 There are hundreds of people in this vicinity who are afflicted with rheumatism and its kindred ailments. We will publish in this paper some of the letters of endorsement we have received from people who have used Anti-Uric for this dread disease and found relief and permanent cure. These letters are all on file at the offices of the manufacturers of Anti-Uric in San Francisco and are guaranteed to be authentic. The cause commonly given for rheumatism is an excess of uric acid and other poisons in the blood. This poisonous matter irritates the inner linings of the arteries and veins and causes intense pain. This is known as articular rheumatism. When these poisons settle around the joints they cause muscular rheumatism. Constipation and inactivity of the digestive organs are the leading causes of this accumulation of poisons which in turn cause rheumatism. It can readily be seen that rheumatism is a blood disease and can only be cured by internal treatment. Anti-Uric has proved itself to be the best treatment in most cases. This remedy is not new, it has been on the market for a number of years and has seldom failed to give relief and permanent cure. Anti-Uric is composed of vegetable products only, containing no minerals mercury or salicylates and can be taken by persons with the most delicate organisms. If you suffer with rheumatism or its kindred ailments, gout or lumbago, no matter how many remedies you have tried or how discouraged you may be, get an outfit of Anti-Uric and give it a trial. If you are not satisfied with the results it will give you, your money will be refunded. Anti-Uric is for sale by the Cascade Pharmacy and the Model Pharmacy.

SCOTTISH FOLK THROUGH TEMPLE TO HONOR POET

Bagpipers in Kilts, Dancer and Singers on Program; Address by Charteris.

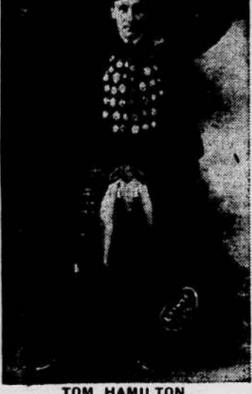

Scots whose ancestors ha' w' Wallace bled and many other admirers of Bobbie Burns packed the Masonic Temple auditorium to overflowing Monday night to take part in the one hundred and sixty-second anniversary celebration of Scotland's national poet. It seemed as though nearly every person in Great Falls discovered he had a Scot ancestor of whom he could boast and who would entitle him to a part in the celebration.

J. M. CHARTERIS

Many Have Scottish Ancestors.
 It was a genuinely happy and enthusiastic audience that occupied the seats, the standing room about the edges of the hall, and crowded about the doorway standing on tip-toe as they tried to get glimpses of Tom Hamilton executing the sword dance, the Highland-fling and the sailors hornpipe. The fact that many had to stand during the two hour program did not mar their genial good nature nor lessen their appreciation of the Scotch songs and stories. As Dr. Donald K. Woods, the chairman of the evening put it, they were all one happy family party.

Picture Hangs Over Stage.
 Above the stage was suspended a remarkably fine colored print of the beloved Caldonian bard. The wild and plaintive notes of the bag pipes played by two pipers in kilts gave a genuinely Scottish atmosphere to the program. The dear old Scottish songs, "Annie Laurie," "Loch Lomond" and "Mary" were sympathetically and dramatically sung by Alex Campbell, Kathleen Sutherland, Mrs. Mamie Ledis, and H. Davidson. Alex Brown in costume gave some comedy songs and jokes in the style of Harry Lauder that met with appreciative applause and laughter from the audience.

Address By Charteris.
 J. M. Charteris gave the address of the evening, "The Immortal Memory." After the entire audience had sung "Auld Lang Syne," so that it could be heard two blocks away, the floor was cleared for dancing.

Search for Whisky Carried by Sheriff to Incoming Trains

An overcoat and a bottle of high grade whisky await an owner at the county jail. The bottle was in the pocket of the coat when it was seized by Deputy Sheriff Gust Hynds early Monday morning, on board a Northern train 225, and a colored porter, Theodore Maxley, denied ownership after he had donned a vest and overcoat that had been lying under it.

Deputy Hynds boarded the train at Portage after Sheriff Bob Gordon had decided to carry his war-fare against liquor transportation onto incoming passenger trains. The porter's denial, however, but nothing could be proved when he denied owning the overcoat.

"That coat's no mine, Mr. O'os-fer," he told Deputy Hynds. "I never did wear a coat like that. I reckon it belongs to some of them legislators—they's some of 'em on this train."

The porter was a large man and the coat just fit him, but after he had been examined in the county jail it was decided that there was no case against him and he was released. Another bottle of whisky was found in a sleeping car and this is held at the jail with the coat and the bottle found in its pocket.

DRILLING SCENE ON CAT CREEK IS IMPRESSIVE

Thirty Rigs Lighted for Night Work Present Brilliant Spectacle, Says Andretta.

The 30 or more drilling rigs now operating in the Cat Creek oil field and the storage system, the pipe lines, the pumping plants, the congested highways and the hustle and confusion attending the development now under way all combine to make of the field an amazing spectacle to the uninitiated. It was asserted Monday by County Treasurer Fred C. Andretta following his return from eastern Fergus county.

Since August a vast stretch of prairie partially improved and sparsely populated has become the permanent abiding place of several thousand people and the scene of activities such as can be found only on the site of a sensational oil strike.

Sight Is Striking One
 "With the man who visits the field only as a sightseer the most lasting impression is the one growing out of the confusion of the district," Mr. Andretta, Monday, "I know, of course, that it is different with those whose first glimpse of the field is coincident with a realization of the potential wealth under one's feet, but with the man who goes only to see the sights, the sights themselves are the principal attraction."

"Any one who has stood on one of the hills about Butte and looked down on the mining city at night has an excellent idea of what the oil field looks after dark. We left the field late in the evening and the lights of the hilltop much longer than I will the streams of 'pure gold' that were pouring into the tanks from the producing wells.

Oil Field in Big Hollow
 "The field centers in an immense hollow and more than 30 drilling rigs are plainly visible. Every rig is a miniature city, set off at night by brilliant lights. Over the whole field is the hum of industry and the hustle of the men who have glimpsed the possibility of acquiring vast stores of wealth over night."

Mr. Andretta stated that, like all oil fields, the possibilities of the Cat Creek field are unlimited. He pointed out that the kind that usually attract the pennies of widows and orphans, but anyone at all persuaded towards speculation can find action in the Cat Creek field. Development work is going forward at a rapid rate and a train of oil is shipped from Winnett every day. The roads, he said, are lined with huge trucks hauling supplies and materials to the rigs in operation and for new enterprises.

The holdings of the Watana Oil Co. recently organized by Great Falls men, Mr. Andretta said, are viewed by men in the field as the most promising articles which will average up with any on the structure.

Mr. Andretta was one of a party of Great Falls men who attended the convention of oil men at Lewistown Saturday. All visitors were taken on an excursion through the field as guests of Lewistown business men.

SUCCEVERDICT FROM INQUEST ON ADOLPHSON

Evidence Fails to Sustain Murder Theory Held by Members of Family.

Contrary to the belief of the family of the late Emil Adolphson, former deputy sheriff at Stockett, a jury impaneled by coronor L. H. McBurney Monday night returned a verdict which it was found that Mr. Adolphson died last Saturday morning by his own hand. Testimony introduced at the inquest was not sufficient to permit of the theory of murder.

The body was found by Engineer Ross of a Milwaukee train crew and was first examined by Sheriff Bob Gordon, whose belief that Mr. Adolphson committed suicide was shared by the jury. Figuring importantly in the sheriff's mind was the fact that the dead man's neck and the viaduct railing, the sheriff's opinion being that it could not have been placed on the body after death. The rope was tight, the sheriff said, and was long enough to have permitted Mr. Adolphson to stand erect before the shot was fired. Blood from the wound flowed onto the ground all in one place and its location in an indentation of the body both excluded the possibility that the rope had been attached after death or that the body had been moved after it fell.

No Evidence of Struggle.
 Sheriff Gordon said he found no evidence of a struggle where the body was found and no tracks were visible. The revolver found in the roadway beneath the body, a .41 caliber Colt, was identified by Sheriff Gordon and the weapon and its load were examined by Ed McGivern, a firearm expert.

Examination of the body disclosed that the wound had occurred at the wound of entrance and Mr. McGivern said this could have been possible under only two conditions. The gun, he said, had been discharged at a distance greater than 12 inches from the wound, or it had been held against the head with pressure. The shells were equipped with a flash-fused black powder and had evidently been loaded a long time. The bullets were of lead. The wound could have been caused by a bullet from a .44 caliber rifle if fired from a distance, according to the witness.

Sheriff Gordon said he was notified of the discovery of the body at 7:45 a. m. and that the body was limp when he reached it. Carl Sheldon, an ambulance driver, testified that Mr. Adolphson had been dead not to exceed three hours when he brought it to the W. H. George undertaking rooms, where the inquest was held.

Son Urges Murder Theory.
 The family's reasons for believing Mr. Adolphson had met with foul play were stated to the jury by Oscar Adolphson, a son. His testimony included a few of his additions to his former published statement, but he declared his firm belief that his father had been murdered. Emmitt incurred the wrath of the jury when he testified that he dated back two years, when he was instrumental in seizing a still, the son testified.

Two weeks after Mr. Adolphson's retirement from the office of deputy sheriff he told his son and a nephew, Herbert Magnuson, the son testified of threats made against his life, but he did not mention the serious nature of the threats, that he would have to continue to carry a gun, and did so until he returned to the witness stand. The 32 caliber automatic revolver he bore when he went into office. The revolver found near the body was a six-shooter of a larger caliber and the son declared he never seen it or the rope before.

Herbert Magnuson, who overheard the conversation in which Mr. Adolphson said some fellows were "looking for him" and that he would have to "keep out for himself," according to the witness, Mr. Adolphson thought a great deal of his family, was well liked, was never inclined to take things seriously and was always jovial, his official acts. The nephew said that no names were mentioned in the conversation in which Mr. Adolphson referred to threats on his life.

It was stated after the inquest that Mr. Adolphson carried $1000 life insurance.

Charge of Vagrancy Against Pair Fails Before Police Judge
 Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Paulson, taken up by the police Friday for investigation, were acquitted of charges of vagrancy in police court Monday when evidence against them was not sufficient to sustain the suspicion of the police.

Thomas Kropf, an alleged drug addict, arrested at the time the Paulsons were taken up, was arrested again Monday and committed to a cell to serve out a $100 fine. The fine was suspended Saturday when the Paulsons were released from the city jail, but he was gathered in again because of his failure to quit town.

Monte Harris, another alleged drug addict, was held at the city jail Monday after his arrest Sunday night at the Oxford rooming house on a charge of prowling. He will be in police court today (Wednesday).

Denies He Issued Worthless Checks
 William B. Nelson, arrested in December on the charge that he had issued a large number of worthless checks, pleaded not guilty to the information filed by County Attorney H. G. Bennett when arraigned in district court Monday. Nelson was called during the February jury term of district court. Worthless checks on which nearly $1,000 had been secured are held against the defendant.

Documentary Evidence Defined by Supreme Court in Powell Case
 Special to The Daily Tribune.
 Helena, Jan. 24.—Questions of documentary evidence and accountings in equity were decided by the supreme court on Monday in the suit of Reuben Steiner against Peter McMillan. Steiner claimed he was a partner with McMillan in the ownership of a band of sheep and asked for an accounting. He lost in a jury trial in Powell county and appealed to the supreme court which affirmed the lower court. Justice Reynolds wrote the opinion of the court.

Justice Reynolds upheld the lower court in holding that each of the two counts of the complaint presented an action in accounting which fell within the equity jurisdiction of the court and that denial of plaintiff's request for a trial by jury was not in error.

He also held that a writing of a public record to be admissible in evidence, must have been made by a public officer under authority of law and not be in the nature of correspondence and private memoranda, and though relating to public records does not in itself constitute such records.

REDUCED RATE ON MONTANA'S HAY IMMINENT

Railroad Officials Approve Lower Freight Charge to Minneapolis and Coast.

Reduction of freight rates on hay from Montana to the Minneapolis and Seattle markets is imminent, according to Scott Leavitt, secretary of the Commercial club, who received telegrams Monday from officials of the Northern Pacific, Milwaukee and Great Northern railroads, who have approved a reduced rate on hay from Montana and recommended to the interstate commerce commission that the rate be decreased.

Leavitt gets wires.

The railway officials who wired Mr. Leavitt Monday were H. M. Calkins, Chicago, vice president of the Milwaukee; Charles Donnelly, St. Paul, executive vice president of the Northern Pacific, and W. F. Kenney, vice president of the Great Northern. All of the officials expressed themselves as favoring the reduction and stated that they expect action soon from the interstate commerce commission.

The amount of the reduction will not be known here until the interstate commerce commission reports. It is not expected that the 50 per cent reduction asked by the Montana Commercial clubs, making the rate to Minneapolis $3 a ton, will be granted. The present rate to Seattle is $11 a ton.

Will Be Effective Soon.
 The rate will become effective on the day after its approval by the interstate commerce commission and will remain in force until April 30 unless cancelled before them, according to the recommendations of the railroad officials.

According to Mr. Leavitt, it is virtually certain that the reduction in rates will be approved by the interstate commerce commission because of the support given by the railroad officials.

Many Clubs Act.
 Virtually all the Commercial clubs in Montana appealed to railroad officials some time ago for the 50 per cent reduction. The first news of official approval by the roads was that received Monday.

Opposing Labor Unions Still Placard Laundry

The engineers' and laundry workers' unions, participants in a recent jurisdictional fight, which resulted in the withdrawal of the laundryworkers' union from the Cascade Trades and Labor assembly Friday night, both retained their banners at the National laundry Monday, the engineers having a banner declaring the laundry unfair to organized labor while the laundry workers' banner proclaimed the company fair.

The dispute was caused when the engineers' local first proclaimed the laundry unfair because the company refused to discharge a member of the firemen's union and employ a member of the engineers' local in his place.
