Nancy Wynne Talks of the Norris Party Last Night. She Anticipates Tonight's Ball With Pleasure

DID you ever see such weather? Positively you begin to wonder if the sun is ever coming out again. Every day you think, well, I guess I'll risk day taking an umbrella, surely the sun will come out, and every day it begins to drizzle and then rain and if you have your best bib and tucker on, it's not a fine idea. However, there's a silver lining to every cloud as we always find, even if the saying is true, and sooner or later said sun will smile upon us again.

And now boys and girls do you know that Christmas is only twenty-four days away and that up to Christmas Day we have something doing in the way of parties every single day. How are we going to do it, I ask you, how are we?

LAST night the Norrises danced for Elizabeth was a beautiful affair. It was given at the Ritz-Carlton and was a chiefly a debutante party, though a number of second year and older girls and men were invited.

Elizabeth looked very sweet in a frock of silver cloth trimmed with silver lace, with bright brown hair and dark eyes, and has a vivacious and very attractive manner.

She was accompanied by her aunt the late Miss Lizzie Norris, with whom "Aunt Ad" Thompson lived for many years. The younger generation, growing up whom every one loved and who always wore dainty bits of blue or pink with all of her costumes.

Miss Norris was a sister of Elizabeth's mother, Mrs. Emma Wilson, a daughter of the late Dr. Augustus Wilson of this city. Elizabeth's mother was Miss Emma Wilson, a daughter of the late Dr. Augustus Wilson of this city.

There were about 200 guests at the affair last night.

THIS evening we have the Charity Ball, which will open at half after eight with a concert and then the pageant is supposed to begin promptly at 9 o'clock.

I told you what an elaborate and beautiful pageant has been planned and you know of old how splendid the opening dance have been. So well executed and so interesting because of the girls and men who take part in them. Well tonight there will be five groups and it will be as beautiful as ever if not more so.

YORK heard me tell last spring of the work that a number of the girls who came to last year and some of this year's buds, too, are doing at the Seaman's home at Front and Queen streets. These girls have been going down there every Sunday in every month with Miss Whitaker Thompson, Miss Pauline Howie and several others who are interested to serve dinner to the children.

Well, the reason for all this is to tell you that Mrs. Thompson, Miss Howie and all the girls are getting in for a Christmas party at the Seaman's home next Monday evening and they are to have dancing after the card playing. They had an interesting affair at the Seaman's home last year, which enabled them to keep up the work during the summer and it would be too bad if they could not give an honest-to-goodness Christmas dinner this year. The party begins at 8 o'clock. Let's go.

KEEP your eyes and ears open these days for you observe many interesting things. For instance, the other day I happened to see a very little lady of my acquaintance going along the street. She was looking most awfully pretty and had a certain little air about her that made me say to myself, "Now, why is she so perky and very, very interested in everything and everybody? And then around the corner she came and she was so surprised. So Nancy knew right off that she'd come to meet him and was hoping and praying she would, although she would not let him know that she was going to give in soon, and say "yes," for anything. Nancy only hopes that he'll guess, too, because some of these young men who have a certain little air about them, they know that they will do, so these misses do make up their minds.

NANCY WYNNE.
