C. H. S. UNABLE TO GET TRACK MEETS

Other Schools Decline to Schedule Indoor Competitions With Dr. O'Brien's Runners

BATTERIES SHY AT W. PHILA.

By PAUL PREP
CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL, for the first time in its history, is unable to schedule a single track meet. Indoor track competition started in the Philadelphia public high schools about twenty years ago. Since then Central High, with one exception, has ruled supreme. The Mirrors won the annual "Quads" every year except 1917, when West Philadelphia High School carried off the honors. Coached by Dr. Matthew C. O'Brien, one of the greatest track tutors that ever instructed, the Central and Gold has wrapped every rival. Very seldom has Dr. O'Brien coached a team that was near defeat, outside of the 1917 aggregation. He has developed track athletes, "from the ground up." Every boy who comes under his care is nursed along from the elemental stages to the finished product. This means that when Dr. O'Brien puts a team on the track it knows every angle of the sport, and, consequently, is ahead of other teams in experience. Last year, as usual, Central won the indoor "Quads." The team came through with ease and no one was surprised. But for some reason or other, when the Supervisory Committee on Athletics of the Philadelphia Public High Schools met last fall, indoor track was abolished. Strange to say, every institution in the Interscholastic League voted against the competition with the exception of Central.

Nothing Doing
However, the Supervisory Committee's ruling did not state that the schools would have to stop indoor track altogether. Only the annual "Quads" were abolished. Every one supposed the schools would arrange duels. But nothing of the sort has happened. Virtually every public high school in the city has an indoor team, but when Central tries to arrange a meet the other schools say nothing doing.

Dr. O'Brien has been training his athletes for the last month. He has been sending the boys through light workouts and is vainly trying to schedule meets.

No Catcher at West Philadelphia
Coaches Lukens and Ellis, of West Philadelphia High's baseball team, recently issued a call for battery candidates. Out of twenty-two interested students, only six reported for the practice. And, to make matters worse, two of these youngsters had been on the varsity squad last year.

"Chick" Austin and "Phil" Mower are two boys back from last year's team. George Pawling, Jr., formerly of Episcopal Academy, and "Joe" Alt-house, last season's Freshman pitcher, are the two other promising candidates. All of these youths are twirlers.

Messrs. Lukens and Ellis are wondering what they are going to do for a backstop this season. "Joe" Bogart, last year's captain, who did the catching, has decided to play in the outfield. Bogart injured his index finger last season and doesn't want to take any more chances. "Ding" Powers, who relieved Bogart, also is an outfielder, and wants to go back to his old post in left field. However, if one is found capable of holding down the receiving position, either Bogart or Powers is willing to take the job again. The remainder of the team will be the same as last year. Captain "Al" Pasquerella, first base; "Woody" Cook, second base; "Pot" Elliott, shortstop; "Pete" Miller, third base; "Potter" right field; Bogart, center field; and Powers, left field.

HANLON FOULS PIMPUS

Philadelphia Boxer Disqualified in Bout at Atlantic City
Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 9.—Terry Hanlon, of Philadelphia, fouled Billy Pimpus, of Atlantic City, in the second round of their scheduled eight-round bout at the Northside Club here last night. Pimpus had the better of the argument in the first frame. Hanlon shot a wicked right, which struck the boxer's left eye, and Pimpus doubled up in a neutral corner from pain. Referee Harry Ertle disqualified the Philadelphia boxer. Jackie Bahel, of Atlantic City, won over Mickey Connors, of Philadelphia, in a corking eight-round encounter. The Atlantic City boxer had four rounds, while the Quaker City battler was given credit for two sessions and the others were even. Bobby Burns, of this city, and Buddy Daly, Father Penn's entry, fought one of the most sensational bouts seen here in some time. There was a heavy bet on choice between the two boxers at the finish.

Haverford Grads Stagger To Breathless Triumph

Main Line Alumni, Using Straight-Arm Effectively, Crawls to 16-13 Win Over Varsity Five—Every Cigarette Registers a Kick

"When the Lancers came into the arena, the crowd, craning its necks, and waving their hands for the first time in years, saw the revised version of Morris D'Arthur."

THAT old piece of unexcusable dogma to the effect that "they never come back" was decisively disproved last night. Basketball stars who have twinkled in the Haverford College firmament in the past came back to the old school for a game with the varsity, and when the smoke and dust cleared away at the end of the argument they staggered out on the long end of a 16-13 score.

The stellar aggregation which donned the mail last night was gathered from near and far for the event. The nearest was "Weenie" Graves, who lives on the campus; the farthest was "Hoop" Hurritt, who holds down a job as executive secretary of the Abington Y. M. C. A. It may be stated, however, that the latter is no tea-drinker. Then other warriors for the affirmative included "Eagleback" Williams, the noted jester and track performer; Neil Gilmore, former football captain and strong man; Phil Corson, the sterling all-round athlete, and others who stood ready—in fact, did jump into the breach at the vital moment.

Early Speed
The play of the alumni in the first three minutes of the game was characterized by a brilliant display of dash and speed. Their meteoric flight around the floor resulted in the quick acquisition of several double-deckers in a row. They scintillated. Then the varsity got busy with their short passing game, and things were evened up. There was a short pause, during which Eagleback, festooned about the neck of Corson for support, was heard to whisper to the affirmative: "Why, oh, why did I eat that last apple dumpling?"

The game continued, with no let-up in the strenuous play. Both sides were out for blood, and there was a reasonably good prospect of getting some. Then time was called again, and the majority of the invaders dropped flat on their backs, expressing feeble inquiries as to how much longer they had to live.

With one minute to go in the first half the alumni assisted one another to their feet and plunged into the fray again. Gilmore appeared after a short line buck, two snappy passes, three falls, one stumble, four shots, and the alumni has garnered another basket, just as the whistle blows. Score at the end of the first half, 7-7.

Carried to Stidelines
In the period between the halves, there was some spirited conversation on the sidelines, whether the alumni squad had been carried.

"Too much smoking," observed Corson, with ghastly facetiousness. "You really—uh—must cut—it out, John."

"Shut up," returned Eagleback faintly, clutching his diaphragm. "I've—get—out—of—this—alive—I'll—take—up—embroidery—for—exercise."

The second half witnessed one of the most frantic struggles in the annals of basketball. No quarter was asked, and none was given, beyond the two into which this period was divided at the earnest behest of the alumni.

COUNTY FAIR RACE STEWARDS MEET

Banquet Follows All-Day Session of Association in Hotel Lorraine
Dates for Fair Meets
Kutztown, August 22 to 25.
Lebanon, August 29 to September 1.
Philadelphia, September 4 to 9.
Reading, September 11 to 16.
Nazareth, September 12 to 16.
Allentown, September 17 to 21.
Lancaster, September 25 to 30.
York, October 2 to 7.

Delegates from sixty county fairs of the Pennsylvania State Association met in the Hotel Lorraine, Broad street, and Fairmount and Center streets, Philadelphia, last night for an all-day session. The banquet followed at 10 o'clock in the morning and there was action aplenty until midnight when the guests pulled their feet from beneath the banquet table.

The banquet was a big affair, for all banquets which horsemen give usually are big. Lieutenant Governor Bellman and Senator A. F. Dix, Jr., were among the speakers. Mr. Bellman refused to confirm or deny the report that he would be the next Governor. He did say that he was opposed to squandering county funds off the subject of a State fair. This made a bit. No advocates for a State fair attended the banquet.

John R. K. Scott was supposed to be one of the "men of the evening," but when Starter A. E. Leathman called "em to the wire it was discovered that Mr. Scott had been drawn. There was music and songs for everybody. Miss Elizabeth Bodley, the angel with the golden voice, sang three pleasing selections.

When it came to real entertainment Howard McNab, on "How to Make the Horseman Happy," paced a fast mile.

The report of Secretary J. F. Selondridge showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition, including practically all the local bodies of the State. John C. Simpson, of Springfield, Mass., gave an interesting discussion on county fairs. Betterment of the county fairs was the subject of a talk by Marvin M. Smith, of Buffalo. A general discussion on how to benefit our county fairs followed. The address of A. H. Gosden, president of the Union Trotting Association, on "Trotting Horse," closed the afternoon session.

BRITISH GOLFERS PLAN CHANGES

Leading Players Petition for Championship Systems Used in America
London, Feb. 9.—Changes in the regulations governing both the English and Scotch amateur golf championships appear probable. Petitions or suggestions from players of both sexes requesting extension of qualifying rounds have received considerable support and will be considered at coming meetings of the national organizations.

The American opposition to the English system of eighteen holes play in amateur golf tournaments, without qualifying rounds, appears to have met in annual meeting yesterday at the Hotel Lorraine, Broad street, and Fairmount and Center streets, Philadelphia. A petition heavily in favor of revising the conditions for the 1922 amateur championship is ready for presentation to the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club.

The petition, accompanied by a circular, was sent a month ago to all players who took part in the amateur championships of 1920 and 1921, excepting the American competitors, who were known to endorse the reforms suggested. The new conditions include primarily a thirty-six-hole stroke qualifying competition, thirty-two players to qualify, followed by matches over thirty-six holes. If reforms of all the competition consisted in match play and, excepting the semi-finals and final, was over eighteen holes. The last two rounds were played over the full thirty-six holes.

A total of 247 players were canvassed by the petitioners for reform. Of these, 148 have replied, 129, including a majority of the leading amateurs, being in favor of the suggested new conditions and nineteen opposing them.

Agitation to reform the ladies' open championship along similar lines, providing for qualifying rounds and longer matches, has also much support.

Miss Cecil Leitch, the present title-holder and leading internationalist, is reported to be promoting a new tournament plan which she will propose in the form of a resolution at the annual council meeting of the Ladies' Golf Union, on February 10.

Women Plan

It is understood that the Executive Committee of the ladies' organization is introducing an amendment making the following alterations in Miss Leitch's plan:

Two rounds of medal play on two separate days; then thirty-two players to qualify for the match play; each match to consist of one round of eighteen holes excepting the final, which would be over thirty-six; ties in the medal play to be decided on the first eighteen or nine holes respectively, according to necessity.

The ladies' championship, since its inception in 1895, has been decided by matches over eighteen holes, with the exception of the final, which, since 1913, has been over thirty-six holes.

It is believed here that the proposed revisions would be popular with the American players, of whom there are a number annually.

Brewer is a former Indiana University football star and has had considerable experience in coaching work.
