

WARRANTS FOR 3
PARR MURDER

Will Extradite Harry Reinschreiber and Matthew Bonkowski, Held in Trenton

THIRD SUSPECT SOUGHT

Three warrants were issued today in the case of the murder of Mrs. Sarah Parr, 2055 Granite street, the eighty-five-year-old woman who was robbed and beaten to death by three assailants in her home last Friday.

Two of these warrants are for the youths arrested in Trenton yesterday and held there awaiting extradition. The other is for the man believed to be their accomplice. While the prisoners, who confessed to their part in the crime, claim they don't know the man who was with them, police believe they have the right one. They are withholding his name, but admit he has a long prison record.

Immediately after the warrants were issued steps were taken to get extradition papers for Harry Reinschreiber, nineteen years old, formerly of 2524 North Twentieth street, and Matthew Bonkowski, seventeen years old, Bridgeport, Conn., who lived at 723 Oden street while in this city.

From the start the two prisoners seemed willing to talk, it is said, and signed a written confession detailing their part in the murder and robbery, which also included a savage assault on Edward Reed, brother of the slain woman. A woman who was with them at the time of the crime was not suspected of being connected with the killing.

She gave her name as Miss Celia Gamble, twenty-two years old, 2261 North Muttler street, Philadelphia, but it was learned later that her right name is Mrs. Jane Salomon. She is living apart from her husband and has been using her maiden name. The men were taking her to New York when arrested.

The police have obtained or accounted for all the stolen money, except sixteen gold-pieces. The loot was divided three ways, according to the confession. Fourteen gold-pieces were taken from Reinschreiber and both men told how they had spent the others. While searching the men the police failed to find sixteen gold-pieces that Bonkowski had on his person, according to the two confessions. In their cell they were at first going to throw them away, they said, but decided to give them to the turnkey. Detectives are investigating the matter, allowing a complete denial of it by the turnkey.

Reinschreiber did most of the talking, but when the money was typed up, Bonkowski also signed it. The youths said the crime was suggested by Bernard Mott, twenty-seven years old, husband of the murdered woman's granddaughter.

It was on information furnished by him that the police sent out the flyers that resulted in the arrest of Reinschreiber and Bonkowski. According to the confession, Reinschreiber and Bonkowski met at a third man, whom they say they know only as "Isitt." "Isitt" suggested that they get "easy money" by robbing the aged brother and sister of a man who lives at 3251 North 22d street, Philadelphia.

Reinschreiber said that they went, led by the missing man, to the Parr home. "Isitt" was waiting in the room, the others being employed, forced a screen at the back and got into the house. Before going in "Isitt" handed the youths a knife. Reinschreiber and Bonkowski told the police that they had intended to hit the other man with it if he attempted an outcry. The two prisoners stayed downstairs, they say, while the other man sneaked up to the room where Mrs. Parr was sleeping.

WELFARE SLOGAN SOUGHT

Federation of Many Charities Asks Public for Suggestions

Wanted—A slogan! A short, snappy slogan with a heart punch and spread its charity to every corner of Philadelphia.

An appeal for such a slogan has been made by the Welfare Federation of Philadelphia, the new organization that will consolidate many of the charity and social service associations in one agency, and which is preparing for its first annual convention to be held at the headquarters, Fifteenth and Spruce streets, at the earliest possible moment.

The slogan must visualize the following points: First, by putting on one great annual slogan drive, there will be eliminated the multiplicity of individual appeals.

Second, the annoyances of multiplied campaigns will be removed. Third, the economies effected by a single slogan drive will place much waste and duplication of effort, time and funds.

Fourth, the present 2 1/2 per cent of the population of Philadelphia should be reduced to one per cent, by the use of the slogan drive, which, under the one-campaign-a-year plan, supports that city's charities.

Fifth, the plan will bring about a new civic conception of the community's obligations toward its sick and destitute at present prevails.

RAP MENACE TO HEALTH

Residents of Seventy-ninth Street and Eastwick Avenue Complain

Living conditions surrounded by insanitary sewage, mud walls and stagnant pools are being complained of by residents of the section near Seventy-ninth and Eastwick avenue. Efforts to have municipal authorities improve the condition have failed, residents say, and the matter has been laid before Councilman Connell, who has pledged himself to get some action.

"My thirteen-year-old daughter is in the hospital with scarlet fever and diphtheria as the result of bathing in one of those pools," said William McTearh, leader of the committee appointed by citizens of the locality to see if conditions could not be improved. "We cannot keep the children from playing there, and they are made ill by the disease which breeds in the stagnant water. Our water supply is terrible—only one small pipe to supply twenty homes near Island road. When my daughter was ill, it was impossible to obtain water in the house until after midnight, as every one tries to use the water during the day."

HAS LOTS OF PUSH

Gloucester Man Prods Peanut Around City Hall

Owen Harding, of Gloucester, N. J., has lots of push. He used it last night in convincing a peanut with a cloth napkin up Broad street and around City Hall.

This was the penalty that Harding had to pay for betting on George Carpentier in the recent fight with Jack Dempsey. William Jennings, who bet on Dempsey, was master of ceremonies. A peanut caddy went along with Harding, and he had a fresh nut every time the one he was escorting had a blizzard.

The peanut sailed smoothly on cement sidewalks, but it required delicate handling in getting over the curb with a blow. Harding accomplished the feat in 1 hour 12 minutes and 4 seconds.

OIL SCHEDULE FIGHT RESUMED IN HOUSE

Treadway Amendment, Providing for Free Entry, Subject of Debate

FINAL VOTE ON THURSDAY

By the Associated Press Washington, July 18.—The House resumed today consideration of the proposed oil tax in the Fordney tariff bill and a vote of 45 to 40. In a limit of three and one-half hours of debate. Discussion centered around the Treadway amendment, introduced Saturday, which would transfer crude and fuel oils from the dutiable to the free list.

The vote might come at 2:30 P. M. Washington time, but there was demand for a longer period for debate. It appeared possible that an extension might be arranged later.

Leaders on the Ways and Means Committee were seeking to get the oil tax out of the way by mid-afternoon. Under the special rule governing consideration of the tariff bill, a final vote is due late Thursday. In the meantime, however, the House has to dispose of the oil question and take separate votes on raw cotton and asphalt.

Whether cotton should be transferred to the dutiable list presents another problem likely to bring stormy sessions, and leaders said it probably would be a repetition of the fight for a duty on hides.

Consideration of the tariff bill thus far has been in Committee of the Whole House, and therefore, before the final vote on the bill is taken, it is probable that the membership will originate on the five contested schedules—hides, dyes, oil, cotton and asphalt.

For the reason that another vote can be had on the oil question, and the provisions of the bill have to be approved, it is probable that the House will have to reverse its previous action.

NEAR EAST PLEAS MADE

More Than Twenty Congregations Listen to Appeals

"Fill the Relief Ship" was the slogan in more than a score of churches yesterday in connection with the appeal of the Near East Relief to send a shipload of supplies from the Port of Philadelphia to famine-stricken Syria.

Colonel John Price Jackson, a member of the Harbord Military Mission to Turkey and Armenia, told a large congregation in the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church, Broad and Diamond streets, that the Near East Relief has served 1,000,000 persons from starvation.

"Ninety-five cents out of every dollar that is given the Near East Relief goes to famine to aid famine sufferers," said the speaker. "Colonel Jackson said, 'I will contribute to the fund of those working for the Near East Relief in the stricken countries, saying that many of these men and women deserve the medal of honor given by the United States.'"

The speaker said that upward of 50,000 barrels of flour will be sent on the ship which leaves this city, and he asked his hearers to pay for as many of those barrels as possible.

Major George K. Weston and Lieutenant Edward Herz, veterans of the World War who served with the Near East Relief, also delivered appeals to fill the relief ship. They spoke in the Moravian Church, Third Moravia Church and the Cookman Methodist Episcopal Church.

FLOWERS TO CARRY CHEER INTO HOMES OF THE POOR

Art Alliance Calls on Suburbanites Who Would Brighten Up Lonely Lives to "Say It With Posies"

Shoppers and tourists who happened into the Art Alliance Station about 11 o'clock this morning, were glad they did. For in the train-shed, in the middle of the general atmosphere of cinders, tapers and newspapers, those who had their eyes cast on the flowers in the display case were struck by the beauty of the flowers.

The occasion was the installation by the Philadelphia Art Alliance of a receptacle for flowers which will be distributed during the summer in sections of the city where there are unknown and neglected homes. The idea is for commuters and country dwellers, to whom an extra flower or so on the garden wall or along the well-trimmed beds do not make much difference, to bring in a bouquet and drop it in the receptacle as they come to the city in the morning.

To start things going, the Art Alliance called on the members of the girls deposit the first flowers this morning. The girl in the afore-mentioned yellow was Miss Elizabeth Jenney, and another girl who brought a bouquet was Miss R. Dickinson, the latter a Trenton girl. They brought dewy and attractive bunches of gladiolas and corydalis.

PASTOR'S WIFE ENDS HER "PLATONIC ELOPEMENT"

Asserts She Was Driven Wild by Religious Fanaticism at Home

Rutherford, N. J., July 18.—Mrs. Clark Durea, wife of the founder and pastor of the Church of the Holy Innocent, in Monticello, N. Y., who went away from that town last week with the husband of another woman, is going back home today.

It wasn't an elopement, anyhow, she said yesterday, but a platonic excursion, undertaken on her part, because she was driven wild by the religious fanaticism of her husband, whom Monticello calls a "Holy Roller."

"For the sake of my two children," she said, "I will go back to my husband. Earl (Earl van Nooy, Mrs. Durea's fellow pilgrim) and I never eloped. My husband cooked my breakfast the day we went away, kissed me and told me to send him a week from today at Poughkeepsie."

The text of two letters written by H. Phelps Clawson, assistant treasurer of the Marine Trust Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., to his mother, Mrs. John L. Clawson, of 1109 Delaware avenue, Buffalo, was obtained yesterday. Both letters and the text of a third letter, written to the Rev. G. S. Stillman, independent of the record of the suit at last Friday's session in Poughkeepsie, when Mr. Clawson testified.

The letters were written while Clawson was serving as a private in the Fifteenth Aero Squadron, then stationed at Hazelhurst Field, Mineola. In one, dated January 27, 1918, he wrote that he was in an apartment at Stillman on that date at Pleasantville, N. J. Stillman's presence there at that time would virtually prove the defense's contention that the defendant's story of access. The second Clawson letter was dated January 6. In this missive he did not mention Mr. Stillman as being in the apartment, but in testimony in connection with the letter he swore the banker was there.

FACE MAY CURB MAKING OF ARMS

Sub-Commission Sees Necessity for Ratification of Pact Restricting Sales

U. S. BLAMED FOR DELAY

Paris, July 18.—Disarmament was discussed today by the subcommission of the temporary mixed commission for the reduction of armaments, appointed by the League of Nations, which began sessions here Saturday. The sub-commission's sessions were private. They will continue until it has framed reports for the full commission.

The first question taken up today was that of traffic in arms. The sub-commission decided that one of the first essentials in this connection was to secure ratification of the convention signed at St. Germain at the same time as the Austrian peace treaty, prohibiting the sale of arms in Africa and other places where such sales would be likely to encourage trouble.

Ratification by European Powers of this convention is declared by members of the commission to have been delayed because the United States failed to ratify it.

The sub-commission also discussed the private manufacture of arms, which is attended by many dangers, and looked into ways and means of controlling such manufacturers.

Another sub-commission, presided over by Rene Viviani, ex-Premier of France, took up the question of control of armaments by mutual agreement. Leon Johann, labor representative from France, offered his proposed amendments to the convention, which cover the subject of discussion. The sub-commission will decide later whether to report the amendments to the League of Nations by the assembly of the league.

CANADIAN DIVORCE WITNESS

Author of Book on Marriage Sued as Result of Trip

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 18.—An action for divorce has been begun here by the Supreme Court Justice Joseph Joseph Morshauer by Mrs. Alinee Morris against Dr. Robert T. Morris, of New York. A young woman, not named, is cited as co-respondent, and the charges charged are alleged to have been committed in Canada and near Stamford, Conn.

Two witnesses testified, William Yates, a Canadian farmer and guide, living in the Algona district of Ontario, and Peter Volonizy, who said he had been employed by the Morris as a gardener on the Morris country place near Stamford.

Yates testified that in July, 1920, Dr. Morris engaged him as guide in Canada. There were three persons in the party, the guide, including himself, the defendant and a young woman companion.

"The defendant did not introduce his woman companion to me," Yates said, "but called her his secretary. They were alone a considerable part of the time while we were on the trip."

Dr. Morris is the author of several widely read books on marriage, including "Doctors vs. Men" and "Microbes and Men." In the last named book Dr. Morris gives the view of marriage: "Marriage is a social contract, not a legal one, and that it is to endure for a million years or more as a fixed custom. Marriage is a social contract, not a legal one, and that it is to endure for a million years or more as a fixed custom. WILL USE ASPHALT

Pottsville Mayor and Councilmen Think It Best for City Streets

Pottsville, Pa., July 18.—Mayor Mortimer and members of City Council, who have just arrived home after inspecting a number of asphalt streets in the local city, have definitely decided, as the result of their observations, to spend more than $500,000 on new asphalt streets for this city. Work on a number of streets will begin at once.

The adaptability of asphalt on streets for cities such as Pottsville, where the grades are very steep at places, was demonstrated by the inspection of such streets elsewhere convinced the city officials the investment made in asphalt could be made with safety. The officials say some of the asphalt streets inspected here in use here for four or five years and have endured heavy traffic. This city has been using wood blocks for paving, but the present high price of this material is considered prohibitive.

"After several days of battle our troops occupied positions which the enemy had carefully organized and where they had concentrated heavy artillery," the statement declared. "On July 16 the fighting resulted in a victory for us along the entire front. The enemy, almost completely hemmed in, was forced to fight a rearguard action while retreating."
