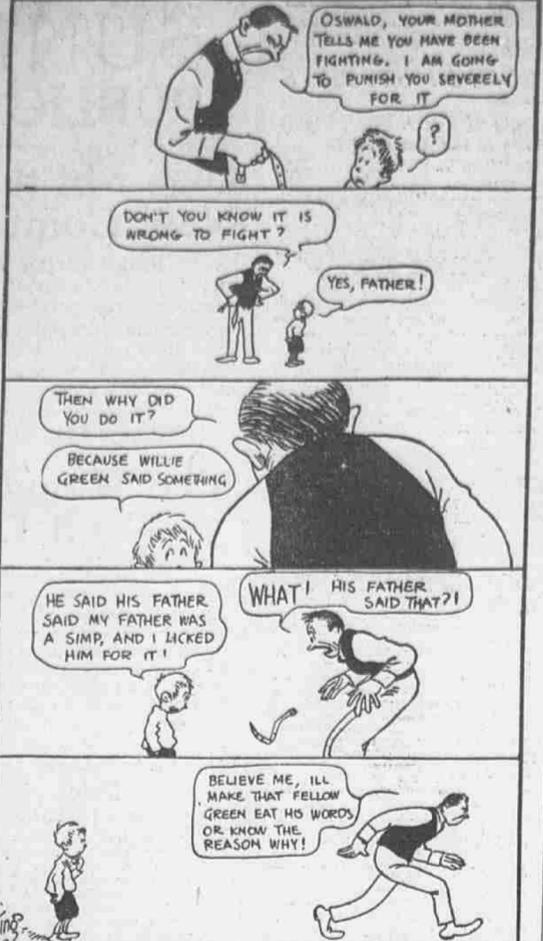

Caught Robbing Hotel, He is Discovered and Captured.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 17.—James Lloyd, a negro who has a long record of crime, and whose name has been served terms both in the local prison and the Eastern Penitentiary, threatened to kill two men last night when they detected him breaking into the Stone Hotel in Mounsville.

Vacation Day Precautions

It's a great convenience to find yourself far from home and unable to obtain the services of the telephone. Before you go away for your vacation, have your telephone disconnected.

WHICH GOES TO PROVE ALL MEN ARE BORN FIBBERS

SWISS OFFER PLAN TO END DYE FAMINE

Ready to Exchange Finished Product for American Coal Tar Crudes.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Prof. Thomas F. Norton, dyestuffs expert of the Department of Commerce, has issued a statement on the prospect of getting dyes for American use from Switzerland.

"With each succeeding week the increasing scarcity of coal tar dyestuffs is felt more and more acutely by American textile workers and also by a large group of other industries dependent in varying degrees upon the element of color," says Professor Norton.

"Under the circumstances, wide interest is attached to a concerted action on the part of the leading manufacturers of artificial colors in Basel, Switzerland. The firms in question find themselves in a serious dilemma. They are now practically cut off from all supplies of coal tar, crude and intermediate compounds, and may soon be forced to close their vast establishments for an indefinite period.

"Fully aware of the latent possibilities in the American coke industry to produce coal tar crudes in enormous quantities and also of the great consumption of artificial colors in the United States, the Swiss color firms now seek to secure an ample supply of American crudes, and to pay for them in finished dyes. They are in the market for 500 metric tons of anthracene oil and for following quantities of pure coal tar hydrocarbon: Benzol, 100 tons; toluol, 100 tons; naphthalene, 200 tons. Any of these may be accepted in 10-ton lots and will be paid for by an equivalent amount of finished dyes."

WOODBURY FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

Four Horses, Three Cows and Hay Crop of W. D. Pancoast Lost.

WOODBURY, N. J., July 17.—The barn and outbuildings on the property of W. D. Pancoast were destroyed last night in a fire which started shortly before 9 o'clock.

BACON'S BODY RECOVERED

Philadelphia Newspaperman's Son Believed Killed by Lightning.

The body of Franklin Bacon, 18 year old son of Charles R. Bacon, a Philadelphia newspaperman, was found in Great Egg Harbor Bay yesterday afternoon by Captain Benjamin Henderson, of Ocean City.

It is believed that the boy, who was in charge of the oyster observation station at Scullville, was struck by lightning while rowing from Somers Point with supplies on Tuesday. His boat was found with the bow badly crushed.

BURGLAR THREATENS TO KILL

Caught Robbing Hotel, He is Discovered and Captured.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 17.—James Lloyd, a negro who has a long record of crime, and whose name has been served terms both in the local prison and the Eastern Penitentiary, threatened to kill two men last night when they detected him breaking into the Stone Hotel in Mounsville.

Vacation Day Precautions

It's a great convenience to find yourself far from home and unable to obtain the services of the telephone. Before you go away for your vacation, have your telephone disconnected.

AMERICAN AVIATOR DESTROYS TAUBE

New York Man Promoted by French for Gallantry in Aerial Engagement.

PARIS, July 17.—For destroying, single-handed, a German Taube in the Verdun region, Elliot C. Cowdin, of New York, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant and cited in the military order of the day for gallant services.

Cowdin, piloting his biplane with one hand and operating a machine gun with the other hand and his feet, brought the enemy's machine to the earth. Although the apparatus of his own machine was badly crippled, Cowdin managed to land safely.

William Thaw also received a commission for daring exploits. Both Cowdin and Thaw are likely to attain high rank in the American Aviator Corps which is being organized by graduates of American universities.

Julius Vedrine was cited in the order of the day yesterday for having accomplished over 100 hours in the air, and for always having volunteered for the most perilous operations."

$47,000,000 IN AUTOMOBILE EXPORTS SINCE WAR BEGAN

New York Customs Records Show Great Increase in Shipments.

NEW YORK, July 17.—An indication of the extent of the shipments of supplies from the United States since the European war began is given by the customs records available here, which show that from August 1, 1914, to June 30 this year, automobiles, automobile parts and tires valued at $47,000,000 were transported to Europe through this port.

The records of the collector of the port show that for the period from August 1, 1914, to May 31 this year, 18,461 cars, valued at $34,453,178, were cleared, mostly for France and Great Britain. Official figures for June have not been completed, but conservative estimates by officials in charge bring the total to July 1 up to 22,651 machines with a value of $40,953,178.

Automobile parts and tires, with June shipments estimated, show a value for the 11 months of $6,993,376.

18 Weddings at Elkton

ELKTON, Md., July 17.—Eighteen couples were married here today. They were: William Robinson and Helen Peterson; Harry Wood and Florence Peterson; and William H. Gleason and Mary A. Bitzer, all of Philadelphia; Ponce de Leon Parker, Philadelphia; and Ellen D. Duncan, Boston; John M. Georhrie, Philadelphia; and Margaret R. Frederick, Harrisburg; Leo Keeler, Philadelphia; and Stella B. Hill, Williamsport; Abner H. Wink and Carolyn B. Ravel, Reading; William P. Doran and Edith A. Berry, Chester; Frank A. Abbott and Frederick C. Chester, Jr., Lancaster; W. J. Alexander S. Priestley and Adella S. Baker, Wilmington, Del.; Clinton E. Fausen and Mae Terry, Scranton; Howard W. Homar and Chester, Jr., Lancaster; W. J. Edmund Musser and Nell M. Piercon, New York; Frank J. Delaney, Atlantic City, N. J.; and Margaret Watson, Pittsburgh; George H. Haworth and Lula R. Coles, Chester; John R. Blanche and Margaret Wapole, Elk Mills, Md.; William Harrison and Wilhelmina Strong, Hillsboro, and Harry E. Kruder and Mary Allgaier, Reading, Pa.

WORLD RECORD CLAIMED FOR U. S. COAST ARTILLERY

Three Out of Four Shots Hit Moving Target at 12,000 Yards.

TACOMA, Wash., July 17.—What is believed to be the world's record in coast defense target practice was made at Fort Flagler by the 28th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, commanded by Captain Hughes, during annual service practice. Shooting at a moving target 12,000 yards distant, three hits in four shots were scored.

The same battery, in night practice at 7000 yards range, fired four shots, each making hit. Sergeant Porter was gun pointer.

The 94th Company, Captain Bunn, made five hits out of seven shots.

FALSE WITNESS

By EDMUND B. DAUVERGNE Author of "Her Husband's Widow," Etc.

The story of a man and a girl, and circumstances which were altered through the intervention of a kindly disposed father.

Copyright, 1914, by the Associated Newspapers, L44.

"YOU! Oh, you were to stay with him, Mr. Derve. Well, you could hardly expect me to agree to that infamous proposal, so I decided to keep faith with your father. He would have been arrested and confessed the whole story. It would have been shown that I wasn't George's wife, and it's a hundred to one that I should have been put in the dock before the fact. No, when Gilbert pointed out to me that Derve was bound to keep quiet, because if he spoke he would certainly be arrested for the murder, I decided to say nothing."

"And you let Martin stand his trial for the murder?" Maud looked at the older woman in wondering reproach.

Mrs. Plessey shifted impatiently. "I should certainly have spoken if he had been convicted. As it was, the slight suspicion attaching to him did him infinitely less harm than the truth would have done me. To my relief Huron had seized the will which cut me off, and said he had destroyed it. Whether he has or not, I don't know. I have often wondered."

"The result of all this was that, while I got rid of that abject poltroon Derve, I had placed myself absolutely under Huron's thumb. He knows where your father's body is, and he could have your father's wife and child, if he pleased, at his own will. I was not to be entitled to the name we bear. And he has other cards up his sleeve. No doubt he and Derve between them have concocted a plot which would make me more or less an accessory to the murder, and such in a sense I suppose I was. So there's no help for it!" Mrs. Plessey sighed—"we are absolutely in Gilbert's hands—both of us."

Maud rose to her feet and greeted her mother with a friendly smile. "Send me a card, and I'll be sure to escape from his clutches at all events," she paused to consider. "He appealed to me this afternoon to get hold of these papers which you had hidden away, and I disposed of them to his brother. What does he propose to gain by that move?"

Mrs. Plessey reflected. "I think he is playing straight. If the plans fall into the hands of the police and Derve is arrested the whole story will come out. You will be dishonored, and I, as I have told you, will be placed in the dock. In his respect he seems to be acting as a good ally."

Maud stood, her hands still clenched, perplexed and undecided. She realized that she and her mother were floundering in the meshes of a net. At any moment he might draw away the net, and she would be more at his mercy even than now.

"But if the plans are in my possession," she cried, "I shall be sure to escape from his clutches at all events," she paused to consider. "He appealed to me this afternoon to get hold of these papers which you had hidden away, and I disposed of them to his brother. What does he propose to gain by that move?"

Mrs. Plessey reflected. "I think he is playing straight. If the plans fall into the hands of the police and Derve is arrested the whole story will come out. You will be dishonored, and I, as I have told you, will be placed in the dock. In his respect he seems to be acting as a good ally."

Maud stood, her hands still clenched, perplexed and undecided. She realized that she and her mother were floundering in the meshes of a net. At any moment he might draw away the net, and she would be more at his mercy even than now.

"But if the plans are in my possession," she cried, "I shall be sure to escape from his clutches at all events," she paused to consider. "He appealed to me this afternoon to get hold of these papers which you had hidden away, and I disposed of them to his brother. What does he propose to gain by that move?"

Mrs. Plessey reflected. "I think he is playing straight. If the plans fall into the hands of the police and Derve is arrested the whole story will come out. You will be dishonored, and I, as I have told you, will be placed in the dock. In his respect he seems to be acting as a good ally."

Maud stood, her hands still clenched, perplexed and undecided. She realized that she and her mother were floundering in the meshes of a net. At any moment he might draw away the net, and she would be more at his mercy even than now.

"But if the plans are in my possession," she cried, "I shall be sure to escape from his clutches at all events," she paused to consider. "He appealed to me this afternoon to get hold of these papers which you had hidden away, and I disposed of them to his brother. What does he propose to gain by that move?"

The Daily Story

Clemfort's Consolation

Along the pier flags and handkerchiefs were waving frantically, though only those with the keenest sight could see the port rail of the big ship. Clemfort eyed the scene wistfully. None was on the dock waiting to greet him. There would be no glad smiles nor upturned faces for him.

When he had sailed away, only four years before, his mother had watched the ship swing out into the stream and he longed as there came a single answering flutter from the pier.

Now she had passed into the great beyond and never since the news of her death had come had he felt so lonely. He was returning rich, almost famously so, but of the old crowd there was not one to whom he could write to tell of his coming, and his eyes grew moist as he watched his fellow voyagers as one by one passed him.

William Thaw also received a commission for daring exploits. Both Cowdin and Thaw are likely to attain high rank in the American Aviator Corps which is being organized by graduates of American universities.

Julius Vedrine was cited in the order of the day yesterday for having accomplished over 100 hours in the air, and for always having volunteered for the most perilous operations."

$47,000,000 IN AUTOMOBILE EXPORTS SINCE WAR BEGAN

New York Customs Records Show Great Increase in Shipments.

NEW YORK, July 17.—An indication of the extent of the shipments of supplies from the United States since the European war began is given by the customs records available here, which show that from August 1, 1914, to June 30 this year, automobiles, automobile parts and tires valued at $47,000,000 were transported to Europe through this port.

The records of the collector of the port show that for the period from August 1, 1914, to May 31 this year, 18,461 cars, valued at $34,453,178, were cleared, mostly for France and Great Britain. Official figures for June have not been completed, but conservative estimates by officials in charge bring the total to July 1 up to 22,651 machines with a value of $40,953,178.

Automobile parts and tires, with June shipments estimated, show a value for the 11 months of $6,993,376.

18 Weddings at Elkton

ELKTON, Md., July 17.—Eighteen couples were married here today. They were: William Robinson and Helen Peterson; Harry Wood and Florence Peterson; and William H. Gleason and Mary A. Bitzer, all of Philadelphia; Ponce de Leon Parker, Philadelphia; and Ellen D. Duncan, Boston; John M. Georhrie, Philadelphia; and Margaret R. Frederick, Harrisburg; Leo Keeler, Philadelphia; and Stella B. Hill, Williamsport; Abner H. Wink and Carolyn B. Ravel, Reading; William P. Doran and Edith A. Berry, Chester; Frank A. Abbott and Frederick C. Chester, Jr., Lancaster; W. J. Alexander S. Priestley and Adella S. Baker, Wilmington, Del.; Clinton E. Fausen and Mae Terry, Scranton; Howard W. Homar and Chester, Jr., Lancaster; W. J. Edmund Musser and Nell M. Piercon, New York; Frank J. Delaney, Atlantic City, N. J.; and Margaret Watson, Pittsburgh; George H. Haworth and Lula R. Coles, Chester; John R. Blanche and Margaret Wapole, Elk Mills, Md.; William Harrison and Wilhelmina Strong, Hillsboro, and Harry E. Kruder and Mary Allgaier, Reading, Pa.

"You are Arthur Pinnard, are you not?" she cried.

When the gangplank was run ashore he did not press forward. His man would look after the baggage and there was no need of haste. He stood idly to one side and watched the crowd press forward. At one side of the plank stood a girl with an eager, wistful face. Once or twice she started forward as some man came down the gangway only to be kept back with a deepening look of disappointment on her face. Finally Clemfort shook hands with the first officer and started for the dock.

"You are Arthur Pinnard, are you not?" she cried.

"You make me wish that I was," he said with a courtesy too sincere to be offensive. "My name is Clemfort."

"The shadows crossed her face again. "Pardon me," she said. "My brother is a passenger on this ship. I have not seen him for many months. I am afraid that we must have missed each other."

Clemfort raised his hat and passed on. "Mustaken identity?" he grinned.

"She's looking for a brother," he said.

"Mr. Derve has not come home yet, miss," she replied. "but Miss Derve is in, if you would like to see her."

Maud hesitated. If Monty had been unfriendly that morning nothing was likely to have happened to effect a change in her mind. In the meantime she had made up her mind to defer her visit to the morning, when Monty herself crossed the hall and saw her standing at the door.

"At that moment she was at Maud's side and clasping her hand. "Do come in!" she begged, the tears in her eyes. "I was real mean to you this morning. I've been fretting about it. Mr. Arrol is here."

"No, Richard. We've been having a long talk. Come in and see him."

Richard Arrol himself appeared at the door and drew Maud toward the two girls seated in the room. He was dressed in a very determined manner behind her.

"Now," he said in an authoritative tone, "you two girls don't leave this place until you have exchanged the kiss of peace and smoked the cigarette of peace together in my presence."

Maud placed her hands on Monty's cheeks and kissed her impulsively. She burst into tears. "I don't know how I could have been so mean."

"That's all right," Maud assured her. "Think of me about it. It is your uncle likely to be honest with you, and he is glancing eagerly around. 'I want to see him on urgent business.'"

"He phoned up that he wouldn't be back until after tea," she said. "but my father is here. He will like to see you. I'll fetch him."

She left her room facing each other in the hall. Maud took Richard's hand. "It's to you I owe my reconciliation with Monty, I suppose," she said smiling. "How did you effect such a remarkable change of attitude?"

Richard for the first time for many years found himself blushing. "Well, I don't believe that Monty had ever quite made up his mind which of you two he really preferred. She certainly never was in love with Martin," he spoke very firmly and positively—"so I thought after all that she had always liked me better than Martin, and that she was rather glad on the whole that it wasn't I who was in love with you."

"They both laughed. "Do you think that's encouraging for me?" asked Richard nervously.

"I think it's decidedly encouraging. You are very like your brother, Richard. I don't believe that Monty had ever quite made up his mind which of you two he really preferred. She certainly never was in love with Martin," he spoke very firmly and positively—"so I thought after all that she had always liked me better than Martin, and that she was rather glad on the whole that it wasn't I who was in love with you."

OBITUARIES

Frank W. Neece

Frank W. Neece, for a number of years clerk in the office of the Surveyor of the town, is dead at his home, 148 sharpshooters street, Germantown, after a brief illness. Mr. Neece was 61 years old and is survived by his widow. He was educated in the public schools of this city and later attended the employ of Philadelphia auctioneers. He became a member of the firm and remained with them until they went on their own account about 16 years ago. He was connected with the Custom House as a member of several charitable organizations.

Dr. Howard Wells

Dr. Howard Wells, for many years medical director of the United States Navy, died yesterday at the Oak Lane Hotel, Philadelphia, after a brief illness. He was 65 years old and had resided in the navy three years ago. Doctor Wells was born in Philadelphia in 1850 and was educated in the public schools. He was graduated from the Jefferson Medical College. The following year he entered the naval medical service. Doctor Wells is survived by a daughter, Miss Emma E. Wells, and a brother, Dr. William H. Wells, of 1135 Spruce street. The funeral will be held Monday morning, July 19, at 10 o'clock at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 23 and Pine streets.

The Rev. Dr. John M. Galbreath

The Rev. Dr. John M. Galbreath, 70 years old, died at Longport, N. J., yesterday after a service of 27 years at the Chestnut Level Presbyterian Church, Lancaster County. He was an instructor at Lincoln University, Chester County. The funeral will be held Monday in Lancaster.

John P. Biese

WILMINGTON, Del., July 17.—John P. Biese, 54 years old, was found dead in bed at his home, 1808 Gilpin avenue, today. He had been suffering from a long illness. The cause of death is under investigation.

William Kepner

LANCASTER, July 17.—William Kepner, 80 years old, a retired engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and well known among railroad men, died in the Columbia Hospital last night from infirmities. Two daughters survive.

Deaths

ADLER.—On July 15, 1915, Dr. LEWIS B. ADLER, Sr., Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral service on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, at the apartment of Oliver E. Adams, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

BURNS.—Suddenly on July 16, 1915, J. BURNS, son of the late Cornelius and Eliza Burns, died at his home, 1520 Chestnut st. Interment private. One hour notice of funeral hereafter.

ARMSTRONG.—Suddenly on Thursday, July 16, 1915, at his home, 1520 Chestnut st., died JOHN ARMSTRONG, son of David Mattland and Helen Nelson Armstrong, in the 41st year of his age. Notice of funeral hereafter.

CLASSIFIED RATES

DAILY AND SUNDAY PUBLIC LEDGER

Five insertion (or like this) 15c per line per week. Additional insertions 10c per line per week. Situations wanted, three insertions 10c per line per week.

THIS SIZE TYPE (or like this)

Permitted in all classifications except Help Wanted. Classified advertising is inserted in the Evening Ledger without additional charge.

COMBINATION RATE

DAILY ONLY 15c insertion in both the morning and evening papers of a day.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)

15c insertion in both the morning and evening papers of a day.

EVENING LEDGER (EVENING)

15c insertion in both the morning and evening papers of a day.

HELP AND SITUATIONS WANTED ADVERTISING IN THE PUBLIC LEDGER IS INSERTED IN THE EVENING LEDGER WITHOUT ADDITIONAL