28TH MEN ARRIVE, SINGING WITH JOY

Throngs Meet Troop Trains at Camden, but Few Get Chance to See Relatives

GEN. MUIR ON FIRST TRAIN

Singing and shouting, the first men of the Twenty-eighth Division detrained at Camden at nine o'clock. This first of the eighteen trains bringing the Iron men from Camp Dix carried Major General Charles H. Muir and his staff and the rest of the division headquarters troop, the headquarters company of the Fifty-fifth brigade, headquarters of 100th Infantry and the regimental supply company.

The men carried their steel helmets slung over their shoulders. They had no other equipment. They marched in "route step" from the train to the waiting ferry boat and crowded aboard yelling their loudest at the sight of Pennsylvania shores across river.

Sergeant George Davis, son of Colonel D. J. Davis, chief of staff, was in charge of the detrainings. Arrangements at the station are in charge of C. H. Greer, assistant superintendent of ferries, and F. Finn, the train dispatcher. Tracks five and six are reserved for the trains which are coming in twenty minutes apart.

Machine-Gun Units Arrive
The second detachment arrived at 9:24 o'clock with Machine-Gun Companies A, B, C, D, E, F and part of G, of the 100th Infantry.

Many of the men carried suit cases, indicating they had been discharged and were going home immediately after the parade. Captain Warren was in command.

The speed with which the trains were unloaded and backed from the sheds startled the hundreds of relatives and friends who gathered at the station in the hope of obtaining a moment's reunion. The trains were unloaded and backed from the station in seven minutes.

The crowd had grown so large that it became necessary to rope them off and the men in "columns of fours" marched through the line thus formed to the ferry boat Bridgton. Only a few persons succeeded in greeting their loved ones over the ropes. The cheers and plaudits of the crowd, however, fairly rocked the ferry house and left no doubt in the minds of the soldiers as to the spirit of the welcome.

Every One Wears a Smile
All of the men were smiling and happy and marched with a swift, buoyant step that indicated their spirit.

The third train with the remainder of Company G of the 100th arrived in Camden at 9:45. Companies H, I, J, K, L and M were also aboard as well as Headquarters Company of the 110th, Major Allen Donely, commander of the Third Battalion of the 100th, was in charge of the train.

The fourth train from Camp Dix arrived at 10:05 in charge of Major William P. Fish, commander of the 110th Infantry. On this train were Headquarters, Medical, Ordnance, Machine-Gun Supply and Company A of the 110th.

Dog Mascots Arrive
The fifth train carrying Companies B, D and part of C, 110th Infantry, arrived at 10:20 in command of Captain Troxell. At 10:49 train number six arrived in command of Major Dunkel, of the Second Battalion, 110th, with sixty-five men of Company G, and Companies E and F.

Eight minutes later the seventh section, commanded by Major Flynn, of the Third Battalion, arrived with sixty-five men from Company C, the balance of Company G; sixty-five men from Company K and Companies H and I.

The eighth section brought the balance of Companies C and K, Company I, and the Fifty-third Artillery and Brigade headquarters. The train was commanded by Captain Cummings.

The men of this latter section brought with them two dog mascots and many of them carried German helmets under their arms. All of the men carried their rifles.

CITY IS ON TIPTOE ON EVE OF PARADE

Whole Town in State of Joyous Excitement Over Troops' Return

A STORY ABOUT BEANS

Everybody knows the restaurant. It is in Chestnut street—one of those lunch-counter places where the patrons call the waitress ladies by their given names.

Today at noon a round-faced, jolly man called in a dozen Iron Division boys with a sweep of his arm. "Go to it you lads," he commanded. "Eat what you want and as much as you want. It's on me."

The boys fell to with a will. And one of them ordered beans. As if he hadn't been eating them in the army for months and months.

This example of a Philadelphia's hospitality to the state's fighting lads who are with us today, is typical of the entire city.

All over town the boys are being treated as victorious warriors should be treated.

Holiday Air Prevails
And Philadelphia is in a fever of excitement on the eve of the parade. The holiday air is everywhere. Flags are flying, bands are playing, eyes are bright.

"Our boys are home!" Business was forgotten and the story of "over there" was the thing that was remembered. Counters were deserted, typewriters clicked no longer.

When the men of the Twenty-eighth began to round the city's cobble today on their way to their various billets they stuck out their chests a bit and grinned a response to the city's preliminary welcome.

"Glad to see you, too," they seemed to say. Last minute touches to flags and hunting and shields were being put on everywhere early today. The waiting clouds couldn't gloom the occasion's spirit. Even skeptical Pittsburghers among arriving Keystoneers had to admit that the city of brotherly love had put on "some glad rags."

What the Sergeant Says
"Used to think it would take a plague of prairie dogs from Kansas to make Philly get up to the fact that there was anything west of the Schuylkill," quote an ordnance sergeant, first class, who was watching the men file in at the ferry buildings. "But, believe me, once in awhile you folks do recover consciousness." Needless to say, this sergeant does not live east of the Schuylkill.

Stores dealing in decorations were being swamped with business from 9 o'clock on. Soldiers and sailors were selling buttons to every one who hadn't one. About the only regular business that was good was the hotel business, but the vendors were running it a close second.

Residence districts everywhere were gay with color. Sometimes whole blocks shone red and white and blue, and they will shine so for weeks. The home fires have been kept burning.

THEATRE OPENS DOORS TO KEYSTONE MEN

Free Tickets of Admission to All Amusement Houses Are Available Today

Members of the Theatrical Managers' Association have made elaborate preparations for their entertaining tonight the men of the Twenty-eighth Division.

Under the direction of Harry T. Jordan, Frank W. Bühler and Abe I. Einstein, thousands of tickets have been printed for admission of any members of the division to any theatre or motion-picture house in the city and also to the National Athletic Club.

The tickets will be ready for distribution today at the following mobilization points for the men of the Twenty-eighth Division and they can secure them by applying to the information booths located there:

Commercial Museum, Thirty-fourth and South streets; Scottish Rite Hall, Broad and Race streets; pier 78, Snyder avenue; Hudson Building, Broad and Vine streets; pier 38, Queen street; navy yard, League Island; First Regiment Armory, Broad and Callowhill streets; Second Regiment Armory, Broad and Diamond streets; Third Regiment Armory, Broad and Wharton streets.

The committee states that the doors of every place of amusement in the city will swing wide open to welcome the holders of these tickets, and the attractions will be those of the current features at the "legitimate," vaudeville and motion-picture theatres.

In the case of several of the "legitimate" houses seats have been reserved for the boys, and these, as indicated on the tickets, must be called for not later than 7 o'clock tonight. For the athletic and boxing exhibition at the National Club, which will be under the direction of William J. Herrmann, there will be 4000 seats. The use of the club and the services of all employees have been donated for this occasion, and the program promises to be one of the best.

MOTHERS WILL WAIT AT PIER UNTIL PEERLESS REACHES HOME

Little Band of Eighteen Women and One Man Determined to Stay There Until 108th Artillery Comes In

"We will wait here until the Peerless comes in." The speaker was Mrs. Margaret Barrett, of Merchantsville, N. J. She is the mother of "McCarthy of Battery F." Yesterday she made the trip from her home to reach the pier by 6:30 o'clock in the morning. Today she arrived at the same time. Private McCarthy lives at 316 Decker street, this city.

Private Thomas W. Heath, of Battery A, of the 108th, is awaited by his mother, Mrs. Thomas W. Heath and his wife. The family lives at 2640 Glenwood avenue.

Mothers Predominate
W. J. Horisk and his daughter, Miss D. M. Horisk, these were today waiting for Private W. C. Horisk, of Battery F. Mrs. Grace Pryce, of 4546 North Colorado street, is there waiting for her son, Private James W. Pryce, of Battery E.

The mother and aunt of Private Joseph Whyllings, who was gassed by the Germans while serving at the front with Battery E, are waiting. They are Mrs. F. Higgins and Mrs. Rose Moran, of 2634 Lear street. Another gas victim, Private Harry Krommiller, of Battery F, will be received by his sister, Mrs. Ella M. Markslam, of Cityway.

Others at the pier are Miss F. Strouse, of 3820 North Sixth street, the sister of Private William Strouse, of Battery C, and the fiancée of Sergeant Stanley Perfer, of Battery D, whose home is in Ashmead street, Germantown. She is Miss Mabel Woodruff, of 3820 North Sixth street.

"They are all there. And they will stay there, they say, until their boys come home."

DON'T KISS BOYS IN LINE! SENIORS ON PICNIC TODAY

Muir Edict Also Bars Tossing Food to 28th Marchers
Major General Charles H. Muir, commander of the Iron Division, has issued an appeal to the thousands who will watch his troops go marching by no closer than food and souvenirs into the ranks. General Muir, through Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Clement, acting chief of staff, said that the divisional review was to be conducted on straight military lines. Anything that attracted the attention of the men, he added, was certain to interfere with the proper alignment and marching order of the division.

"Make this as emphatic as possible," said Colonel Clement, "so that the people will know just how the thing stands. And, while about it, don't forget to tell them to remain on the sidewalks and not rush into the ranks."

"For if they go out and kiss or hug or try to attract the attention of the individual soldier this will throw the whole military machine out of gear and cause the greatest confusion. The time of starting the arrival at the various points, the entrainment for Camp Dix and everything will be affected and much of our work spoiled. I know it is pretty hard to resist the temptation, but please ask them through your papers to help us as much as possible by doing their part."

PHILA. PILOT SHANGHAIED
Storm at Breakwater Prevents Landing—Off for France
Pilot George W. Paynter, of this city, now is off on an "ocean job ride," and before he gets through with it he will have an opportunity to visit Paris, the debarkation ports of Brest and St. Nazaire and some of the battlefields.

Last Saturday Paynter piloted the big American freighter "Pocahontas," for France from Philadelphia, to the Delaware Capes. Upon arriving at the Breakwater he found a northeast gale blowing forty-two miles an hour. The steam pilot boat Philadelphia is at this city, undergoing repairs, and the wooden schooner J. Henry Edmonds, used in her stead, found it impossible to take him off in the teeth of such a gale.

BESIEGE TICKET BUREAUS
Committee Hard Pressed to Meet Upstate Demands
Relatives of upstate Iron Division men, arriving here today, have been bombarding the women's war relief committee, in the Liberty Building, for tickets to see the parade.

The women have 500 extra tickets, which war workers turned over for emergency cases among relatives who have no tickets, and these are being given out in every case where there has been a failure to care for worthy applicants.

Workers at the railroad stations have been so busy meeting requests for vacancies by incoming upstaters that the lists were exhausted this morning and a new list had to be made up.

CITY DINNER TONIGHT FOR MUIR AND AIDES

Biggest Men of State to Gather at Bellevue-Stratford to Honor Iron Men

28TH STAFF TO BE THERE

Major General Charles H. Muir, commander of the Twenty-eighth Division, and members of his staff will be guests of honor tonight at a dinner to be given at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel by the city.

Many of Pennsylvania's most distinguished citizens will attend. Elaborate arrangements have been made to make the function the most brilliant of its kind held here in years.

Speeches will be made by Mayor Smith, whose address will be in the nature of a formal welcome on behalf of the city to the officers and men of the Keystone Division; by Governor Sprout, who will express the pride of the state in the achievements of her sons on the battlefields, and by General Muir.

Covers will be laid for 500 dinner guests, and the dinner will start at 7 o'clock. Many women will occupy boxes surrounding the speakers' table. Decorations of the banquet room will be a triumph of artistic taste. Details of the arrangements are in charge of Isaac D. Hetzell.

Among those whose families will occupy boxes are the following: Governor Sprout, Mayor Smith, General Muir, E. T. Stotesbury, Judge J. Willis Martin, Colonel David J. Davis, chief of staff; Judge John E. Patterson, George Wharton Pepper, W. Freeland Kendrick, State Senator Edwin H. Vane, Joseph P. Gaffney, James E. Lennon, president of Select Council, and others.

The dinner guests will include the following: General Muir and staff, Governor Sprout, Mayor Smith, former Governor Martin H. Brumbaugh, Major General Charles E. Clement, Judge Patterson, Lieutenant Colonel F. T. Pusey, former Lieutenant Governor Frank B. McClain, Joseph P. Gaffney, Colonel M. E. Finney, George Wharton Pepper, Colonel Edward Shannon, 11th Infantry; Dr. Edward Martin, state commissioner of health; James E. Lennon, Rear Admiral C. A. Hughes, commander of the fourth naval district; Mayor E. V. Balbock, of Pittsburgh; Colonel George C. Rickard, 112th Infantry; Clarence J. Buckman, president of the state senate; Colonel F. A. Snyder, 103d Engineers; Rodman Wynn, member of New York; Edgar Fahs Smith, provost of the University of Pennsylvania; Colonel E. St. John Greble, John M. Walton, city controller; Major Edward Hoopes, John P. Connelly, city solicitor; Brigadier General Frank D. Boary, E. T. Stotesbury, Colonel Asher Miner, Lieutenant Governor E. E. Bridleman, Colonel David J. Davis, Judge J. Willis Martin, Brigadier General William C. Price, Jr., Isaac D. Hetzell, Lieutenant Colonel Edwin S. Stuart, Major General L. W. T. Waller, commander of the marine corps; Dr. Edward B. Glasgow, president of Common Council; Colonel Joseph H. Thompson, 110th Infantry, and others.

Swimming, boating and a baseball game between two picked teams will serve to pass away the afternoon for those who do not take the opportunity for a good, sound sleep. Another satisfying meal will be followed by a period of story-telling around a huge fire. This mellow evening talk-fest will finally be brought to a close in time for the old hay wagon to get the picnicers back to the station and into the city before midnight.

All societies are excused from classes for the picnic.

SENATOR WILL SEE PARADE TOMORROW
If Official Business Permits
Senator Boies Penrose in Washington today said he hopes to be able to return to Philadelphia to witness the big parade for the Iron Division, and will be here if conditions in Washington will permit.

"I hope to get back to Philadelphia tomorrow to see the parade, if it is possible, because it will be an interesting and wonderful affair," said Senator Penrose. "But with the mass of things piling up here in Washington it may be impossible for me to get away."

HONOR SOLDIERS NAMED TO GUARD MEMORIAL FLOAT

General Muir Announces Eight Distinguished Service Cross Bearers for Parade Feature

Eight soldiers, each of whom was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, were named today by Major General Muir as a guard of honor for the memorial float in honor of Pennsylvania's heroic dead, which will precede the parade tomorrow.

The guard will consist of the following: Captain Earl Patterson, 100th Field Artillery; Captain Frank J. Cohen, 107th Infantry; Sergeant Robert F. Jeffrey, 110th Infantry; Sergeant John J. Dean, 110th Infantry; Private James O'Neill, 193d Sanitary Train; Corporal Arthur Dieter, 103d Engineers; Sergeant Joseph Fuller, 100th Field Artillery.

Headquarters of the Twenty-eighth Division at City Hall will remain in operation there until the troops entrain for Camp Dix at 10:20 tomorrow night. From this base of operations Lieutenant Colonel Clement will keep in constant touch with the parade from all points. Telephones will be installed every few blocks along the route to provide for all emergencies.

TO RELEASE NAVAL MEN

Temporary Officers Who Have Seen Service Will Be Replaced

Washington, May 14.—All temporary officers who entered the American navy for the war period only will be released within the next few weeks, Acting Secretary Roosevelt announced. There are more than 1000 officers of this status and they will be replaced by reserve officers who are accepting temporary commissions with the agreement to remain in the service until six months after peace is declared.

In effect, these reserve officers are calculating their services to the department over the emergency until the army shall have been brought home. The result will be to relieve the department of the pressure now brought by the temporary officers, who are anxious to get out of the service.

Reserve officers undertaking this temporary service have an opportunity to fit themselves for places in the regular naval establishment if they desire, Mr. Roosevelt said.
