

CARLIE DENIES WIFE'S CHARGE HE'S A THIEF

Rancher, Fighting Divorce Action, Says His Spouse Carried Gun in Apron.

Trial of the divorce suit brought against James Carlisle, Hound creek rancher, by Theresa Carlisle vied with the Gust murder trial in district court Thursday for the attention of the court house crowd when the defendant denied that he was a thief, as charged by Mrs. Carlisle, and declared that his wife had been the aggressor in all their domestic infelicities.

"I never stole any livestock and I never brandied any stock but my own," Mr. Carlisle testified. "When I brandied my stock I never cared who saw me and I never attempted to do the work when operations could not be seen by everyone who cared to watch. If I ever told anyone that I took an animal not my own, I was a thief. I have told dozens of times, and I'll tell it now."

Rounded Up Maverick.

"I once bought 200 horses of the T M brand and in gathering up the bunch I found running with them a two-year-old, roan maverick, with one hip knocked down. I threw it into the bunch, took it home and treated it, broke it to the saddle, and I rode that horse for 15 years."

Mrs. Carlisle's defense was supported by a number of witnesses who testified that Mrs. Carlisle was of a quarrelsome disposition. Harry Crewsell's statement to the jury covered the point thus:

"Mrs. Carlisle was quarrelsome and always looking for trouble. She was never happy unless she had it. She could put up a fight that would make the late world war look like a pink tea party, and when she trained her 13-inch guns on you, you would want to get out your heavy artillery or she would annihilate you."

The witness declared that the defendant was not a thief and said that the wife's charges concerning thieving operations carried on with the knowledge of Carlisle were untrue. He asserted that every fight between husband and wife was always started by the wife, and that many times the husband would get out of her way. He left for one of his several ranches when she arrived at a place where he was staying. Ed Smith, another witness for the defense, asserted that when Mrs. Carlisle "got a notion in her head," that there was "no living with her" so long as it remained.

Says Wife Suspicious.

Carlisle stated that he has lived with his wife since last June, when she followed him to Great Falls because she without cause suspected him of being friendly with other women. She then staid in town two or three weeks and he found her later at one of his ranches. He claims that she ordered him off when he arrived, although the ranch was his own.

"She was worse than angry," Carlisle testified. "She jumped around, called me names and patted the gun she was carrying in her apron."

"Did she threaten you," asked A. J. McDonough of defendant's counsel.

"She threatened everything she could think of."

"Did she talk loud?" "Loud! Well, you couldn't hear yourself think. I left here and she followed me to another ranch, but I guess her only reason was that she had not finished her conversation."

"What did she say when she arrived," asked Mr. McDonough.

"Oh, it was the usual talk; she was going to kill all of us."

Mrs. Carlisle is suing for divorce on the ground of cruelty and is demanding a share of his very desirable property.

Arthur Jardine is associated with Mr. McDonough in conducting the defense and Mrs. Carlisle is represented by S. J. Cowley.

EXTENDS CLEANUP TO OUTSIDE TOWNS

Commissioner Shea Announces Plans for Work in Sand Coulee, Stockett, Tracy.

Plans for the extension of the cleanup campaign to several towns in Cascade county outside Great Falls were announced Thursday night by William F. Shea, sanitary commissioner, on his return from Sand Coulee with Dr. Fred T. Ford of the health department, where the two made a survey to determine the feasibility of cleanup work there.

Due to the fact that many miners at Sand Coulee, Tracy and Stockett are now working but two or three days out of the week, Mr. Shea and Dr. Ford plan to have the men in these towns clean up their yards during their idle time. Motor trucks to haul away the rubbish in these towns will be furnished by the health department here. Boy Scouts in these towns will cooperate in the work.

A large amount of dirt and rubbish was removed in the cleanup of the business district in Great Falls Thursday, according to Commissioner Shea. There are now eight wagons, two hay racks and three motor trucks being used to haul away the rubbish in the city campaign.

The cleanup work in Great Falls is progressing rapidly and will all be finished by Saturday night, according to Mr. Shea.

St. Mary's Students Present Two Plays

The undergraduates of St. Mary's high school presented Thursday night for the second and last time, the two little plays, "The House Party of Vesta," and "Our Aunt From California." The plays met with the approval of those who witnessed them and at each performance St. Mary's auditorium was well filled.

A matinee for children was given last Tuesday afternoon so that the audiences at the evening performances were largely made up of grown people.

MANY BIDDERS ON IRRIGATION CANAL PROJECT

Manager of Sun River Project Calls for Bids on Fort Shaw District Work.

Many bids for the contract for construction of additional canal systems in the Fort Shaw irrigation district of the Sun river project near Simms were received at the office of George Sanford, manager of the Sun river project for the reclamation service, who called for bids Thursday.

The contract calls for the removal of 48,000 cubic yards of dirt in construction of the additional canal system in the Fort Shaw district, which will irrigate about 2,500 acres. Three hundred and fifty cubic yards of concrete will be used in the work, and 650 linear feet of concrete pipe the letting of the contract will be made in about 10 days after the bids have been submitted to F. C. Weymouth, chief engineer of the reclamation service at Denver, Mr. Sanford said.

February Work Done.

Reports of the amount of work during February on the Sun river irrigation project were made public Thursday following the arrival of the official publication of the reclamation bureau. The following progress was shown in the report:

At Pishkun reservoir 18 men and 36 head of stock completed the surfacing of dike No. 3 with gravel on February 8 and were engaged during the remainder of the month in hauling rock for paving dike No. 4. A small increase in the force was made near the end of the month to insure completion of this work at an early date.

On Pishkun Canal.

At Pishkun reservoir 18 men and 36 head of stock completed the removal of rock and dirt that had fallen around the wood-stave pipe at Sun river crossing. Some work was done in surfacing the operating road along the upper portion of Pishkun canal.

No maintenance work was done on the Greenfield division. Concrete foundations were built for the new storehouses and roads were graveled at the Fairfield headquarters.

On the Fort Shaw division river protection work at the main canal headworks was completed and repairs were made to telephone lines and fences at Willow creek reservoir. Water was turned into the Fort Shaw canal on February 24 for a short run for stock and domestic use.

Farmers were engaged in baling hay and marketing produce, and some plowing was done, although in most places the ground was too dry to plow. Reports on winter wheat were unfavorable. Carload shipments from the project were about 18 per cent less than in January, prices continued low and the demand was limited; 13 cars of wheat, 29 of hay, four of potatoes, and one of sheep were shipped from the project during the month.

Some Progress Made on Clear Creek Well Since Casing Down

Havre, April 14.—Reports received from the well of the Ohio Oil Co. on Clear creek are to the effect that the hole has been sunk quiet a distance since the work of underreaming and lowering the casing was finished. It is understood there are several hundred feet of water in the hole and that considerable trouble from caving has been experienced. Quite a quantity of gas has been noticed.

Experiments have shown a good yet cheap newsprint paper can be made from saw grass, which grows abundantly along the swamps of the Atlantic coast.
