GOVERNOR THEN SIGNS AND MAILED IT TO COLBY

Attorney General Gave Opinion That Writ Vacated Injunction Order

By the Associated Press Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 24.—Frank M. Thompson, attorney general of Tennessee, announced today that Governor A. H. Roberts at 10:20 o'clock this morning certified Tennessee's ratification of the suffrage amendment, sending the certification to Secretary of State Colby by mail.

The announcement was made after Chief Justice Lansden, of the State Supreme Court, on petition of the attorney general, had granted a writ of certiorari and supersedeas virtually taking proceedings in the injunction case brought to prevent certification out of the hands of Judge Langford in the county Chancery Court. Justice Lansden ordered all records in the case before the Supreme Court for review.

Attorney General Thompson declared the action of Justice Lansden vacated the injunction granted by the lower court and it was on this express opinion that the Governor certified ratification to Washington.

Argument by the attorney general on his motion that the Supreme Court take jurisdiction was made before Justice Lansden last night at the Justice's home. Opponents of ratification charge that the proceedings violate the rules of the Supreme Court, despite the fact that the hearing was not notified that the hearing was to be held.

ORDER 1000 BOOTHS FOR WOMEN VOTERS

Extra Polling Compartments to Be Placed in Congested Districts for Use in November

One thousand new polling booths have been ordered to accommodate the expected vote of women in Philadelphia at the presidential election in November. Women who have been assessed will be allowed to register on September 22, the first registration day, despite the fact that assessors will not have published their lists by then.

A committee of prominent women was organized to hold a meeting at which Republican leaders will be in attendance ready to answer all questions as to voting.

The outstanding developments of a meeting of the Republican city committee called in the committee rooms, Eleventh and Chestnut streets today to discuss the women voters.

REPORTS ORDER FOR POLLS

Chairman Holmes, of the county commissioners, then reported the order for the additional polling places, which will be in the form of booths, where the registration shows they are most needed.

Mr. Holmes also told of involving a special dispensation to hold a meeting to register on September 22. The assessors, he said, will be unable to have their lists printed by that time.

Chairman Holmes said that some of the assessors are expected to "kick" at the five days' work of assessing the women for the $27.50 pay given them because many of the men must lose better pay to do the work.

He said it would be better for them, however, to begin the door-to-door canvass tomorrow than to have themselves "swamped" by women wanting to be assessed when the assessors sit in special sessions on August 31.

Charles Hall, chairman of the ways and means committee, said that volunteers probably would come forward for the assessment work if the regular assessors decline the task.

He said lawyers will be on hand on registration day to answer any questions regarding the new voters and urge the assessors to organize workers to solicit women voters in the same manner as the male vote.

"I advocate this, although I firmly believe 98 per cent of women voters will follow the lead of their male relatives," he said.

Hall suggested meeting It was Mr. Hall who suggested the open meeting for women. Thomas Cunningham, Republican Alliance leader, moved that they be given the privilege of the hall whenever they desire it.

But you men want to be ready to answer some funny questions," Mr. Hall said, "for the women won't be put off."

The committee also discussed the

COX TO PROVE CHARGE IN PITTSBURGH SPEECH

Nominee, in Statement, Says He Will Show Magnitude of G. O. P. Fund

Dayton, O., Aug. 24.—(By A. P.)—Governor Cox, Democratic presidential candidate, today gave out a statement declaring that he would "prove" his charges regarding the magnitude of Republican campaign funds. He stated that he would bring out information in his address next Thursday night at Pittsburgh.

The statement of Governor Cox follows: "Senator Harding denies my charges about the campaign fund which the senatorial oligarchy is raising. I am prepared to believe that he knows nothing about a lot of things that are going on around him. This reveals the very dangerous symptom which I have been discussing. In my Pittsburgh speech this week I will advise the country as to matters of which the senator claims to be ignorant and I will prove my charges."

GREEK ENVOY TRANSFERRED Minister to Washington Assigned to Important Post in Turkey

Washington, Aug. 24.—(By A. P.)—George Bonanos, Greek minister to the United States, has been appointed diplomatic representative of his country at Constantinople. He will sail for Greece Saturday.

Because of the territorial expansion of Greece and the delicate relations existing between that country and Turkey in the Smyrna hinterland and in Thrace, the position which Mr. Bonanos is to fill is regarded by diplomats as one of unusual importance. The minister has been one of the advisers of Premier Venizelos and his appointment to the Constantinople post was viewed as a tribute to his service in Washington during the three years since his appointment. He was the first minister sent to the United States by the Venizelos government after the deposition of King Constantine.

WILSON TO ENTER FIGHT FOR LEAGUE, HELPING GOV. COX

President, Although Crippled Physically, Expects to Join in Campaign

Washington, Aug. 24.—Woodrow Wilson, crippled by body but with the light of battle in his eye, is about to get into the presidential campaign. He will not only issue a series of statements from the White House, but may make a speech or two within the next few weeks in support of the Democratic ticket.

The President is so wrapped up in the League of Nations, now nearing the "great and solemn referendum" he foresees eleven months ago, that he stands ready to sacrifice life itself if need be to help put it over.

Such is the information which came today from semi-official sources close to the White House. Whatever part he plays, those close to him say, it may be a purely advisory one, but he will be heard from quite definitely.

Intimations that the President may make one or more public addresses on campaign issues were accompanied by the disclosure that he is making his own independent study of the League of Nations, and that he is making it in a most thorough manner.

Mr. Wilson's personal physician, Dr. Grayson, is represented as being strongly opposed to any speech-making in the presidential program. If he does speak, therefore, it will be over the determined opposition of the two persons who have done most to assist his recovery so far as it has gone.

To Attack League Foos In quarters usually well informed it is assumed the presidential infirmity will be turned on the enemies of the league, among whom he pictures Senator Harding and the latter's campaign associates. Among persons close to the President it is well known that the league dominates his life. His greatest hope is to see it in successful operation, with the United States one of its members.

He places this cause ahead of everything else, health included. Incidentally, the picture him as supremely confident the Treaty of Versailles with the league intact will eventually be ratified, presupposing a belief that Governor Cox will be elected President.

President Wilson has aged years since he was stricken. Although it has been less than a year, his hair has turned gray to the extent of being taken on new and deeper lines, and his countenance betrays unmistakably the marks of suffering. Offsetting his physical disability is the fact that he is again back to normal weight—170 pounds—that he has a good appetite, sleeps well, is steadily gaining in strength and acquires a deeper color with each outdoor excursion.

There are differences of opinion as to the President's ultimate recovery. His physicians held out the hope of complete betterment in his condition, based on the history of his case to date. In many respects his progress is considered remarkable. Considering his age, sixty-three, and the seriousness of his attack, his physicians hold it nothing short of amazing that he should have done so well.

Differ on His Recovery Graduating first from the sick bed to the wheel chair, then to a cane, he clings staidly now as part of his daily program to the use of a cane. He has a paralyzed left arm and goes through a series of calisthenics prescribed by Doctor Grayson to strengthen nerve and sinews. His left arm and leg now always are affected to some extent, however, leaving him a semi-invalid, requiring more or less constant assistance and attention. It is on this point that the professional and lay viewpoint differ. Notwithstanding the optimism expressed by those close to him, the opinion has grown here that he will never recover his former bodily vigor.

Officials of the Wilson administration are hopeful the President can take an active part in the campaign. Naturally they do not share the opinion in other Democratic groups that the President's support is a liability rather than an asset. They say the President can do more than sit on the sidelines, and that he should be brought into the campaign by getting into it. What seems most likely to happen, without regard to the method proposed, is that the President will get back of Cox on the league issue and let the candidate run the rest of the campaign himself. By those in a position to know the probabilities, his course, it is expected he will show his hand within a month.

BEGIN TWO PROBES OF CAMDEN CRASH

County Prosecutor's Office Will Call Witnesses to Fix Blame for Ten Deaths

Two investigations of the tragedy at Morgan street grade crossing Sunday night which cost ten lives and injuries to five, are under way, one by Camden county and the other by Camden city authorities. The county inquiry is in charge of Albert E. Burling, assistant prosecutor, in the absence of Charles A. Wolverson, county prosecutor, who is on his vacation.

The county is co-operating with the city authorities who are conducting a separate probe under the order of Mayor Ellis.

A thorough investigation to determine whether any one was criminally responsible for the crash between the outboard and the express train will be made by the Camden county prosecutor's office," Mr. Burling announced.

"So far as a coroner's inquest are concerned, I do not believe they are necessary," he said. "The coroner's inquest is a duplication of the work of the prosecutor's office. An accident requiring an investigation is never overlooked by the Camden county prosecutor's office."

At the office of Frederick W. George, clerk of Camden county Board of Freeholders, it was pointed out today an inquest is permitted in all accidents, but the necessity for the inquest being left to the county physician.

Dr. Frank O. Stemm, county physician, who led the bodies, said he did not believe a coroner's inquest was necessary, that he would not order one. He said the witnesses who could be called before a coroner's inquest will all be summoned before the prosecutor.

"I viewed the bodies and have officially notified the prosecutor's office," Doctor Stemm said. "If I thought anything was to be gained by a coroner's inquest, I would order one. I think the investigation can safely rest in the prosecutor's hands."

Grades to Be Protected A number of unprotected grade crossings in South Jersey are likely to be abolished or modern safety appliances adopted as the result of the crossing tragedy.

Although Camden county and railroad officials blame the driver of the ill-fated automobile for attempting to cross at Morgan street after a watchman issued a warning and waved a lantern, they agree the accident would not have occurred if the crossing had been protected properly.

Two hundred lives have been snuffed out in New Jersey grade crossing accidents since 1910.
