

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne goes to the Morning Musicals—Opera Tonight—A Daughter Is Born to the Penn Smith, Jrs.—Tea for Frances Starr

MUSIC seems the thing this week, with the exception of a few theatre parties and a dinner-dance or so for the outcasts; no balls, no large affairs. Every one is holding their own little party, shopping, talking in the morning musicals at the Bellevue yesterday, perhaps, or the opera tonight.

Next week there will be many balls. There's the Evans's on the 25d, the Benedicks on the 26th and the Holland Twines' that same night. Going some, I'll say.

There will probably be a brilliant house at the opera tonight, as "La Boheme" is a great favorite. The Eli Prices will entertain in their box and the Joe Lippincott will entertain in the Bertram Lippincott box for the evening.

TO GO back to yesterday's musicals, it was certainly well attended. The crowd was not so great as for the first one, but the ballroom was well filled with the rows of boxes up and downstairs both ways full of smart people.

Charlotte Brown entertained in her box and looked exceedingly well in a London smoke-grey suit and hat of the same material. Pretty Mrs. Eugene Dixon Newbold was one of her guests. She looked charming in a gray suit and fur and a rose pink Edward Thayer—Jean Thompson that was, you know—was another guest. She was in a chocolate brown hat and suit which was very becoming.

Cornelia Ledy Cheston looked very well. She is in mourning for her grandmother, Mrs. Philip Ledy, who died in the late summer, so her hat was of mourning silk and her coat of black dwoyette. It was very becoming. She was in her mother's box.

Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel had Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle in her box. Mrs. Drexel was in black, with a large black velvet hat trimmed with ostrich feathers. Mrs. Biddle's small black velvet hat with a large black velvet bow was untrifled. Mr. Van Rensselaer was in the box during the concert also.

Mrs. Stotesbury had several guests. She looked very well herself in a wine-colored suit and sable fur. Her rather small, high-crowned hat in the shade of yellow velvet was trimmed with black velveteen. Altogether it was a most fashionable and smart audience.

THE news about Mrs. Claxton is encouraging. On Sunday she spoke and recognized two of her children, and was conscious for an hour or more, and yesterday again consciousness returned for a greater period of time.

Mrs. Stover, who was Miss Elizabeth Claxton, has come on from Boston to be with her mother. Mrs. Claxton has been living in the city for several days. Margaret, who married Morgan Heba d. Emilie, her youngest daughter, is in the West for the year, visiting relations. No word yet whether it is improving she will probably not come on.

DID you know that the R. Penn Smith, Jrs., have another baby? A little girl, born on Saturday at their home, 124 East Seventh street. Mrs. Smith, you remember, was Carol Harriman, a daughter of the late E. Harriman. They were married in July, 1917, and after Mr. Smith's return from the service settled in Bryn Mawr, but later Mr. Smith, who was with the remount department during the war, was sent to New York by his business company and they are now living there. They have a country place in Westbury, L. I., where they spend the greater part of their time. The first baby, born last year, was a little boy.

THE death of Mrs. Neilson yesterday must be a great sorrow to her family. She was ninety years of age, just think of it! And a most wonderful old lady. Several years ago she and her daughters broke up their home on South street near the old city hall apartments at the Gladstones, where they have lived since.

Mrs. Neilson was the widow of Thomas Neilson and the mother of Dr. Tom Neilson, Mr. E. H. Neilson, Mr. William Neilson, Mr. Frederick B. Neilson and Miss Emma and Miss Mary Neilson. Her life was filled with good works. She was one of the founders of the Society for Organizing Charities and was active in its behalf for many years. Mrs. Crawford Madeira was named Sarah Claypool Neilson, after her grandmother, you know.

I HEAR that the Women Writers are planning to give a tea to meet Frances Starr, the actress, at their clubrooms in the Art Alliance Building next Tuesday afternoon at half after 4 o'clock. Miss Starr arrived in this city yesterday to play in "Tiger, Tiger." She is a very charming woman and has consented to talk to the guests at the tea for a few minutes. She is very attractive and it will be more than interesting to hear her.

Miss Julia Blankenburg, who is president of the club, and the entertainment committee whose chairman is Miss Agnes Reppner, 2d, will receive with Miss Starr. NANCY WYNNE.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES Among the guests at the dinner which Mrs. W. W. Hepburn will give on Monday, December 20, at the Bellevue-Stratford in honor of their daughter, Miss Jane B. Walker-Gordon. Just as it comes from the Cow. Natural Milk Clean. It keeps sweet a long time.

Just how long we cannot guarantee, yet Walker-Gordon Milk, properly iced, will keep for what many users term "an unusually long time." Why? Because it's clean! It is impurities that cause milk to sour quickly!

We know from observation that the Walker-Gordon Company produce milk under exceptionally clean conditions. They actually scrub the barns and the cows; make every milker wash and dry his hands before milking each cow. Nothing is left undone to have everything right in the production of Walker-Gordon Milk.

Because Walker-Gordon Milk is so clean, it is regularly used on ocean voyages, on journeys across the continent and on long-distance automobile trips. Telephone your first order today.
