

TERRORISTS' INFERNAL MACHINES DAMAGE THE HOMES OF ERNEST T. TRIGG AND SUPERINTENDENT MILLS

THE BOMB-WRECKED EXTERIOR OF ACTING SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE MILLS'S APARTMENT, 1139 North Forty-first street. Superintendent Mills had apartments on the second floor. He was flung out of bed by the force of the explosion, set off, the authorities believe, by terrorists

THE WRECKED INTERIOR OF ERNEST T. TRIGG'S home, Sixty-fourth street and Church road, Overbrook. Mr. Trigg is president of the Chamber of Commerce

THE ROOM IN WHICH ACTING SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE MILLS was sitting shortly before the explosion. He had retired at 10 p. m. when he was suddenly flung out into the hall by the force of the blast

ERNEST T. TRIGG (at left) VIEWING THE DAMAGE DONE HIS HOME BY THE EXPLOSION