

DRAFTED MEN FAST ROUNDING INTO FORM AT TRAINING CAMPS

RUMORS OF MEADE REMOVALS QUIETED

Hints of Proposed Changes to Fill Hancock Vacancies Set at Rest

NEW ARRIVALS IN CAMP

Announcement Made That Several Philadelphia Have Failed in Examinations

CAMP MEADE, Admiral, Md., Sept. 25. Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania now at this camp and those destined to arrive in a few days, will remain here. No plan has been made to transfer any of the selected service men from Little Penn to Camp Hancock.

This much was made plain at division headquarters today and dispels the persistent rumor that Camp Meade would be called upon to fill the gaps in National Guard units at Camp Hancock.

The population of Little Penn was increased today with the arrival of 700 men from Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The reception of these men was accompanied by considerable ceremony and military pomp. General Kuhn and members of his staff were in Disney when the Marylanders arrived and greeted the first man to get off the train. He was E. J. Bannwart, of Catonsville, Md. After receiving the welcome extended by General Kuhn, young Bannwart replied:

"I thank you, General, and wish to state that I am here freely and willingly to do what I believe to be my duty. I think that represents the attitude of all my friends who have responded today."

The band of the Tenth New York Regiment worked overtime to give the boys a royal welcome, and remained until the first batch of men arrived from the District of Columbia. W. H. Santelmann, Jr., son of Lieutenant Santelmann, leader of the United States Marine Band, was the first man to step off the train, and, like Bannwart, was received by General Kuhn.

That several Philadelphia have failed to meet the physical requirements of the army was announced today at division headquarters. These men, it was said, will be sent home within a few days, but no names were given.

A vexing problem presented itself to the military authorities at this camp today when Adam Konig, of Irvington, Md., arrived with the selective service men from that State. Konig wore the uniform of a United States sailor and announced that he was honorably discharged about four months ago. Under the navy rules a discharge man is entitled to wear the uniform for four months after his discharge and during that period is really considered a member of the service.

Konig said that he wanted to return to the battleship Florida. General Kuhn will probably ask Washington for a ruling.

CAMP DIX WAITS FOR NEW YORKERS

Rumor Colonel Roosevelt to Lead Contingent of 1700 Draftees

SALOONS REMAIN OPEN

CAMP DIX, Wrightstown, N. J., Sept. 24. Seventeen hundred draftees from New York State are expected to arrive here this afternoon. This is the second contingent from the Empire State. Rumor has it that Colonel Roosevelt is to head the new arrivals. This rumor has persisted for several days, but headquarters deny any knowledge of the coming of the Colonel.

The saloons in the five-mile radius of the camp did not close today, and by keeping open violated the President's proclamation.

"Business as usual" was the laconic remark of Brose Smith, proprietor of Wrightstown's Jones saloon, whose doors were open and whose bar was busy ministering to the usual hordes of thirsty laborers and farmers. The whole matter is up to the civilian authorities.

General Keeney, commander of the cantonment, said this morning that the military authorities had no authority whatever over the saloons, and could not send a detachment of soldiers to close any place that opened today in violation of the President's proclamation.

An effort to find and interview J. L. Bodine, United States District Attorney at Trenton, and C. F. Lynch, United States District Attorney, with offices in Newark, found both of these gentlemen out.

J. H. Kelsey, prosecutor of Burlington County, explained his position in the matter. He was acting for Mr. Bodine and received instructions to send out notices ordering the closing of all saloons by the 27th. These notices were sent out to all the saloons within the five-mile limit. Saloons, of course, were closed yesterday on account of the elections.

During that time the saloonkeepers got in touch with the District Attorney and put forth their side of the case in a conference. It is inferred that as a result of this conference, that Mr. Kelsey has been instructed to make no arrests. So, until such a time as the saloons are notified by the attorneys they expect to do business.

Some of the owners, believing in "safety first," and fearing the $1000 fine and a year's term in jail, closed their places; also put in a supply of "near beer."

One rumor has it that the contractors of the cantonment have requested the Department of Justice to allow the saloons to postpone the closing date, fearing that laborers might leave the job because of a "dry" town. This rumor, however, was denied at the contractors' headquarters.

In fact, it was asserted there that they had requested that the Pointville saloon be closed by the Department of Justice.

The saloonkeepers are fighting the issue on the point of unconstitutional confiscation of property. They maintain that their property is being confiscated without due compensation.

PHYSICAL TRAINING MEETINGS

TRENTON, Sept. 24.—The State Board of Education today announced four meetings in various parts of the State for school superintendents, supervising principals, high school principals, helping teachers and physical-training teachers for the discussion and teaching of the physical-training law. These meetings will be held as follows:

Address of the Y. M. C. A., 544 Federal street, Camden, Monday, October 1, at 8 p. m., for the counties of Atlantic, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester and Salem.

State Normal School, Trenton, Tuesday, October 2, at 8:15 a. m., for Burlington, Camden, Gloucester, Mercer and Monmouth counties. Address, 10th and Erie Ave.

Grims' Auto Supply Store, 230 N. Locust St., Philadelphia, Wednesday, October 3, at 8 p. m., for Delaware and Pennsylvania counties.

LETTER FROM A SELECTED MAN AT CAMP MEADE TO HIS MOTHER

Tells How Hundreds of Letters Were Sent to "John Doe" at Camp by Mothers and Sweethearts

CAMP MEADE, Admiral, Md., Sept. 25.

Dear Mother: Things are moving so swiftly at Little Penn and so much in the line of military information is being hurried at us that I am somewhat hazy concerning the character of my letter. I appreciate that your military knowledge is limited and that being a woman you are not particularly interested in the technique of war.

This doesn't imply that I am in a position to impart very much information in regard to technique, but I can tell you that I am acquiring a fund of useful knowledge. You know, or at least ought to know, that modern warfare is not much different from primitive warfare and that so far as methods are concerned the individual fighter, and I am one of that type, has little that would be new to Cain and Abel. Both of those gentlemen could fight with their fists, use knives and wield shovels and picks. I am taking a course of study in just such things.

We are drilling five hours a day, and the drilling includes setting-up exercises, double-quick movements and hikes. As a side issue, and as a prelude to more intensive training, I am doing practice shovel and pick work on the barracks grounds.

What will probably interest you is a little information on our Post Exchange or what the layman calls the regimental store. The division Post Exchange with Captain R. C. Dove in charge has been organized and within a few weeks when our division is organized we will have eight branches. A Post Exchange is virtually a department store that is conducted on the co-operative plan. For instance, if I am in need of shoes I can purchase them at the exchange, or if I desire to exhibit my love for you in some definite way I can go to the exchange and buy you a wrist watch or fancy pin.

The exchange is operated on the co-operative plan, and the prices are much lower than those that prevail outside. At present market prices will prevail in our exchange until we accumulate sufficient capital to stock the branches. Then the prices will be scaled and your son will be able to buy a ten cent cigar for nine cents and a ten cent package of cigarettes for eight cents.

Each man receives a charge account in the form of a credit ticket and is entitled to purchase ten dollars' worth of articles and have the bill paid from his monthly salary of thirty dollars. This is handy and will probably reduce the twenty-five and fifty cent touches to a minimum.

Just how Uncle Sam manages to take such good care of his boys in olive drab is difficult to understand, but you can get an idea from his attitude toward the exchange. For one thing, he instructs the medical men to pass upon the merits of candy, soda, food and all delicacies sold. And if they don't meet the rigid requirements of Uncle Sam they are railroaded out of camp.

While I am writing it is well again to instruct you as to the proper way to address my mail. The other day the newspapers ran a story given out at division headquarters in regard to the proper way to address mail to men at Camp Meade. A dummy envelope was used, which read as follows:

JOHN DOE, Camp Meade, Co. D, 115th Infantry, Adjutant, Md. I don't know whether you put John Doe on any of my letters, but hundreds of Philadelphia mothers and sweethearts did. As a result, Lieutenant L. G. Bach, of Company D, 115th Infantry, has several mail sacks filled with John Doe letters. A few of the women folks back home put the name of their soldier on the envelope and sent it in care of John Doe. But all came to Company D. It is a terrible mess, and how it is to be straightened out nobody knows.

Remember that John Doe is a character created by English barristers more than two hundred years ago, and that he does not figure in the Seventy-ninth Army Division.

And, incidentally, I am now able to inform you that I am at the 115th Infantry. The restriction forbidding any information in regard to units being imparted to the outside world has been lifted. Our division has not been organized completely, but I can tell you that the boys from Philadelphia draft boards one, seven, twenty-eight, thirteen and seventeen are in my regiment. The boys from board eight are in the heavy artillery.

Your dutiful soldier son,

DRAFTEES MAY GO TO CAMP HANCOCK

General Price Says This State Will Put 28th Division on War Footing

SOLDIERS OF ALLENTOWN CAMP DUE AT BETZWOOD

Contingents Which Left Fair Grounds on "Hikes" Expected to Arrive Today

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 26.

According to advices received this morning a large number of the 2500 soldiers from the United States ambulance camp at the Allentown Fair Grounds, who left early in the week on hikes, will today reach their destination at the auxiliary camp at Betzwood near Valley Forge.

The backbone of the hiking force consists of the second overseas contingent, in command of Major J. Ryan Devereaux, of Washington. They left Allentown in full marching order, with all their effects and equipment. This gave rise to a rumor they would not come back to Allentown, and that if they were not sent overseas soon they would go to a southern concentration camp for the winter. A high officer of the camp here stated, however, that no orders had been received from the War Department to send them either to France or to the South.

During their absence from Allentown the heating plant will be installed in the barracks they have been occupying.

OFFICERS INSTRUCTED AT CAMP M'CLELLAN

Adjutant General of Division Gives Informative Talk on "Administration"

CAMP M'CLELLAN, Anneton, Ala., Sept. 26.

Major J. A. Ulio, the adjutant general of the Twenty-ninth Division, today addressed the officers of the division on the subject of "Administration." Such talks are a feature of the instruction work here, and members of the division headquarters staff were named to give addresses on the various branches of the division work. Major Ulio is an expert on military administration, and his talk was of unusual value to the men who heard it today because of the necessity for clear understanding of administration in the reorganization of the division and its constituent units. The next talk will be delivered by Major J. H. Kelly, the division inspector, who will talk on the subject of "Inspection."

Captain W. A. Carleton, of the quartermasters corps, U. S. A., has reported here as the camp quartermaster. A number of second lieutenants from the quartermasters corps of the National Army have also come in as assistants to Captain Carleton. They are John C. Cove, Walter J. Newman, Warren A. Hurst, Elmer F. Thomas, John J. Heitz, Edmund Vongerschieken, Norman Heitz, Aaron H. Armour, Theodore B. Gould and John MacF. Smith.

THE WORLD'S BEST PLAYER-PIANOS The LUDWIG Player-Pianos Every prospective purchaser of a player-piano should hear and examine the Ludwig-made player-pianos before buying. It doesn't cost you any more to own a Ludwig-made player-piano than one of the mediocre kind, notwithstanding the fact that the Ludwig is far superior in construction and more artistic in musical results. There are so many claims made for the various makes of player-pianos being offered today that it is only by comparison that you can determine which is entitled to be called the supreme player-piano.
