

BOBBY OF VARE ARRIVES AT HOME

Funeral of Congressman's Daughter, Who Died in Orient, to Be Held Saturday

NAVY OFFICER DETAILED

The body of Ida May Vare, oldest daughter of Congressman William S. Vare, who died August 18 at Peking, China, during the congressional tour of the Orient, arrived in Philadelphia this morning and is now at the Vare home.

Congressman Vare, Mrs. Vare and a daughter, Mildred, with the body, were met at the North Philadelphia station by members of the Vare family. The funeral will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Congressman Vare's home, 2304 South Broad street.

While on the trip to the Orient she was the most popular girl in the congressional party. The first day out on the Pacific all the children on the boat gathered around to hear her tell stories.

Beatrice Vare, a young daughter of Congressman Vare, did not make the trip. She is now in the North Philadelphia station this morning.

The Vares left the United States on June 26 and visited Honolulu, where Mrs. Vare and her daughter Mildred remained on an account of Mrs. Vare's health.

When Ida May Vare died the congressman abandoned the rest of his tour.

The body of Miss Vare remained in state for a time at the home of the American minister in Peking. Funeral services were held there, attended by the official party, naval and army officers, and a squad of marines.

When the body left Peking it was guarded by two American marines until it reached Japan. There it was placed on a special funeral car guarded by two Japanese soldiers until it reached Yokohama, where it lay in state in the American Naval Hospital.

Harry A. Mackey, Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, wife of Senator Vare; Mrs. James Hazlett and Balfour Beman, who was Miss Vare's fiancé, accompanied the body across the continent.

Democrats Late in Finding Issue

Continued from Page One. ated White. But Cox was not a good enough politician not to be intrigued by the idea of raising some issue which would put him in the center of the public mind, especially some issue which he better qualified by experience and habit of mind for presenting to the country than the League of Nations.

In his earlier speeches he experimented with two issues, the League of Nations and the charge that Republicans want a return to reaction. Then he became enamored of his charges against the Republican campaign fund as giving point to his issue of reaction.

He was led away from the league issue, lost time presenting a case that he could not prove, suffered some in the estimation of the country as the raiser of a false issue, became confused himself about what the real issue was and returned with his western trip to find that men like Taggart, Beckham and similar candidates in other states, were not looking to him for leadership in the campaign, but were making their own issue and to see the President from Washington directing the party into the main channel.

The Democratic campaign has lost time and has suffered in morale. When you cannot make up your mind as to which the greater wrong is, there is something the matter with your morale. Probably neither Mr. Cox nor any one else could this year have made the league a winning issue.

Discontent with the Democratic party and so many are the foreign voters alienated from that party. But at any rate it is late to begin now. In Kentucky, where more than thirty counties where there is a solemn referendum on the league, the Democrats claim to have made progress in the last fortnight.

But in most of the states there is a long way to go and little time for the going. Senator Harding's Des Moines declaration on the league is calculated to hold together the stragglers. As things stand today, he is easily elected. In effect what he says to people who have already made up their minds to vote for him is that they must trust him and his party, the United States senators and such advisers as Taft and Root and Hoover and Lodge, to work out some plan of international cooperation to prevent war, which will be free from the objections that have been raised against the Wilson League of Nations.

After you have the confidence of the people it is not hard to ask them to trust you fully. That is what Mr. Harding is doing when he says he has no specific plan, but that one will be elaborated under his administration.

HARDWICK WINS GEORGIA

Outspoken Opponent of League Nominated for Governor. Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7.—(By A. P.)—Complete official returns received by the Atlanta Constitution showed early today that Thomas W. Hardwick, Republican, had been nominated for governor of Georgia in yesterday's Democratic primary.

On the face of the Constitution's returns Hardwick carried 100 counties with a total of 236 county unit votes, while his opponent, Clifford L. Walker, former state attorney general, carried fifty-four counties with 138 votes. One hundred and ninety-four votes were needed for nomination.

Hardwick during the campaign was outspoken in his criticism of the League of Nations. He had the support of Thomas E. Watson, who was nominated by Georgia Democrats recently for United States senator.

BAN GERMAN ARMY SUITS

New Jersey Farmers Quickly Resent Attire of Laborers. Doerfield, N. J., Oct. 7.—The gray German army uniforms, of which the victorious Yanks caught a fleeting glimpse as the Germans fled before their drive against the Hindenburg line two years ago, have bobbed up in closer perspective in the peaceful fields of South Jersey—but only for a passing glimpse. Former service men have again spread their going.

These recently arrived on some of the farms in this region a large number of immigrants to work as farm hands. They were said to be Poles, but they speak German and many of them are said to have served in the German army. They took ship at the port of Danzig.

During the warm weather the new arrivals worked in the fields wearing occasionally odds and ends of gray garments. They mostly worked by themselves in gangs. Recent cooler weather has required the strangers to wear more clothing. To the amazement of the American farm hands, who include former overseas veterans, some of the new laborers appeared Tuesday morning in what the ex-service men declared were the full uniforms of privates in the German army.

The foreign farm hands were told to go to the quarters and take off the odious uniforms and that if they ever appeared in them again they would be torn from their backs.

DUKE OF ALBA WEDS

Marquesa San Vicente del Barco Bride of Grande of Spain. London, Oct. 7.—(By A. P.)—A wedding of the greatest interest in social and court circles occurred this morning at the Spanish embassy when the Duke of Alba married the Marquesa San Vicente del Barco, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Alaiaga, of Spain. Cardinal Bourne, the archbishop of Westminster, officiated.

The wedding was private in order to avoid inevitable press had in Madrid and because the Duke of Alba is in mourning for the late ex-Empress Eugenie, of whose eldest sister he was a grandson. The British and Spanish royal families were represented at the ceremony.

The Duke of Alba, belonging to one of the most prominent of Spain's noble families, holds six ducal titles and is a grande of Spain and a constable of Navarre. It was in the duke's palace in Madrid that the ex-Empress Eugenie, widow of Napoleon III, died recently, and it had been reported that she left him a large share of her fortune.

The marquesa's family was ennobled in 1482.

HYGIENE MEN MEET

Association Begins Two-Day Convention to Inspect Public Baths. The American Association for Promoting Hygiene and Public Baths began its annual session of its annual convention at noon here today. Headquarters of the delegates are at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, but the meeting will be held in the assembly room of the Chamber of Commerce, in the Widener Building.

Among the Philadelphians who will address the association are Dr. Robert A. Hare, director of the Medical College; Director of Public Welfare Tustin, Aiba Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. A. Abbott, of the Department of Public Health; J. Leancy and Mason, of the Sun Shipping Corporation, and Dr. T. W. Reed, of the United States navy.

There will be luncheon for the delegates tomorrow. They will also be given a demonstration of the methods used in teaching swimming in the recreation pools in Philadelphia and will show the local swimming pools and recreation centers.

Among the Philadelphians who will address the association are Dr. Robert A. Hare, director of the Medical College; Director of Public Welfare Tustin, Aiba Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. A. Abbott, of the Department of Public Health; J. ENDEAVORERS FIGHT 'WETS'

Delegates to Convention Urged to Support 'Dry' Candidates. Atlantic City, Oct. 7.—Delegates attending the annual convention of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union were charged today to mobilize the thirty odd thousand members in the interest of the dry candidates at the election next month.

Speakers accused reported laxity of the prohibition law in this state and urged the convention to go on record against men who did not declare themselves on the issue. The delegates were urged to put their hands on the scales of justice and to go on campaign against any "wets" in their locality.

SEE MOTHERS REGISTER

Men Accompany Parents to Obtain Vote Rights. Many men appeared before the commission today, bringing their mothers with them to register.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dyer, of 1322 East Montgomery avenue, appeared with her son, William P. Dyer. When she told the commissioners she was a native of Ireland, they asked her for the naturalization papers granted her husband. She said she died six years ago and that the papers had been lost. They put her on the registration list after her son had taken oath that his father had been naturalized.

WOMEN ARE REGISTERED

Delayed Enrollments Accepted by Commissioners. Women who appeared today before the registration commission were registered with little difficulty.

The Misses Emily and Laura Bell, of 1429 Spruce street, were among those whose names were placed on the registration lists. They were traveling on the three registration days. Their father, Dr. Charles Bell, was an extensive traveler, registered yesterday.

Among the other women who registered today was Mrs. Albert von Moschkat, wife of the Supreme Court justice. She lives at 2101 Leaning street and will vote at the Twentieth division polling place of the Seventh ward.

Locomotive's Spark Causes Fire

Fire caused, it is believed, by a spark from a locomotive, damaged the roof of an empty house at 1036 Callowhill street, at 6:45 o'clock this morning. The loss was trifling.

Fire in Freight Shed

Fire in the freight shed at Rowan street and the Philadelphia and Reading Railway crossing burned up several buckets of paint stored in the shed for the painting of pipes. The damage was trifling.

Presidential Candidates Discuss League Issue

Harding, speaking at Des Moines today, declared definitely for the rejection of the Wilsonian League of Nations.

FRENCHMAN DENIES PARIS IS A VAMPIRE

Spendthrift Americans See Only Superficial Life of City, Captain de Senechal Says

DEPLORES GREY STORIES

Captain F. de Senechal, president of Les Comrades de Combat, the French veteran organization which corresponds to the American Legion, said today that this country has gained a false notion of the moral qualities of the Parisians.

Captain de Senechal, holder of a Croix de Guerre and member of the Legion of Honor, is a former college professor, who enlisted as a private in the French army, though far past the age for active military service, and rose from the ranks to a captaincy.

He was sent to this country by Marshal Foch, who with Marshal Petain, is honorary president of Les Comrades de Combat, to attend the recent convention of the American Legion. He was at the Bellevue-Stratford today for luncheon as the guest of James A. Flaherty, supreme grand knight of the Knights of Columbus.

Wrong Impression of Paris. "Americans have acquired an unfortunate impression concerning Paris," said Captain de Senechal. "The stories of prodigal spending and dissipation that have come in the papers from America do not truthfully represent Paris as the Parisians know their great city."

Montmartre is far better known to the tourist and the French provincial than it is to the Parisian. I was born and bred in Paris, and lived there through most of a long lifetime, yet I have never been in Montmartre. This is true of most Parisians.

Paris and its environs make up a great city with a population of 6,000,000. The people who live in Paris are people who are frugal and degraded in no way beyond reason. The people who make up the real city are honest, God-fearing, hard-working folk, who take their pleasures soberly. The real Parisian likes to take his pleasure and recreation amid beautiful surroundings. He will go with his family to the Bois, or out into the country. He loves to frequent the art galleries. He is not a boulevardier.

Real Paris Hidden. "Unfortunately, Americans and other foreigners who come to Paris as a rule have more money than time to spend there. They never get away from the boulevards, they never get into the homes of Paris. They do not see the people of the city as they really are—working or quietly taking their ease with their families."

If these guests of ours could see Paris as we really are, they would find Paris much like any other large city. They would regret that those who come to visit Paris do not get into the city.

Captain de Senechal said that the convention in Cleveland had been wonderful and inspiring. The organization of the French veterans, with 200,000 members, in keeping with the title of the organization, "Comrades of Battle," no one may be admitted to membership who has not served his country under fire.

KANSAS ENTREATS WILSON

Governor Says Farmers Lose Heavily by Drop in Wheat Price. Wichita, Kan., Oct. 7.—(By A. P.)—Governor Allen late yesterday sent a telegram to President Wilson, calling attention to the sudden decline in the price of wheat and the serious losses being sustained by the farmers of this section of the country. He asked the President to take action to provide relief.

Governor Allen recommended in his telegram a "searching investigation" of the operations of the Chicago Board of Trade, where he said, speculators were trying to force the price of American grain wheat down to the low levels of Canadian wheat. Since removal of tariff restrictions, the telegram declared, Canadian wheat has sold at a lower price than the United States farmer can afford to accept.

Man Falls Dead; Employer Hurt

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 7.—When Louis Thorn, a painter, fell dead as he was walking along the street, his employer, Edmund McVaugh, rushed to the home of William Hiltner to telephone for a doctor. The vestibule of the house was torn up so that the floor might be tiled. McVaugh did not know this and pinned his head to the ceiling and dislocated his shoulder. Thorn's death was due to heart disease.

Brigadier General J. H. Patterson

New York, Oct. 7.—(By A. P.)—News of the death of Brigadier General John Henry Patterson, at Selkirk, N. Y., on Tuesday, was received here last night. He had been living on his farm at Selkirk since 1899, when he retired from the army on account of wounds received at the battle of El Caney, Cuba. He was a lieutenant colonel of the Twenty-second Infantry in that engagement, but a few months later was made a brigadier general.

In 1907 he received the Congressional Medal of Honor "for most distinguished gallantry in action at the Wilderness, May 5, 1864." He was born in New York City in 1843.

N. J. SENATOR URGES BILLION FOR CANAL

Frelinghuysen Pledges Support to Appropriation at Atlantic Waterways Convention

TRANSPORTATION IS NEED

Special Dispatch to Evening Public Ledger. Atlantic City, Oct. 7.—A billion dollar appropriation by Congress for inland waterways was urged by United States Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, in a stirring speech before the convention of the Atlantic Deep Waterways Association today. The senator's advocacy of inland waterways, and his pledge of support as a member of the Senate aroused the convention to a tumult of applause. Other members of Congress also pledged their aid, so that Mayor Moore, president of the association, said he was confident Congress would give more substantial aid than ever to the waterways program.

Senator Frelinghuysen argued that the New Jersey ship canal project completed would bring the attractive coal fields of Pennsylvania into closer touch with New England, prevent coal famines, and lower the price from $1 to $2 a ton.

Senator Frelinghuysen said that as a national policy the nation should supplement the merchant marine and railroad acts by developing inland waterways. In part, Senator Frelinghuysen said: "I think all men will agree, all good citizens, I mean, that our primary concern in this period of rebuilding should be the rehabilitation of the moral sense of our people, the re-establishment of a reverence for our constitution and a respect for our laws, the re-education of the nation, a re-determination to uphold and enlarge our devotion to American and American ideals."

"That, it seem to me, is our first concern and our first duty. America first should be our motto, and it should be made the vital principle, the dominating principle in our social and political life."

"It seems to me quite evident, however, that the expansion of our commerce and the perfection of our transportation systems are of chief concern in the solution of our economic problems."

"This fact was recognized by the sixtieth Congress when it passed two great reconstruction statutes, the merchant marine act and the railroad law. There two monumental pieces of legislation were enacted which are the pride of the machinery of the nation, in the development of its business, internal and external, interstate and international. These were two great, far-reaching statutes, whose force and value will increase with the lapse of time."

Transportation Inadequate. "As important and as valuable as the two laws I have indicated, we must acknowledge that we have not touched the surface in our plans to develop the nations materials welfare. The war made perfectly clear what many believed before, that our transportation systems were entirely inadequate before or during the war, it has been removed by the developments since. It has been demonstrated over and over again that our railroads cannot fully meet the increasing demands of business. Nor will they be able to do so in the years to come. In spite of the improved facilities, which I think we may confidently look for, as a result of the transportation act, the requirements of the world of trade will increase more rapidly than will the betterments of the railroads."

"With the elapse of years with the increased demands of trade, and the expansion of business, and with the development of new methods in our industrial economy, we are returning to original systems of communication, as supplemented by the developments since."

Deaths of a Day. DR. SAMUEL G. PRICE. Prominent Veterinarian Succumbs at Residence in Doylestown. Dr. Samuel G. Price, a widely known veterinarian, whose practice extended over half century, died last night at his home, 80 West State street, Doylestown, Pa. He was seventy-four years old and was active until last Monday, when he was forced to take to his bed.

Doctor Price was past master of the Doylestown Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, and was also prominent in Old Fellow circles. He is survived by his wife, Rachel Cadwallader, and one daughter, Mrs. John L. Du Bois. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Another question discussed was the effort being made by clubs to arouse young women to a sense of responsibility as voting citizens.

One of the principal speakers on the subject of the club was Mrs. H. H. Clark, of Woodbury, the first district vice president of the federation. Mrs. Clark made a forceful address of welcome.

The hostesses clubs of the meeting are the Haddon Fortnightly and the Loving Service clubs, of Haddonfield. At noon the women will have dinner in the parish house of Grace Episcopal Church, Haddonfield, and the afternoon will be devoted to the discussion of bettering present-day moral standards. Two hundred women came from every part of the state to attend the meeting.

ELWELL'S FATHER DEAD

Shock of Murder Led to Apoplexy. Pink Kimono to Be Sold. New York, Oct. 7.—(By A. P.)—Joseph S. Elwell, of Ridgeport, N. J., father of Joseph H. Elwell, sportsman and whist expert, who was murdered in his New York home last June, died today in a hospital at Paterson, N. J. Mr. Elwell never recovered from the shock of his son's death and suffered a stroke of apoplexy a week ago.

The first sale of personal property and household effects of the son realized a total of $19,328 yesterday. The highest price for any single article in the collection was paid when a Vienna vase sold for $385. A blood-stained rug which the auctioneer said bore evidence of the murder, brought $27.

The sale will continue until Saturday, on which day, the auctioneer said, the celebrated pink kimono, mentioned in the investigation of the crime, will be offered to the highest bidder.
