Mason-Brockie Wedding a Beautiful Affair, Says Nancy Wynne—Reconstruction Dances at Bellevue-Stratford Open on Roof This Week

WELL, Agnes Brockie Mason's wedding was certainly as pretty an affair as I would care to see. The church was simply gorgeous with pink and white peonies. Every pew, the whole length of the middle aisle, was decked with a bouquet of peonies, and the tops of the pillars in the church were surrounded with the lovely pink and white blooms, and on either side of the chancel were two huge panels of greens and white and pink peonies.

Agnes looked perfectly sweet, and she wore a short veil over her face going up the aisle, which gave her a most fairylike appearance. Her dress was all embroidered in pearls and fit her beautifully, and her veil was so arranged that the lace fell straight down from the back of the head, but the tulle was about the face and shoulders. It was most becoming. The tulle veil was fashioned into a sort of turban on her head and had sprays of orange blossoms placed in it. Elizabeth Brockie's frock was of brilliant light green chiffon, and her hat was a cloudy dark blue tulle. Some like a combination, don't they? But it was very fetching, and she looked sweet.

Do you know it really seemed funny to see Agnes in anything but her Emergency Aid Aide suit. I have happened not to have seen her in any other apparel for nearly two years, so I enjoy all the finery of her, even more than I do most brides. Mrs. Scott, who was so beautifully sweet. She is the youngest-looking person and any one would take her for Agnes and Elizabeth's sister, instead of their mother. She wore a wide-brimmed hat trimmed with a blue-green ostrich feather and an oyster-white gown, and she smiled at every one as she came down the aisle after the wedding. There is a more popular woman in Germantown than the former Miss Agnes Morgan, and when she and Mr. Brockie were married and left Philadelphia for Staten Island and they were greatly missed. After Mr. Brockie's death Mrs. Brockie moved back to Germantown and several years later married Mr. William Varden.

They live at Red Gate, you know, the old Warden place on School lane. It's a gorgeous place! The day being clear helped a lot to relieve the congestion at the house after the wedding, for there were a great many people there and the house would have been crowded to the doors, large though it is, had the guests not been able to go out to have a relief not to have a huge line of bridesmaids to speak to; somehow, when you have to do that, you're about dead when you reach the end of the line, for you can't stop to really talk to any one. You hold up the whole bunch if you do.

Jack Mason looked very well after his experience "over the top." Syd Thayer, who is still in the marines, was an usher. He and Norris Barratt were in uniform, but the others were in "civvies."

As to the presents, I just could not begin to tell you how beautiful and numerous they were. Each silver and china and glass and mahogany! Simply lovely. Isn't it good that Jack came home safe and they could be married, and won't have to be separated right away by war, as were so many of their friends? They were wise to wait until he came back.

Every one was there—Mr. and Mrs. Mason, Jack's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wister, Mrs. Pere Wilmer and her daughter, Eleanor Purviance, Elizabeth Vieter Geary, Mr. and Mrs. Bob McLean, Mrs. Frank Hazlehurst, the Arthur Brockies, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Tom, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Warburton, Mrs. Billie Clothier, Mrs. Barclay Warburton, Mrs. Norman MacLeod, Miss Rebecca Newhall, Mrs. John Shipley Dixon, Mrs. Hutchie Scott, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Reed M. Woodard, Mrs. Joseph Copover and Mrs. Charles Bochman.

OF COURSE, I know it's not polite to point, but sometimes it's necessary in order to avoid confusion. If I had done it yesterday a whole lot of embarrassment and time and everything would have been saved. But at the same time if she had I wouldn't have been able to tell you this story. You see, she hadn't announced her engagement, she hadn't wanted to tell a few friends about it before it came out in the papers, so she started out with fiance yesterday, carrying fiance's latest gift, a black Pom, and wearing a diamond and other latest gift (made of platinum and trimmed with a large diamond) on a certain finger of a certain hand.

Martha Baker, Miss Juliana S. Baker, Miss Anna Townsend, Miss Helen Harter, Miss Mary C. Page, Miss Eleanor Robb, Miss Esther Rhoads, Miss Lucy B. Grey, Miss Lorraine Diaston, Miss Peggy Thayer, Miss Rachel Price and Miss H. Paulina Bell.

Thayer, Miss Anna May Scott, Miss Mary E. Scholler, Miss Dorothy Shannon, Mr. E. Harrison Clark, Mr. Percy E. Scott, Mr. John Stewart and Mr. Harold A. Wright.

Colonel Alden C. Knowles will be the guest of honor at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Hollinshead Taylor at the Ritz-Carlton on Saturday evening.

An interesting wedding will take place in St. John's Church, Cape May, on June 28, when Miss Marie Louise Starr, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. Walter Starr, of 117 South Seventeenth street, will become the bride of Mr. Carl Bullitt Rautenberg, of Louisville, Ky. Mrs. R. Walter Starr, Jr. will be matron of honor and the bridesmaids will include Miss Helen Gay, Mrs. J. Hawley Larned, Miss Elizabeth Cummings, Miss Elizabeth Buchanan. The flower girls will include Miss Margery Sinclair, Miss Dorothy Marshall, Miss Annie Cannon and Miss Mary Cannon, of Concord, N. C.

Mr. Henry Bullitt Rautenberg will be best man, and the ushers will be Dr. R. Walter Starr, of this city; Mr. Basil Harris, of New York, and Mr. Rowland Dunell, of Louisville.

Miss Robey will graduate with the class of 1919 at Swarthmore College. Mr. Glenn, who was first lieutenant, Q. M. C., is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ragan, of 1907 Master street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Mary Ragan, to Mr. Edward A. Jarvis, of Cynwyd.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williamson Grove, of Pittsburgh, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Toth Grove, and Dr. Harry Lincoln Rogers, of Riverton, N. J., son of Mr. Thomas I. Rogers, of Burlington, N. J. Miss Grove is a graduate of Wellesley College and Doctor Rogers of the University of Pennsylvania. Doctor Rogers was discharged recently from the United States army.

Mrs. Olivia L. von Boyneburgk, of 2141 North Camac street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lenore H. von Boyneburgk, and Lieutenant Jens F. Louw, formerly of Copenhagen.

OF COURSE, I know it's not polite to point, but sometimes it's necessary in order to avoid confusion. If I had done it yesterday a whole lot of embarrassment and time and everything would have been saved. But at the same time if she had I wouldn't have been able to tell you this story. You see, she hadn't announced her engagement, she hadn't wanted to tell a few friends about it before it came out in the papers, so she started out with fiance yesterday, carrying fiance's latest gift, a black Pom, and wearing a diamond and other latest gift (made of platinum and trimmed with a large diamond) on a certain finger of a certain hand.

Just after she had explained it all during the first call, the son of the hostess blew in. And without explaining she introduced fiance, then with a demure glance at that certain finger of the certain hand she remarked, "A new addition to our family." All of which was a perfectly good way of announcing her engagement, only, you see, she forgot to point the aforementioned finger toward fiance when she spoke, and, anyhow, she couldn't, because she was holding the Pom with that hand.

And son, being one of those people who speak without counting up to ten beforehand, looked down at her hand, saw "one of those foolish little account books" and said politely, turning away from fiance, "Yes, so I see; quite an addition. A fine dog, very nice dog, indeed." And then had to fall all over himself when he understood that the new addition was not a dog, but a very nice man, indeed.

NO HOPE FOR LEAGUE SEEN BY DR. CONWELL

Temple University President Tells Bethany Bible Union World Conversion Is First Need

"The only time when the world will have a league of nations is when the world accepts the Bible," declared Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, president of Temple University, in addressing the Bible Union at Bethany Presbyterian Church, Twenty-second and Bainbridge streets, yesterday afternoon. John Wanamaker, who presided, also made an address.

Dr. Conwell declared that if we should enter into an agreement, as the league of nations say we shall, to protect all nations, then we must also protect the religion of those nations.

"And can we protect Mohammedanism?" he asked.

Dr. Conwell said it was forty years since he had been to Bethany and that within that time he had seen many changes take place.

"And yet there is one thing," he added, "which has not changed and which is still the same—the Bible."

Mr. Wanamaker declared himself strongly in favor of a wage increase for missionaries, school teachers and clerks in public service.

"This is no time to reduce wages," he said, "with house rents increasing and foodstuffs at their present cost. I pay wages to 30,000 people and I know what the wage-earner is up against. Prices won't be as they were before the war for a long time."

Yesteryear's services of the Bible Union were the first of a summer series which were urged last Sunday by Mr. Wanamaker himself. Heretofore the Bible Union has disbanded each summer.

A meeting of the Men's Brotherhood, with Mr. Wanamaker presiding, was held in the church yesterday morning.

Special morning and evening services were conducted by the Rev. George P. Pentecost, pastor of Bethany, and the Rev. W. Edward Jordan.

BONNET ORGAN RECITAL

Well-known French Organist Impresses Germantown Audience. Joseph Bonnett, the distinguished French organist, gave an unusual recital on the new organ at the First Presbyterian Church, Germantown, yesterday afternoon. A large audience more than appreciated his artistry in presenting the evolution of organ music from the sixteenth century to the present day.

Beginning with "Grand Jeu" by Du Mage M. Bonnett evidenced a fine understanding of his art and a mastery of the instrument. "Tocatta per l'Organo," by Frescobaldi, was played with dignity that brought to the hearers the full solemnity of the mass.

M. Bonnet followed the early religious music by the "Fantasie and Fugue G. Minor," by Bach; the "Tenth Organ Concerto," by Handel.

Immediately preceding compositions by the organist came the "Gavotta," by Padre Martini, well-known to violinists, and the "Sketch in F Minor," by Schumann.

M. Bonnet combined the religious dignity with the deep colors of nature in his group of "Poemes d'aut ome," in which the altar flowers chant a prayer, "Matin Provincial," with the vision of the awakening of the little town in the foot of a mountain Notre Dame de la Garde, and "Poeme du Soir," the evening song and chant of thanksgiving.

Exquisite harmonies and artistic finish made the "Piece Heroique," by Cesar Franck, a complete picture of the struggle against fatality and triumph through faith.

M. Bonnet is the successor of Alexander Guilmant as organist of the conservatoire concerts, Paris.

The decree for divorce was granted by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich on the grounds of infidelity.

A settlement of $18,000 was made by Herreshoff on his former wife and no alimony was stipulated in the divorce papers.

In the decree, Mr. Herreshoff was forbidden to marry again during the lifetime of his former wife, but he evaded this by marrying outside the jurisdiction of the New York court which granted the divorce.

MIMI SCOTT MARRIED TO PHILANDER L. CABLE

Former Fiancee of Late 'Hobey' Baker Bride of U. S. Embassy Aide in Paris. Miss Mimi Scott, former fiancee of Captain Hobart A. H. Baker, who was killed in France, and Philander Lathrop Cable, third assistant of the United States embassy in Paris, have been married in New York.

The couple will sail soon for France, where Mr. Cable will resume his duties in the embassy at Paris.

The bride is the daughter of the late George I. Scott, of New York, and granddaughter of Mrs. George S. Scott.

An announcement of the engagement of Miss Scott and "Hobey" Baker, re-named Princeton athlete, was made last October 1, when both were in France. "Hobey" Baker was then a lieutenant in the aviation corps. Miss Scott was with the Red Cross hospital service.

On November 28 announcement was received here by cable that the engagement had been broken by mutual consent. A short time afterward, Captain Baker's many friends in all parts of the country were saddened by the report of his death while flying.

Miss Scott made her debut six years ago and has been a leader in the young social set of New York and Newport. She was one of the first to take up war work, but not satisfied with the limited lines of activity open to her at home, took a course of training at a New York hospital, and went to France after her graduation.

Her mother was formerly Mademoiselle Jeanne de Gauville, a daughter of the Count and Countess de Gauville of Paris, France. Her grandfather, the late George S. Scott, one of the leading bankers of New York city in his day, left her a large fortune, the income from which she devoted to war charities.

Lieutenant Baker was the son of Mrs. Alfred Thornton Baker, formerly of this city, but who for some time has resided in Princeton, N. J.

J.

Mrs. Herreshoff, who is a sister to the late Edward Clinton Lee, of Havertown, was the second wife of Mr. Herreshoff, and was married to him in St. Luke's Episcopal Church of this city in 1882.

The decree for divorce was granted by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich on the grounds of infidelity.

A settlement of $18,000 was made by Herreshoff on his former wife and no alimony was stipulated in the divorce papers.

SUFFRAGISTS SEEK SPECIAL SESSIONS

Appeal to Governors to Call Legislatures to Ratify Votes-for Women Amendment. Washington, June 9.—An appeal for special sessions of legislatures to ratify the federal woman suffrage amendment was addressed yesterday to the governors of twenty-eight states where women have full presidential suffrage by Miss Maud Younger, lobby chairman of the National Woman's party.

Telegrams from the state chairmen of the National Woman's party, working to secure immediate ratification by the Legislatures now in session in Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania, report in all cases strong hope for the quick passage of the ratification resolutions.

Mrs. Clara Snell Wolfe, chairman of Texas, wires that ratification in that state, in spite of the recent defeat of the suffrage amendment by a small majority, is assured when the legislature convenes in special session June 23.

The Wisconsin Legislature is waiting only to receive the certified copy of the amendment from the secretary of state to pass it. Its distance from Washington may prevent Wisconsin's being the first to ratify, since Michigan and Illinois are vying for that honor.

DON'T LET HEAT SPOIL MILK GIVEN TO BABIES

City Health Director Warns Mothers Against Dangers That Summer Brings

Mothers are warned to guard against the contamination or spoiling of milk fed to babies during the heated months, by Dr. Wilmer Krusen, director of health and charities.

"The heat itself is largely responsible for the large number of cases of baby illness and premature deaths among infants," Dr. Krusen says. "It must be remembered that the baby's most important food—milk—is quite perishable during the heated term, and if unprotected from contamination or from spoiling may be responsible for many cases of digestive disturbances.

"Every mother should plan for the comfort and ease of the little ones during the summer months. Those who are not well informed on the care and conduct of babies should inquire at one of the several health centers where the city nurses conduct demonstrations and lectures in the interest of the infant population. If there is no health center nearby, write to the Division of Child Hygiene, City Hall, requesting that a nurse call on your home.

The city nurses do not treat sick babies. They will, however, refer your case to the family doctor or to one of the physicians of the Bureau of Charities. We do not wait for your baby to get sick before aid is rendered, but we adopt every preventive measure to combat those factors incident to hot weather, responsible for summer complaint and all other diseases common during the hot spell.

"Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of breast feeding at this time of the year. Mother's milk is always preferable to cow's milk, but even more so during the summer, when cow's milk readily spoils or may become contaminated, giving rise to digestive disorders among babies.

"Babies need plenty of water, just as adults do, and when temperatures during the day is high. Boiled cooled water is relished by them, helps to make them comfortable and supplies the needed fluids to the body which are evaporated in the form of sweat.

"Bathe the baby daily. During extreme hot weather a morning and evening bath in lukewarm water refreshes the skin and induces comfort and sleep.

"Select the coolest room for the infant. Those who live in closely built up quarters should take the baby outdoors in cool shaded spots. Never take babies on shopping tours.

"At the first sign of illness consult your family doctor. Don't rely on patent medicines or home remedies, because summer conditions is a dangerous disease requiring scientific management and treatment."

CHURCH HONORS SOLDIERS

Three Deaths in War Shown on Tablet Unveiled at Third Christian Church. Holy and Aspen streets. The tablet was a memorial for sixty-four young men of the church who entered the United States service during the war. Those who died were Edwin Danfield, Samuel Crawford and Harold Pearl.

The welcome home services were in charge of the Rev. T. E. Winters, pastor of the church. The exercises were opened with a call sounded by a bugler of the Anderson Band, the church military organization. The principal address was by Corporal J. H. Alcorn, of the 315th Machine-Gun Corps, who was wounded in the Argonne drive. His life was saved in an engagement, he said, by a watch he carried in his pocket on his follow-up in the Pennsylvania Railroad purchasing department.

Corporal Alcorn said he carried the watch in a pocket of his shirt. A bullet from a machine gun struck him on the left breast, he related, but was prevented from reaching a vital spot by his watch.

After "The Star Spangled Banner" and a hymn sounded in the church by the three members of the church who had yielded up their lives in the cause of democracy, the tablet was unveiled by Miss Helen C. Myers and Miss Helen E. Frazier. The dedicatory address was by Dr. Winters. The Home Defense organization of West Philadelphia and delegations from many fraternal and patriotic organizations took part in the exercises.

SUNDAY SCHOOL'S 51ST YEAR

Jenkintown Organization Observes Anniversary

Grace Presbyterian Sabbath School, at Jenkintown, yesterday celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. Two of its founders, the Rev. Samuel T. Lowrie and John Wanamaker, took part in the program.

The school was organized in 1869, when Doctor Lowrie was pastor of the Presbyterian church at Abington. He arranged to hold it in the building now occupied by the Jenkintown Library. Among twenty-six children enrolled were Caleb Fox, Douglas Robinson, Thomas B. Wanamaker and Rodman Wanamaker.

Within two months, weekly prayer meetings were organized, and two years later ground was purchased nearby and a stone building erected, which was later enlarged into the present church. The Sabbath School has now grown to ten times its original membership and occupies a chapel of its own, in the rear of the church.

Mr. Wanamaker took for his text of the theme: "Who despoth the day of small things?" He recalled the surroundings of fifty years ago, when there was only one other congregation, the Episcopal, besides the Quakers, and stated that the present size of the Presbyterian Church and Sabbath School and the devotion of the members will repay the efforts made fifty years ago.

The church has had four pastors, the Rev. Henry A. MacKubin, the Rev. Richard A. Greene, the Rev. John M. Stephens, the Rev. Edwin E. Riley, the present pastor, the Rev. W. K. Foster. Three of these five pastors were members of the same class at Princeton Seminary.

PROTEST ON MONUMENT

Germantown Stonemasons' Fellowship Objects to Pastorius Shaft in Park. Despite its designer's plea that Germantown is not represented in its handling, the Pastorius monument in Vernon Park, Germantown, which is scheduled to be unveiled, is still the target for attack.

The Twenty-second ward council of the Stonemasons' Fellowship has passed the following resolution with reference to it: "Whereas, It is reported that the so-called Pastorius monument in Vernon Park, Germantown, will be unveiled in spite of objections by Germantown residents; and,

"Whereas, The erection of this monument was due to the efforts of the discredited and outlawed German-American Alliance, an organization, whose members believe in German Kultur and who were engaged in spreading German propaganda and who were doing everything possible to retard the progress of the United States and our allies in the war; and,

"Whereas, This monument is not a memorial to Pastorius, but is a memorial to German arrogance and a pile of stone with a figure surmounting it typifying a form of so-called civilization and Kultur that Americans will want to forget, as it was only overthrown after thousands of American lives had been sacrificed; therefore,

"Be it resolved, That the Twenty-second ward (Germantown) council, Stonemasons' Fellowship, protest against the unveiling of this so-called Pastorius monument, and recommend its removal; and be it further,

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the secretary of war, Site and Relief Society of Germantown and all patriotic societies of Germantown, requesting the patriotic societies to protest against the unveiling of this memorial."
