

THE MAN WHO IS SIMPLY THE "HUSBAND OF MRS. SO-AND-SO" Little Happiness to Be Gained From Such Ill-Assorted Marriages—Poetry Injected Into Daily Household Drudgery

THE admonition Major Pendennis gave his nephew Arthur when he said, "No man, my boy, can find happiness with a woman who drops the "h" out of heaven," is anything truer today than when...

Flowers, frills and flying strands! The prettiest summer hat must have all these things. This hat has the flowers atop, and delicate petals strewn on the brim, round the edge of which runs a tulle frill.

taking a farm cottage in Scotland, do their own work. Their experiences and the struggles they had at first mastering the technique of the kitchen form an interesting tale.

THE man who is known simply as the "husband of Mrs. So-and-So." NEW of us regard household tasks as other than dull, drab and uninteresting. Yet after reading "Content With Flies," by Mary and Jane Findlater, one realizes how very possible it is to inject some color into the daily round of drudgery, and to raise even dishwashing to a dignified plane.

DIARY OF A WELL-DRESSED GIRL

THE minute I laid eyes on the adorable dance frock worn by a lovely strawberry-and-cream maiden at Henlette's fete de fashion I knew that I had always wanted one like it. I had no peace of mind until the materials were stacked on the sewing room table and Mrs. Mathon engaged to help copy the French original.

A youthful evening frock in pale pink and silver.

Even mother grew enthusiastic when I showed her the sketch and the lovely satin, chiffon and lace that were to "build" the dress. She offered to be "handy man" and do any odd jobs that Mrs. Mathon might not be able to do.

Over the satin foundation Mrs. Mathon pressed the flaring skirt of shell pink tulle. She gathered it slightly above the waist and made it quite long, much to mother's regret.

MY MARRIED LIFE By ADRIE GARRISON

How the Doctor Won His Point

"WHAT is the matter with mother?" Dicky demanded, his face and voice filled with anxiety. I sprang to him and put my hand to his lips, for he had almost shouted the words. "Hush! She is asleep," I whispered. "Don't waken her if you can help it."

He was standing looking down upon her. She had not awakened, and her flushed face and heavy breathing evinced alarm as much as it did me. All his heart was in his eyes as he turned from his mother to me, and I realized that in his own careless way Dicky loved this automatic mother of his very dearly.

But his tone stung me with its careless contempt, and I stood perfectly still for a moment before following him to the door of his mother's room.

"Of course, that was the only thing to do," Dicky's voice held an apologetic note. I understood that it was the only remedy he would make for his discourtesy of the moment before.

across the top. Then she sewed it in position at each side of the waistline. The waistline is finished with a girde of the dotted silver ribbon extended across the back and sides. Bows and streamers of ribbon ornament the front of the skirt.

some sort her opposition dropped from her. Into her face came a frightened look. "Oh, doctor, you don't think I am going to have pneumonia, do you?"

Rice and Sultana Cake One pound of flour may be mixed with half a pound of ground rice and then rubbed into half a pound of butter or margarine. Add a little citron or orange peel cut in thin slices, half a pound of finely granulated sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two well-beaten eggs and a little milk. Mix well together and add eight ounces of sultanas. Bake for about an hour and a half.

Buttered Crumbs Roll crackers very fine and sift them. To one cup cracker crumbs add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix thoroughly with a fork.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB I hold my head up pretty well Among my fellow-men But when I meet myself alone I feel embarrassed then.

Look back of the name when you buy butter! Butter "prints" are cheap and names are plentiful. Storage butter, reprinted, may bear almost any name—but Meridale. That name is copyrighted and cannot be thus abused.

Two Days A dawn came; rose and pearl and flamb and grey. And out of it a sun strained morning grew. A glorious morning, bathed in mist and dew. Yet wept a soul, "Ah! Still another day!"

Cables Under the Sea It is estimated that the total length of wire in the sheathing and core of the world's cables made since their introduction in 1857 is sufficient to reach from the earth to the moon. Where the sea is about three miles deep and the ship is steaming at its usual rate in paying out a new line, it has been found that more than two and one-half hours pass before the cable reaches the bed of the sea. By the time the cable has settled to rest the ship is twenty-five miles away.

Escalloped Cabbage Prepare cabbage as for creamed cabbage. Make a white sauce and set aside to cool. When partly cooled, stir in a well-beaten egg. The Ram's Horn A Boston physician, Dr. Edmund D. Spear, has invented a megaphone which is constructed on the theory that the original horn—the ram's horn—was and still is technically correct for sound reproduction. His megaphone is curved instead of the straight, funnel-like shape of most other instruments and one of the most interesting and useful features about it is the ability to use it without having to interfere with one's vision.
