NORTHEAST ROUTE GETS 10 NEW CARS

Frankford, Torresdale and Holmesburg Promised Better Trolley Service

ALSO PAY DEBT TO CITY

Trolley riders in the district between Frankford and Torresdale won a victory today when the Frankford, Taony and Holmesburg Street Railway Company agreed to furnish better service and pay the city the money owed to it.

The company announced, before Public Service Commissioner Samuel M. Clement, Jr., that ten new pay-as-you-enter type cars will be put into operation on Monday. The new cars were purchased from the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

W. W. Montgomery, Jr., counsel, said today that the company has agreed to sell its old plant and purchase power from the Philadelphia Electric Company and this and other improvements will bolster the service.

The power plant was criticized by patrons of the line as being "antiquated and practically useless." The selling price of the plant, $28,000, Mr. Montgomery said, will be applied to further rehabilitation of the rolling stock.

The company has agreed to the plan of A. Howard Jones, engineer for the Public Service Commission, for the payment of debts which the company owes the city. Representatives of the street car company agreed to the plan, but opposed the amount set by Mr. Jones as the minimum annual payment.

Under Mr. Jones' plan the company will pay $4000 a year for six years, $4000 annually for the next five years and $6000 a year for the following five years. The company asked an extension of time and requested that the first payments be of $2000 each. The money is owed for paying and other improvements.

Director Twining, of the Department of City Transit, urged that the line be taken over by the city.

The company supplies transit to parts of Frankford, Washington, Taony, Holmesburg and Torresdale. The fare rate is six cents.

METZ CITY HALL FLAG HERE

German Battle Banner Captured by Daring Salvation Army Man

A big German battle flag which once floated over the city of Metz has been brought to this country through the strategy of Commandant Howard Hinkle, of the Salvation Army.

Originally captured by the French, the flag was taken from the Metz city hall by Commandant Hinkle and Mike Murphy, an American marine, who outwitted the police who were manfully guarding it as a trophy of the Allied victory.

Gaining entrance to the Metz city hall through the assistance of the marine, who indignantly ordered the police to get away from the American officer, Hinkle demonstrated the right to his nickname of "daredevil." Hinkle by appropriating the flag right under the eyes of its French guardians.

The "daredevil" of the Salvation Army is forty years old and has a wife and three children. He now has charge of the Salvation Army work in Easton, Pa. The German flag that once flew over Metz is also in Easton.

MAY MEET PIONEERS

Philadelphians Hope to See Fifty-second at New York in April

Relatives and close friends of Philadelphia serving in the Fifty-second Central Postal Directory will have a chance to meet that organization when it lands in New York on April 14 if plans of the Philadelphia welcome home committee are successfully carried through.

J. Jarden Gantner, secretary of the committee, will go to New York and try to obtain permission for the friends and relatives from here to go on the dock to meet the local veterans. About 1000 drafted men from this city and the old Twelfth New York National Guard Regiment make up the personnel of the pioneers. They saw service in most of the battles in which the Americans engaged.

Friends and relatives of men in the Twenty-eighth Division will be represented on the committee in charge of the welcome home ceremonies. It was announced today.

BURGLARS REVEL IN LEWIS HOME

Residence of Army Officer Looted During Family's Absence

RARE SILVER STOLEN

Thieves stole $1000 worth of clothing, silver, table linens and fine liquors from the home of Mrs. David Lewis, 24 South Twenty-second street, while the house was closed during Major David Lewis' absence in the army.

The report was discovered by Mrs. Lewis Thursday, when she went to her home to show a friend through it. While Major Lewis was away the house was closed and Mrs. Lewis was living at the Lincoln Apartments, Thirteenth and Locust streets. Major Lewis has just returned from the service in the army.

So far no arrests have been made. The theft was reported to the police late Thursday. Mrs. Lewis waited several hours after discovering it in an effort to get in touch with her husband before she called the police.

The thieves left the house in a state of great confusion. They evidently took their time about the robbery; going into every room, and searching every possible hiding place for valuables.

Mrs. Lewis found the contents of bureau drawers scattered over the floors of the bedrooms; trunks forced open and clothing strewn everywhere; even a phonograph smashed in the search for valuables.

Among the articles taken was a number of pieces of Sheffield silver, Mrs. Lewis' whole collection. Other large and small pieces of silverware were stolen.

Two overcoats, three suits of clothes and half a dozen pairs of shoes were carried off by the thieves. From the linen closet they took fine table linen, tablecloths and napkins. The wine closet was broken open and a quantity of fine liquors taken.

There was nothing to indicate when the theft took place. Apparently the thieves had forced their way into the house by prying open a shutter in the back kitchen.

TYPHOID ALLEGATIONS SURPRISE DR. NORRIS

Vaccination Not Absolute Immunity as Army Men Believed, Colonel Here Says

Surprise was expressed over charges concerning typhoid fever in the American Expeditionary Forces today by Colonel George W. Norris, noted medical authority.

He was consultant on General Pershing's staff during the war. The charges are contained in a bulletin issued by the public health service in Washington.

Colonel Norris spent eighteen months in France, remaining there until after the armistice was signed. He went over, with the rank of major, as medical officer of the Pennsylvania Hospital Base Unit No. 10. Later he was called to the staff as a consultant.

"My experience did not lead me to believe that there was a large amount of typhoid in the army," said Colonel Norris.

"The report says that typhoid was heavy after Chateau-Thierry. I was not there, but I talked to various men who were. All are agreed that the filth and flies were terrible. These conditions could not be avoided, and perhaps in part explain the spread of typhoid.

"I cannot say from my own observation that there was carelessness on the part of the medical men. Of course, there may have been individual instances of carelessness, and I have no doubt there were.

"I saw more cases of typhoid in the British than in the American army. This is explainable because vaccination was merely optional with the British, while it was compulsory with the Americans.

"The army's experience on the Mexican border led medical men to believe that vaccination gave a large degree of immunity from the disease, so large a degree of immunity that it would require a very virulent infection, such as from a badly polluted well, to give a man the disease. Every one recognizes, however, that the immunity given by typhoid vaccine is not absolute in the sense that smallpox vaccination immunity is absolute.

The report issued by the public health service ascribed to the surgeon general of the expeditionary force the charge that there had been many epidemics of typhoid and paratyphoid among the troops, especially in the last months of the war, and that medical officers had been grossly careless in preventing the development and spread of the disease.

SHORE RATES DOWN MONDAY

Fares to Other Resorts May Be Cut Later On

Cape May, Wildwood, Wildwood Crest and Anglesea will have year-round tourist rates of $3.50 a round trip beginning next Monday.

This was announced officially by R. J. De Long, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The order was telephoned to Broad Street Station by C. M. Burt, chairman of the general passenger traffic committee of the eastern territory of the United States railroad administration.

The same order contained the information that the extension of the year-round tourist rates to Ocean City, Seaside City and Stone Harbor is still under consideration. It is understood, however, that the privileges will be extended to these resorts within the next week.

The order grows out of complaints of discrimination made to the United States railroad administration by a committee representing all the South Jersey shore resorts.

KENDRICK BURGLAR MISSES PRICELESS MASONIC JEWELS

Diamond-Studded Lodge Emblem Collection Locked in City Hall Safe When Robbers Secured $1500 in Other Personal Property at Home of Tax Receiver

Diamond-studded Masonic emblems worth a small fortune escaped thieves who looted the home of Receiver of Taxes W. Freeland Kendrick, for the reason that Mr. Kendrick keeps his collection in his safe at City Hall.

A desire to obtain the diamonds making up pins and emblems that have been presented to Mr. Kendrick during his occupancy of various Masonic positions is believed to have actuated the thieves in breaking into his home at 1129 Duncannon avenue, Logan.

The Kendrick home is next door to the dwelling of Superintendent of Police Robinson, who lives at 1127 Duncannon avenue.

The Kendrick collection is well known, since Mr. Kendrick is proud of his gifts and frequently displays them at the request of friends. The collection includes a Lu Lu emblem made up solidly of diamonds and presented by "Buffalo Bill."

Some of the emblems are so heavily laden with precious jewels as to preclude their being worn with any degree of comfort. Should the register array himself in them all at one time they would cover the front of his coat and bear him down with their weight.

He is receiving congratulations of his friends today on the foresight which saved the collection from the robbers.

Thirteen suits of clothes belonging to Receiver Kendrick were among an assortment of articles stolen from his home in Logan, according to police of the Germantown and Lycoming avenues station. Loot taken by the robbers who ransacked the house aggregates $1500. Most of it has been recovered.

Following the report of the robbery, a man who said his name was Greaser and gave his address as Seventeenth and Vine streets, was arrested as he was attempting to pawn some of the missing articles in a Germantown avenue shop. He gave information which resulted in the arrest of three other men.

Mr. Kendrick, who is residing with his family in apartments at 1520 Spruce street, went to the police station and identified the property recovered. The men in custody were given a hearing before Magistrate Wrigley today, and were held without bail for a further hearing April 12.

Institutionalize

The very latest thing is "institutional advertising." It is even gaining in favor over "merchandising" as a word with which to conjure.

Institutions are not created offhand, even with the copious use of printers' ink.

You remember Noovo Reech Porkbar who patronizingly asked the English gardener how he got such excellent turf—"Oh we roll it and we brush it for, say two hundred years, and there you are, sir!" was the reply.

The reasons that underlie a great business success usually furnish the best material for its advertising.

Colgate is great because of the recognition by the public of quality and service, and not because the house was founded in 1806.

The house of great accomplishment is usually so intent on greater conquests that it avoids the seduction of "Board of Directors' copy."

With quality—service—and time—any advertised product will make of its maker, an institution.
