

PICTURE STORY OF HOW KILBANE AND LEONARD PREPARED FOR TONIGHT'S BIG BATTLE

Johnny Kilbane, king of the featherweights, is a serious-minded, industrious and calculating fighter. He is relying on his sturdy offensive to win him a knockout at Shibe Park tonight.

Leonard (on the left) develops speed by matching wits with Mickey Dunn, a very fast bantam. After that he "takes on" his kid brother, Joey, a flashy little boxer.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world and New York's most popular fighter since the days of Terry McGovern, looks 100 per cent fit for the battle.

Kilbane, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, is twenty-eight years old, seven years the senior of his opponent. He is shown with one of his two little daughters.

KILBANE LIKES BASEBALL TO DEVELOP ALACRITY
For the most part he believes in the hardest kind of work to develop an overpowering offensive.

LEONARD IN THE POSE THAT WILL THRILL THOUSANDS OF FANS TONIGHT
The monarch of the lightweights is 5 feet 5 inches tall. His age is twenty-one years. He is the first Hebrew to wear the lightweight crown.

LEONARD ENJOYS A MAN-SIZED JUMP
The lightweight champion has a training system and takes advice from no one.
