

PRINCETON PLANS DEBATE ON LEAGUE

Tiger Students to Take Negative Side Against Oxford Visitors

Princeton, Oct. 5.—The subject for the international debate between the Universities of Oxford and Princeton is to be held here next Tuesday night, was announced at a joint meeting last night of Whig and Clio Halls, the two debating societies at Princeton.

Princeton is to uphold the negative of the question, "Resolved, That the United States should at once enter the League of Nations," and it was brought out last night that efforts are being made to secure a prominent statesman to assist President John Greer Hibben, of the university, in presiding.

The Oxford men, who are now touring the country and meeting teams of several other colleges, will follow the English style of debate as used in the Oxford Union of England.

At last night's meeting of the two undergraduate societies, emphasis was laid by the principal speakers on the importance of debate in collegiate activities.

J. E. Hodges, '84, United States Commissioner on the International Fisheries Commission; E. D. Duffield, '92, president of the Prudential Life Insurance Company; E. W. Fort, New-England lawyer, and W. W. Roper, '02, Philadelphia City Councilman and well known as head coach of the Tiger eleven, addressed the meeting.

"The longer that Mustapha Kemal makes trouble the better Lenin and Russia will like it," said Dr. Alfred Dennis, former professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, in an interview this morning's issue of the Daily Princetonian on the relation of the Near East.

Dr. Dennis went on to say: "The Turkish aspirations for moral support lies in the fact that it is more desirable to have Turkey, possessing no navy, in charge of the Dardanelles, than some other Power which will be better able to enforce a respect for international law."

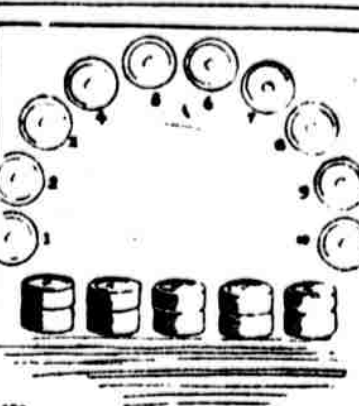

MARK GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schenmer Quietly Celebrate Event

Paul Schenmer, seventy-five years old, and his wife, Emma, five years his junior, quietly celebrated their golden wedding Tuesday at their home, 2204 East York street. Because of a recent death in the family only a few relatives and old friends were in attendance.

Mr. Schenmer is employed at the Monitor Carrying Mills, Oxford and Manchester streets, where he had been foreman for fifty-one years. He is still active and goes to work daily. Dr. George Sinnamon, police surgeon at the Trenton avenue and Dauphin street station, is Mr. Schenmer's son-in-law. Mrs. Mary Sinnamon is the only descendant of the old couple.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 294—The Ten Checkers

Place ten checkers in a semi-circle upon the table, and tell the audience that you wish to make "kings" of them (that is five piles, of two checkers each). To do this you can pick up any checker you choose, but you must pass it over two checkers prior to placing it upon another checker. This procedure is repeated until you have the five "kings."

The trick is not so simple as it seems, and the spectators will find it extremely difficult of solution. Here is the proper method: Place No. 4 upon No. 1; No. 7 upon No. 3; No. 5 upon No. 6; No. 2 upon No. 6, and No. 8 upon No. 10.

Yes, Wanamaker's Down Stairs Store Is Really Wanamaker's

The Down Stairs Store was originated by the founder as a store of low and moderately priced GOOD merchandise in 1916. It was a distinctly different thought then—and year by year it has grown to be of greater value to all families of limited income. It does not sell "cheap" trashy goods—it sells only merchandise really worth buying.

The Down Stairs Store has twenty-seven sections specializing in low and moderately priced merchandise, including hats, dresses, coats, gloves, blouses, rugs, linens, etc.

These goods sell out almost as fast as they come in—and an average of a hundred thousand dollars of new purchases arrive every week in the year.
