

Garbarino is Gloomier Over Many Burdens

Tells Business Science Club Newspapermen Hate Him

Won't Divulge Secrets

Maclyn Arbuckle Missed at Luncheon—Would Have Been Antidote

Frank L. Garbarino, special agent of the Department of Justice, was the only speaker today at a luncheon of the Business Science Club at the Bellevue-Stratford.

It was unfortunate, because Garbarino was anything but cheerful. His talk was supposed to have been "Pro-Germanism," but he really made his audience "blue" by telling of the burdens which have fallen upon himself in the effort of the Government to stamp out "rumors" to stop people from talking about the war.

It was really dismal—and surprising too—for the unusually large number of Business Science Club members present to hear Mr. Garbarino say—not once, but twice—that "the newspapers and reporters all hate me cordially because I won't give them the secret information I have."

Then a wave of sadness seemed to creep over the audience, and the speaker added with a sigh, "but I don't mind the attitude of the newspapers or their feeling toward me as long as I know I'm guarding the Government's interest and doing my duty."

Having relieved himself of his burdens and the alleged newspaper-reporter antagonism, Mr. Garbarino proceeded to tell his audience of the German spy system, not those who speak the broken German dialect, but the educated German-American, some of whom have been naturalized, some of whom are not.

Mr. Garbarino went so far as to warn against war discussions for fear they might lead to some pro-German remarks, and particularly did he warn against anything which should serve as criticism or ridicule of United States endeavor.

He traced all of this to the German spy system, which he declared had been built up in Germany for many years, but which he said had been frustrated since war began.

Alexander Lawrence, Jr., formerly president of the club, presided as chairman.

A feature of the training is a two-hour athletic drill daily. Men in these units carry no arms, their mission being purely humanitarian.
