

CORTELYOU TO SEE MOORE TOMORROW

Conference Will Fix Director's Future as Head of Police Department

TO PLAN REORGANIZATION

Mayor Moore and Director of Public Safety Cortelyou are scheduled to hold a conference tomorrow on the subjects of the director's position in the city administration and reorganization of the Police Department.

The Mayor declined to discuss the reported differences between Director Cortelyou and himself and said it was very unfair to the director that such rumors should have arisen. "The director is not well," the Mayor added, "and the Mayor suggested that he take a rest."

In a statement late yesterday afternoon the Mayor said: "No decent, efficient officer or policeman need have any concern about the rumors of the last few days. Our inquiries pertain only to those who have not been living up to the regulations or who have been indulging in practices disgraceful to the main body of the force."

"There is no truth in the statement that either Magistrate Carson or Magistrate Meeley has been ousted from the Central Station by the Mayor. Both of those magistrates have been giving satisfactory service and they will be asked to serve again at Central Station after Magistrate Renshaw has presided for a month. Magistrate Renshaw has been added to the rotary list. There may be others as we go along."

STONES AND GLASS HOUSES

Coatesville Mayor's Rule on Souzes May Hit Home

The mayor of Coatesville has announced that he doesn't want any Philadelphia souzes getting off trains and disturbing his peaceful town.

He didn't make it clear, however, whether it made any difference if the intoxicated ones happened to be Coatesvillians who had got all wet inside while up in the metropolis. The fact that they might be taking the last train home didn't seem to catch the mayor's attention.

It is a long standing rule of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Reading Railway that no person who is visibly intoxicated can gain access to the train-sheds and the coaches. The gateman sees to that.

There comes a time, though, about 11:30 in the evening, when the question of heart enters into the case. Consider the plight of a man passenger who is showing evidence of being overindulged and on his way for the last train out to his nearby home.

That he is not in the best possible shape for travel cannot be denied. The ruling seems clear. But the gateman frequently has a heart and lets the reveler pass, charging his leniency to the general account of human weakness.

PENROSE TO ACT ON SPEAKERSHIP

Senator Expects to Confer With State Party Leaders—Whitaker Called "Feeler"

CONDITION IS IMPROVED

Senator Penrose expects to confer with leaders in the Republican state organization on the subject of the speakership some day next week. This was learned today from Leighton C. Taylor, the senator's secretary, who said that the senator was progressing rapidly toward recovery. In support of this it was pointed out that Senator Penrose has been using the telephone frequently within the last few days and that his

Those close to the senator insist that the basis of most of the reports of backward condition of his health is the fact that Dr. Penrose has insisted on a complete relaxation on the part of his brother, so that he may be able to attend to public business when the occasion really demands attention.

It was learned that Senator Penrose regards the Spruill-Crow support of Major Whitaker, of Chester, as a candidate for speaker as being in the nature of a "feeler" and not at all as definite. It is also known that State Chairman Crow feels that now is the time to give battle to the elements led by Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. Mr. Grundy himself had no comment to make on the situation.

In consequence of the complex conditions in the state organization, the political air was filled with rumors of deals and counter-deals. Some insisted that the Penrose-Grundy leadership would accept the candidacy of Major Whitaker in exchange for full recognition in the make-up of the committee. Others said that the Spruill-Crow faction was also dickering for the speakership, while others asserted that in the last analysis all elements would get together, particularly if Senator Penrose proves to be able to take a hand in the situation.

Meanwhile both Representatives Spangler and Whitaker are actively canvassing for votes. The Grundy element is back of Mr. Spangler.

Senator Crow, an administration leader in the State Legislature, will head the important finance committee of the Senate, the chairmanship long held by Governor Spruill when he was a member of the Senate. Senator Schultz, of Lehigh, is talked of for chairman of the Judiciary general committee.
