

SON BOB GREERS MRS. STILLMAN

"Treat 'Em Rough," He Writes From School in New York

SCORES POINT IN COURT

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 17.—"It's been a wonderful day—a wonderful day for us in court."

That was the word Mrs. Stillman brought to the Mack household after yesterday's examinations and cross-examinations in the little room in Poughkeepsie—"full of men chewing gum and smoking tobacco"—was over.

At 6 o'clock Mrs. Stillman stepped out of her automobile in front of her lawyer's home in the center walk to the four porch steps at a jump and darted into the house to deliver the news. She said she was "radiantly happy," and she looked it.

It was a morning for a day such as this, she added with a sweep of her arm toward the out doors.

Down in New York City, where he is being "trammed" for "adverse" examinations—the kind of thing which Mrs. Stillman, Jr., who took his mother's name from the very start of the singular domestic trial, found time to send along this message.

"Treat 'em rough, mother. Lots of love. I don't that just like him?" said his mother in the kind of way who says a great deal in a few words.

Dr. Russell's Little Book Documental evidence in the form of the memorandum book of Dr. Hugh L. Russell, the Buffalo osteopath, was brought out in his cross-examination by attorney George H. Herchenrider, the plaintiff, was at Montauk, the Stillman county estate at Pleasantville, N. Y., on May 9 and January 7, 1918.

Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller, sister of Mr. Stillman, testified on Wednesday that to the best of her knowledge Mrs. Stillman was constantly at the home of her father, the late James Stillman, Jr., East Seventy-second street, from January 1 to April 1, 1918, and similar testimony was given by former servants of the family.

The evidence was in the form of entries in Dr. Russell's memorandum book which on the face indicate that he had treated Mr. Stillman, Mrs. Stillman, their son, Alexander Stillman, and Frankie Beauvais, the young nephew of Frank Beauvais, at Pleasantville on January 9, 1918, and Alexander Stillman, Frankie Beauvais and Fred Beauvais on January 27.

On redirect examination, Colonel William Hand Russell testified that the entry of Mr. Stillman's name on these two occasions was a mistake and that the name of Stillman was not in the entries. Each of the entries showed indication of erasures, and John E. Mack, special guardian of Guy Stillman, questioned Dr. Russell as to whether the name of H. Phelps Gleason, of Buffalo, had not been entered as one of his patients at Pleasantville and then erased. Dr. Russell said he did not know what had been originally entered or when the erasures were made.

Dr. Russell was asked what Mrs. Stillman had said to him about Guy Stillman when he visited her at the Woman's Hospital on the day of the day after Guy was born. Mr. Mack objected to this on the ground that such information was privileged as being between patient and physician and the objection was sustained by Referee Gleason.

A woman stopped Patrolman Albert at Twenty-eighth street and Westfield avenue, Camden, last night, and told him she had seen several hold-ups of motorists on Marlton Pike between Kaigh avenue and Ellipsisburg, by two men on a motorcycle and sidecar.

A man this morning telephoned to police headquarters in Camden and said he had been robbed last night on Marlton pike, but he refused to give his name.

LIVELY MAY BE SUICIDE Man Answering Description Said to Have Leaped From N. Y. Boat

A suicide theory in connection with the escape of Louis Lively, the Moorestown Negro, accused of murdering seven-year-old Mattia Russo in that town, is now being advanced. A report has it that a Negro, much resembling Louis Lively, leaped from a New York ferry boat yesterday.

The suicide was reported to a detective, who noted the similarity between the description of the suicide and that of the missing Moorestown Negro. Police yesterday dragged the Hudson River and found the body of a man who was identified as Lively.

More than 10,000 police files with four different sets of Lively's photographs taken from the rogues' gallery and a set of fingerprints have been mailed to the police of every town in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and to Southern States.

URGЕ WOMEN POLICE Medical College Alumnae Asks Women Voters to Act

A resolution calling for a police-woman's bureau in Philadelphia was received today by the League of Women Voters from the Women's Medical College Alumni Association. The resolution urged that the League take up the matter with Council.

The resolution was passed at the conclusion of the Medical Society's forty-third annual meeting after a recommendation was made by Miss Elizabeth Balo, field secretary of the American Social Hygiene Association, of New York, who told of the reforms accomplished by similar bodies in other cities.

Philadelphia's non-reservation, if the city has them, will patrol streets, and direct searches for missing girls, and exercise supervision over moving picture theatres and dance halls.

Begin Church Farm School Building Ground will be broken at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the new administration building of the Church Farm School at Glen Loch, and dedicatory exercises will be held at the building, Woodside and St. Martins, which will take place at the same time.

Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander will officiate and will be assisted by Edward W. Mumford, secretary of the University of Pennsylvania, and Clarence Sears Kates, secretary of the Rural Progress Association. A devotional and musical program will also be held.

KILLMAYOR'S DANCE BILL

Council Defeats Women Inspector Plan—"Let Police Do It"

Mayor Moore's dance regulation ordinance aimed at the vulgar and immoral exhibitions of which many complaints have been made, was put to death yesterday.

Council's Public Safety and Public Welfare Committees in joint session sent the ordinance back to Council with a negative report, without dissenting vote and after Director Justin had made a strong appeal for favorable action.

Councilman Charles B. Hall led the opposition to the regulation ordinance. "I heartily applaud the Mayor for his efforts to stop these vulgar dances," he said, "but to create four or five useless places for investigators is unnecessary when the Mayor and the Director of Public Safety have 5000 policemen at their command."

"The solution of the trouble is up to the police. All the Director of Public Safety has to do is to issue orders to the forty-two police lieutenants that immoral dancing in their districts must stop. They can stop it in five minutes."
