

WOMEN MARCH "BOYNE WATER"

Worn Hats, Waving Plumes and Bands Mark Anniversary of Famous Battle

PICNIC FOLLOWS AT PARK

To the strains of "Boyne Water" and "Rule Britannia" from files and trumpets, 1100 members of the Loyal Order of Orange paraded here today.

Many of them were dressed in costumes with orange sashes and hand-dollars displaying the various degrees of the order. A few were mounted and carried swords.

About a third of those in line were women and girls. There were also a number of small children and these had the place of honor.

As a matter of fact, there were two parades, representing the two factions into which the order was split some years ago over the question of temperance.

The largest parade was that of the "Orange." It was led by William A. McConnell, the grand marshal. Marshals in bandoliers and San Juan hats were sprinkled through the line.

The parade was composed of Samuel Johnson, Robert Simpson, Charles Stewart, Robert Hill and John Tyrrell.

Bagpipe "Band" Performs The Caledonian bagpipe band with its "performing" drummer was a feature. There was one float and a miniature public school house carried by some children.

The marchers proceeded to Girard avenue, disbanded and went directly to Woodside Park for the customary "Boyne Day" outing.

In preparation for the anniversary the members of the organization attended divine service in a holy Sunday evening at the Beason Presbyterian Church, East Chestnut and Cedar streets, at the invitation of the Rev. William B. Dink, the pastor.

They assembled 1000 strong at Kensington Orange Hall and paraded to the church in a body, both men and women marching.

The lodges met at their headquarters, at Twenty-first and Spring Garden streets, at Chestnut Hill, and at Germantown this morning, marching so as to be at the rallying point, Broad and Pine streets, in time to start the parade at 9:30 o'clock.

Alexander S. Brock was chairman of the Speakers' Committee. The officers of the Committee on Arrangements were: William A. McConnell, president; Anna H. Irwin, secretary; William J. Savage, assistant secretary; and Armour Ross, treasurer.

Dry Faction Also Parades Earlier in the morning the "dry" lodges left the Federal streets and marched by way of Broad and Chestnut streets to the river, where they got aboard a boat which took them to Wilmington. There were bands and festivities were held on the grounds of the Orange house.

In each parade banners were carried showing the British and Federal flags, afterward William III of England, at the moment of his great victory.

The battle of the Boyne took place July 12, 1690, and was a decisive defeat for the House of Stewart, under the celebrated Irish General, Patrick Sarsfield.

The party also included Charles Martin, vice president of the Kensington Trust Company; Thomas J. Fleming, David Berg, H. Bart McHugh, Vaughan Comfort, James Jones, Fred Shotts, H. Arthur Bitting, James McLeod and others of prominence in Elkdom.

CAMP HAPPY OPEN TODAY TO BUILD UP CHILDREN

Chance Given Youngsters to Recover Health at City Institution Camp Happy, conducted by the city, at which under-nourished children are built up so that they are again normal, opened officially today. Dr. J. Blair Spencer, Assistant Director of Public Welfare, has completed every arrangement. He has been unanimously elected "camp father" by the 500 children who already have been sent there.

To Build Thirty New Homes

The drill is the sugar-coated part of today's program. While the little inmates were evaluating at the Airport, the more serious Elks, those of the grand lodge, were planning constructively for the future at their session on the Steel Pier.

Work for tens of thousands of Americans will be provided as a result of the Elk enterprise. About thirty new homes or buildings in all sections of the country will be erected during the next two years, according to the report of the Elks' national committee.

The assets of the subordinate lodges of the organization now amount to $2,000,000, and the elaborate building program for the year shows that there are to be erected in various corners of the country not less than forty-one new homes for the Elks. This is exclusive of the Elks' national memorial and administration building which is to be located in Chicago, the new center of Elkdom, the design for which has already been selected by the Elks' National Memorial Headquarters Commission.

The locations of the new Elk homes are as follows: Boston, N. J.; Carskill, N. Y.; Dubois, Pa.; Erie, Pa.; Greenville, Pa.; Jersey Shore, Pa.; Lowell, Md.; Bedford, Mass.; Panamint, Pa.; Philadelphia, N. J.; Quincy, Mass.; Salsburgh, N. Y.; Quincy, Ill.; Elkville, N. J.; Newark, N. J.; Kokomo, Ind.; Denver, Ind.; Henric, Neb.; Dover, N. H.; Galton, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Montclair, N. J.; Omaha, Neb.; Park City, Utah; Queensborough, N. Y.; Salisbury, Md.; Ventura, Calif.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; and Worcester, Mass.

Fight for 1923 Meeting

There will be a strenuous skirmish among Elks from a score of cities to have their towns selected for the next reunion, but when the smoke of battle clears away Boston will be the winner. Although the city of ten parties and banners has been remaining conservative in the background it is scheduled to go to the front with a regular "Elk" salute.

All this is according to the latest dope, but Elks from all places point to the fact that variable winds are possible and voice the belief that there may be an upset.

Judge John S. McClellan, of Atlanta, who heads a delegation from the Southern city, accepted word today from the home Chapter of Commerce to fight to a finish and bring the next reunion down that way. Real Southern hospitality is assured. And speaking of Elks, the prospect here now are Elks. It will spill the beans—and what's more, put them in the soup.

Topping many other things of interest in the big national meeting was the announcement today that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., assistant secretary of the Navy, will fly here tomorrow after an aerial cruise along the coast and review the prospective parents.

Harding Can't Get There Brother Elks Harding and Pershing sent word that it would be impossible for them to get here.

Men of prominence in all walks of life are coming by special trains almost hourly, and others here now are Russ L. Holland, Assistant United States Attorney General. Others include Past Grand Exalted Rulers James R. Nicholson, of Boston; Frank Bain, District Attorney of Fairbury, Neb.; Edward H. Risher, New Orleans; Bruce Campbell, East St. Louis, Ill.; William Martin Abbott, San Francisco; Raymond Benjamin, San Francisco; and Murray Hulbert, president of the Board of Aldermen of New York City.

TRY TO HALT TENDLER BOUT

Brief From Five Protesting Clergymen Goes to Edwards Today Herbert C. Gibson, counsel for five protesting New Jersey clergymen, will submit a brief today to Governor Edwards purporting to show that the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler fight, scheduled for July 27 in Jersey City, will be a prize fight and illegal.

A letter protesting against the Leonard-Tendler fight has been received by the Boxing Commission from Bishop Luther B. Wilson, head of three conferences of the metropolitan area of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New Jersey.

The Rev. Frank S. Ritter, secretary and treasurer of the Methodist committee in Jersey City, came to Philadelphia yesterday seeking evidence to prove that Tendler is a law violator and an operator in an alcohol distillery here, named in a bill of equity asking that the court dissolve the corporation and appoint a receiver.

Bill's in Hard Luck

About Everything Seems to Happen to Upper Merion Mail Man William Cummings, a rural mail carrier of Upper Merion Township, who also farms a large tract of land near King of Prussia, has had some rather hard luck recently.

Several days ago an animal killed all but a few of his chickens. Last Saturday, while his cows were in the field, lightning struck and killed two of the animals.

He has lost a number of his pigs, and the recent rains have almost ruined his grain crops.

His man fatally hurt in crash. Revelick, Pa., July 12.—William Miller, thirty years old, of Zentz, is dying in a hospital from injuries received yesterday when his automobile truck turned over on him.

GIRL'S TUCK WITH FOILS RUM THIEVES

Awakened by Their Auto, She Calls Police, Then Orders Robbers to Depart

FIGHT BATTLE WITH POLICE

Three burglars believed to have been seeking liquor in the home of James Ferry, 3801 North Broad street, at 3:30 o'clock this morning were frustrated by Ferry's twenty-five-year-old daughter Julia.

Miss Ferry was awakened by the noise of a running motor in front of the house. Getting out of bed she looked into the street and saw a man picking the lock of the basement gate. She immediately aroused her father and other members of the family, then telephoned the Germantown avenue and Lycoming street police station.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Neimeyer and Thompson made a quick run to within a short distance of the house and crept stealthily upon the robbers.

Police appear as lock breaks. One man was seen at the wheel of an automobile while two companions were trying to force their way into the cellar. Just as one of the handis broke the lock they saw the policemen and scrambling back into the machine sped away.

Pistols were drawn on both sides, and in the excitement many wild shots were exchanged. But before the motorcycle could be started again the handis car had turned a corner and vanished.

In the meantime Miss Ferry had donned a dressing gown and crept downstairs. She went into the front room and after raising a window, coolly ordered the men away.

"You have no business here," she said. "I have already notified the police."

Then, as a precautionary measure, she hid behind a shutter in case one of the men fired at her.

Just at that moment the burglars saw the patrolmen.

Fourth Attempt to Rob Home Miss Ferry's father, a retired saloon-keeper, later said that it was the fourth attempt in many months to break into his home.

Five automobile bandits held up and robbed George Knoll, 3154 North Broad street, last night at Fifteenth and Flora streets, and after taking a diamond pin valued at $1000 carelessly dropped it in their flight from a patrolman.

Knoll was walking along Fifteenth street above Girard avenue when a touring car drew up to the curb and four men jumped out and ordered Knoll to throw up his hands.

After removing the stickpin the thieves were attempting to pull a $3000 diamond ring from Knoll's finger, when Patrolman Gavish, of the Nineteenth and Flora streets station, appeared on the scene in answer to calls for help.

The men climbed into the machine and started down the street, firing five shots at Gavish, who returned the fire. None of the shots took effect.

A half-hour search revealed the stolen stickpin lying in the gutter.

Dr. Herbert D. Simpler Dr. Herbert D. Simpler, a dentist, died yesterday at his home at 2856 North Twenty-ninth street after an illness of eight months.

Born in St. George, Del., Dr. Simpler was graduated from Delaware University in 1897. He was a member of the North Philadelphia Dental Association and of the Delta Psi Fraternity.

He is survived by one daughter, Elizabeth Schuch, 2441 North Eighth street, testified as to the cruelty of Ziesel's character.

"I never saw him beat the child, but I know that he struck his mother. Once after she had been hospitalized for some time and tend to his mother. He had knocked her down. And his mother herself told me there was no better family than the Hutchinsons to take care of the child."

Ziesel, who enlisted in the navy in February, 1917, and was in service for five years, first in the dental corps and later as a lieutenant commander of the Levathan, was requested to show his discharge papers.

"Have you your discharge papers?" asked Judge Brown.

"No, sir," replied Ziesel. "They do not give discharge to officers in the navy. They give him a letter."

"We have the letter," replied the Judge.

"Virginia's a beautiful, sweet child," said Ziesel as he lit a cigarette and walked off down the street, after the verdict.

HE KNOWS IT ISN'T SO George G. Pierle Certain Report of His Death Was Premature A report was circulated in City Hall today that George G. Pierle, a registration commissioner, had died suddenly this morning.

Shortly afterward Mr. Pierle was located in the dining room of the Union League. He was told of the rumors. "I have just finished my lunch," he said, "and I feel fine. Just deny that report, will you?"

Mr. Pierle has just returned from Beach Haven, N. J. He plans to go to Atlantic City next Friday for a stay of several weeks.

TAKEN FROM HER FATHER

VIRGINIA ZIESEL Six-year-old daughter of Dr. Carl Ziesel, a dentist of Frankford, who was accused of tying the child in a chair and beating her

Cruel to Daughter, Dentist Loses Her

"I don't want to go with my grandmother," she insisted.

Second Wife Accuses Dentist According to Ziesel's second wife, Virginia received severe beatings at the hands of the doctor while the two were in Pensacola, Fla., and she in the city.

"He used to tie her to a chair," she told the Judge, "and then beat her, and I have seen him strike her on the face. He did it mostly because she would not eat the things that were put before her, but once she came into the room and he said she was sneaking and that he would cure her of that. I saw him beat her once in Pensacola and once in Philadelphia."

Mrs. Ziesel left Dr. Ziesel last August and had care of the child for six weeks after that. According to him, she left him because he was detailed to the Asiatics and she refused to go.

"One night I went to the house to get some of my things," he said, "and she was there. 'You take your damn kid,' she said to me. It was her sister that was taking care of Virginia, anyway, so I took her home with me."

This is the second time that Ziesel has been in court about the child.

The first was in 1919 when he instituted proceedings in the court at Camden to get possession of the child.

After the death of her mother, two days after the child was born, she was in the care of her grandmother, who kept her for three years. It was only after she was once again possessed of his daughter just a few months after his second marriage.

Denies He Beat Child After the trial, Ziesel, accompanied by his lawyer, David Rattin, discussed the case. Ziesel denied ever beating the child and said the only time he had ever tied her was once when they were over in a boat fishing.

"As to beating," he said, "the last one she got was from her stepmother. Of course, I spanked the child when she was bad and needed it, but I never treated her cruelly. I knew nothing about the proceedings until I was notified last Friday."

Elizabeth Schuch, 2441 North Eighth street, testified as to the cruelty of Ziesel's character.

"I never saw him beat the child, but I know that he struck his mother. Once after she had been hospitalized for some time and tend to his mother. He had knocked her down. And his mother herself told me there was no better family than the Hutchinsons to take care of the child."

"No, sir," replied Ziesel. "They do not give discharge to officers in the navy. They give him a letter."

GIRLS MAY BREAK LIFEGUARD STRIKE

Fair Members of Shore Swimming Club Are to Replace Ocean City Apollos

MEN ARE COMING BACK

Ocean City, N. J., July 12.—Notwithstanding the strike of some Ocean City lifeguards, fifteen of the old numbers have returned to the beach and with other young athletes are giving protection to the surf bathers.

Captain Jack Jermes, head of the beach patrol, said he would have a full crew today, but none of those who failed to report yesterday will be considered.

All the patrol stations from First to Thirty-sixth street were operating and also one at Forty-sixth street.

Some of Ocean City's bathing public would like to see a long strike, with lots of strike-breakers.

For Mayor Chambers' threat that rather than give the men guards the rise in pay which they sought, he would hire women lifeguards, has brought enthusiastic response.

Headed by Miss Ada Taylor, Atlantic City's swimming club, and Ethelida Bleibrey, world's champion woman swimmer, the members of the Ambassador Swimming Club of girls declare that, in the interests of humanity, they'd gladly serve as guards at Ocean City.

Men Would Call for Help Among those who returned to duty yesterday was Arthur Behan, world's champion good-looker, the man who last year won a silver cup for being the most handsome and physically perfect guard on the Atlantic coast.

His reason for returning, he said, was that he felt the guards had a responsibility toward the public. "We are in a different class from the industrial workers," he said.

Alfred R. Smith, former commander of the beach patrol here, deplored the strike as due to "hasty action on both sides," saying it is a well-known fact that guards are not paid enough and that on the other hand it was the duty of the guards to remain on duty until replaced, for the safety of the public.
