

101 RANCH RAIDED; 2 YOUTHS NABBED

"Marshmallow Roost," South Camden, Was Meeting Place of Boy Bandits, Police Say

MANY ROBBERIES PLANNED

The "101" Ranch, otherwise "Marshmallow Roost," in South Camden, was raided today.

John Ward, seventeen years old, of Gloucester, and Edward Hildenbrand, eighteen years old, of North Barbary street, this city, were captured, and on charges of having stolen quantities of copper wire belonging to a Camden company, were held without bail for the action of Camden grand jury.

Admissions made by Ward and Hildenbrand at the hearing indicate the "101 Ranch" was the meeting place of a half score of youths from fifteen to nineteen years. Around a blazing wood fire, it is said, these youngsters gathered at night and planned crimes of varied character. According to the statements of the prisoners, the last meeting held was for the purpose of planning hold-ups of six Kaalgin avenue merchants in Camden.

Information made available to the authorities through the confessions of Wade and Hildenbrand will result in other arrests, the Camden police say.

$100 Each Day for Limerick Fans

other. The fellow who wrote the first one didn't know what he was starting.

One by President Wilson
President Wilson has been a limerick fan all his life. While he was governor of New Jersey he wrote this one: For beauty I am not a star, There are others more handsome by far. But my face I don't mind it, 'Tis the people in front that I fear.

And there are limerick classics, too—jangling bits of nonsense that have gone all over the world and that are known to almost everybody. This one, for instance:

A tutor who tested the flute Tried to tutor two tooters to toot. He said the two to the tutor, "It's harder to toot or 'Tutor two tooters to toot'."

And then there's the famous one about the lady and the tiger, which never fails to convulse the children with laughter. Remember it? It goes like this:

There was a young lady of Niger Who smiled as she rode on a tiger, They came back from the ride With the lady inside.

And the smile on the face of the tiger, This missing last-line stunt offers chances for the most unexpected finishes of a thought. Here is one that is a gem of its kind and would have won a prize in any such contest as this:

There once was a lady from Guam Who said, "Now the sea is so calm I will swim for a lark." But she met with a shark— Let us now sing the 90th Psalm.

The Tale of the Doctor
The abbreviations that we customarily use in our writing can also be employed with humorous effect. Limericks galore have been written along this line, and some of them are puzzles as well as riddles, until you solve the twist on the abbreviation used as the standard. Thus:

There once was a dotful young Dr. Who picked up a pistol and Dr. To blow off his head. He took her to Isaac's and he And the odd combinations of words that you can get to rhyme with a name give good scope for ingenious rhymersters. Thus:

A woman as proud as old Lucifer Grew tired of her husband's abuser. So she called the police. Who compelled him to else. And he told her she was a "Limerick." The tutor who tested the flute has a rival in the world-famous one about Tate:

There was a young fellow named Tate Who dined with his girl at 5:08; But he hated to relate What that fellow named Tate And he told her she was a "Limerick."

And your children will love the one about the young lady whose lack of flesh caused her such a tragedy:

There was a young lady of Lynn Who was so exceedingly thin That when she essayed To drink lemonade, She slipped through the straw and fell in. You can see from all this how vitally important that last line is to a limerick. It is the line that has the "punch"; it gives pep to the wisp. You can take almost any four lines, leave the action suspended and then, by a clever manipulation of that last line, get a dozen different thoughts across, and each one a gem of wit.

That's what we are going to begin on Monday.

There isn't any more fascinating game for a family to play than to spend an evening trying to get a last line for a limerick. Try it yourself and see. Get the children about you after dinner and see if they don't think of wittier lines than the old folks. And remember the best part of it all—There's ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS EVERY DAY in it for somebody.

So, sit 'em! Go get 'em!

MORE DRY AGENTS PROBED

Assistant Enforcer Sees Possibility of New Indictments

John Croll, assistant prohibition enforcement officer for this district, said today that several prohibition agents besides the four under indictment at Pittsburgh, charged with extortion, are being investigated by prohibition officials here.

Mr. Croll would not disclose how many of the agents are under probe, or whether complaints had been received against their methods.

United States Attorney Driscoll, of the Pittsburgh district, today officially notified Mr. Croll that H. J. McCabe, J. H. Lebrun, C. P. Kilty and H. E. Thompson, Philadelphia prohibition agents, have been indicted in Allegheny county, charged with extortion in connection with their recent activities in Homestead.

Leo Crossen, chief prohibition enforcement officer for this district, left today for Washington to confer with Frank Kramer, national director of prohibition, as to what course the Philadelphia prohibition officials will take in connection with the indictment of the four agents.

Mr. Croll said the four agents had not yet been suspended, but with Mr. Crossen's return from Washington their badges would probably be taken from them.

MAYOR AIDS "ROOKIES"

Gains Release for Army Recruits Arrested on Way to Camp

Mayor Moore figured today in the adventure of thirteen army rookies on their way from New York to Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark., today.

On the way here, the men are said to have gambled and acted boisterously, and they were arrested by detectives of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Twenty-fourth and Chestnut street.

When they were arraigned in Central Station, Mayor Moore was sitting on the bench with Magistrate Renshaw. "They're new, and not such bad fellows," the Mayor commented, and the men were released and continued their journey.

LEIB APPEAL IS HEARD

Schuylkill County Politician Attacks Conviction on Tax Forgery Charge

Argument was heard in Superior Court today on the appeal of William Leib, the Schuylkill county politician, from his conviction and sentence to three to five years on the charge of forging tax receipts of the state treasurer.

Attorneys Carr and Whalen, representing the defendant, contend that the evidence in hand was not sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty on the forgery charges. Assistant District Attorney Maurer and Deputy Attorney General Swopes are representing the commonwealth. Pending the outcome of the appeal, Leib is at liberty on bail.

MOTHER WILL FIGHT FOR HER CHILDREN

Mrs. John E. Hauser Plans Legal Battle to Regain Offspring From Father

BOTH PARENTS WEALTHY

There will be a legal battle staged by Mrs. John E. Hauser for the recovery of her two small sons abducted by their father, John E. Hauser, yesterday from in front of the mother's home at 4088 Powelton avenue.

Mrs. Hauser, who is a young, attractive brunette, took the first step toward the recovery of her children this morning by calling George D. Wanger, her lawyer, into consultation. After spending some time at the Powelton avenue house Mr. Wanger left in company with Mrs. Hauser.

It was late last evening that Mr. Hauser drove near the Powelton avenue address in a big touring car and made the spectacular recovery of his children. John, nine years old, happened to run out of the house and saw his father. There was a brief exchange of greetings and the information given that the boys were to come home with their father. John ran in the house and got Teddy, who is six, and soon the automobile was speeding toward Glenside.

Two weeks ago while he was in Jefferson Hospital recovering from a siege of illness of six months' duration, Mr. Hauser was advised that his wife had left Glenside, taking the two children with her. From his hospital bed he then retained Francis X. Renninger, district attorney of Montgomery county, as private counsel. Yesterday's incident was the result.

District Attorney Renninger early today said in reference to the case: "The children were not kidnapped. Admittedly a little clever work developed in securing custody of them. Mrs. Hauser willfully deserted her husband, and Mr. Hauser, under the circumstances, was entitled to custody of his children."

"It is true that Mrs. Hauser has talked about instituting divorce proceedings, but she has no basis on which to make a petition of this type. If a divorce suit is instituted it should be by the husband—and likely will."

The children were taken while Mrs. Hauser was out shopping. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hauser are independently wealthy. Mr. Hauser is a builder.

CARLTON CLOTHES SHOP

Greatest Clothing Sale Ever Known to Philadelphia

10,000

Suits and Overcoats

Every Suit with Two Pairs of Pants

At less than it costs my factories to make them

Ever since I opened this big, new, up-one-flight store in this city last September, I have been wondering just how to get this Two-Pants Suit idea across in a really big way to you men of Philadelphia.

To thousands of you who have bought from me I have already shown its advantages. But I'm not satisfied with that. The Two-Pants Suit idea is too big. It is too good for any half-way measures. Because of this, I want to demonstrate it, absolutely, to you ALL.

For four solid weeks I have been getting ready. For four solid weeks I've been scouring the woolen markets for their best materials. For four solid weeks every member of my Carlton tailoring organization, every man jack of them, has been working every waking hour to make up the 10,000 garment stock that is under the hammer in this sale.

I don't want any man to get the impression that this is just "another one of those sales." If you feel that way about it, one look into my downstairs window-case, or five minutes up-stairs on the floor, will convince any fair-minded man that, in so thinking, he is mistaken.

There are over 10,000 Two-Pants Suits and Overcoats here from which 10,000 people are going to get the biggest clothing bargains they ever heard of in their lives—

Brand-new merchandise, every suit of it, the woollens bought at today's low prices, made up in my New York factories, and every suit and overcoat at an average of 10% less than actual factory cost.

Why am I doing it? Just as a quick way to get this big Two-Pants Suit idea across to every man in Philadelphia.

If ever men's clothes were sold in this city at profitless prices, I'm going to sell them now.

Nearly Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Clothing—and Here's How I've Used the Dynamite on the Prices

"WHAT DE' DEBIL' YOU-ALL LAUGHIN' AT ANYHOW?"

For the past two years, owing to difficulty in securing wheat of the high grade necessary in producing Cream of Wheat, also in securing railroad transportation, we have found it impossible, at all times, to fill our orders as promptly as we would like to. . . We are happy to say, however, that we are now in position to fill all orders promptly.
