"Bliss was it in that dawn to be alive,
But to be young was very heaven!"

"The Call of Youth"
A HUGH FORD PRODUCTION

The bargain seemed fair enough. On one side, power and success, but a man no longer young. On the other, a family who owed him all. How simple to pay with a beautiful girl—at the altar. But that little bargain left out love, and—Come see Youth have its way.

Soloists and Chorus Under Prof. Keyes Win Appreciative Applause.

On Tuesday evening before a splendid audience that overflowed the main floor and balcony of the Presbyterian church the Musical Arts Association of Great Falls, under the direction of Professor R. E. Keyes, rendered Haydn's great oratorio "The Creation."

At 8:30 the 75 singers, after four months of hard training, filed on the platform. A moment later Professor Keyes took his place at the director's rack and was given cordial applause by the expectant audience.

Mrs. Caddie Brady was at the organ and her introduction, "Representation of Chaos" was a masterful execution of a series of unusual musical phrases which were combined to interpret the idea of chaos. In the presentation of the oratorio, Miss Jean Cowan, did brilliant work at the piano.

Dramatic Effect Produced.
A dramatic effect was produced at the first number by the sudden turning out of the lights, while the baritone solo, "The Earth Was Without Form and Void; and Darkness Was Upon the Face of the Deep" was sung by the rich, well sustained voice of G. Brandt. The effect was equally pleasing as, during the bass recitative of R. P. Reckards, "God Said Let there be Light," the electric lights of the church were flashed on again.

Haydn's "Creation," with its 27 recitatives, and interspersed among them the chorus effects, was produced in full by the passing of the lyric soprano, the trios, the deep, rich baritone, and the mellow tenor effects, into the sudden crash and thunder of full chorus, organ and piano. The parts of the 14 soloists were splendidly rendered.

Chorus Work Improved.
Since a few months ago, Professor Keyes produced Handel's "Messiah." The chorus has attained a marked betterment in volume of music and in quick, fine responses to the skillful work of the conductor. The fine effect was constantly with the audience that there was reserve power, that the chorus was never exhausted as to volume.

The soloists last night were:
Soprano: Mrs. J. W. Speer, Miss Marie Leaming, Mrs. M. Heidenheimer, Mrs. E. L. Witherspoon, Mrs. R. H. Willcomb and Miss Flora Pestana; mezzo soprano—Mrs. J. A. Claudon; tenors—Daniel Edwards, C. L. Saffield, F. L. Graybill and John Clark; bass—R. P. Reckards and R. H. Willcomb.

Building is Planned.
The Great Falls Musical Arts Association is an incorporated concern. It is working for the erection of an auditorium in the city which will furnish a home for the music lovers. Professor Keyes will start the chorus at work next week training for the next public performance, to be given on June 3.

SIX GOOD NUMBERS ON PANTAGES BILL

"Ballette des Artistes" Is Headliner: Equilibrists Get Good Applause.

"Ballet des Artistes," presented by Edna Rigdon and featuring a bevy of clever dancers with an elaborate stage setting and a wealth of costumes, has the headline position on this week's strong Pantages bill of six numbers at the Grand theater. The ballet consists of nine artistically executed dance features.

If applause is any criterion, the Amble brothers, introduced as America's foremost equilibrists, in "The Act Sensational," and Morey Barton and Jack Sparling, the vociferous vocalists, were fully as popular with the audience last night as was the headline attraction. The Amble's are not only clever and daring, but they are decidedly original and their novel feats place their act in a class distinctly by itself.

Barton and Sparling probably drew the best hand of the evening with their harmony and lively comedy. There is something doing every minute when they are on the stage and the chances are one to one that that something is a laugh producer.

Comedy and pathos are blended in just about the right proportions in the presentation of "The Stage Carpenter" by Roy Atwell and Clayton White and the skit uncovers some real ability.

Arthur Deane, the vociferous vocalist, with his comic antics at the piano while vivacious Doris LaFell does her part toward making the act a popular one with her new songs.

Another delightful musical treat is given by Thornton Flynn and pretty Dena Caryl. Dena plays the piano and gives the little skit its charm and Thornton sings well and even matches his voice with that of the immortal John McCormack reproduced by a phonograph on the stage. The bill will be repeated at the usual performance times (Wednesday) evening.

Small Fire Damages Both Barn and House

A barn at 707 Fifth avenue north, owned by Mrs. Margaret Allen, was partially burned Tuesday evening. According to Assistant Fire Chief William Grover, the fire was possibly set by children.

The fire was controlled within a few minutes, but soon after the trucks returned to the central station they were recalled to extinguish a blaze in a house at 707 Fifth avenue north, also owned by Mrs. Allen. The fire was under control in the house and it was believed a spark from the first fire settled there unnoticed. Damage done to both the house and the barn was about $100.

In Mrs. Marcinko's petition for probate of the will she states that the estate consists of both real and personal property and is worth $5,400.

LIQUOR SEIZURE DECREE MAY BE GIVEN TODAY

Final Disposition of Case Involving Test Issues Expected From Leslie.

Final disposition of the Joe Lakman liquor seizure case, pending in district court for more than a month, is expected to be made today (Wednesday) in a decree by Judge J. B. Leslie. The case involves the same constitutional questions raised in the famous Nick Bantz case and during its pendency issuance of search warrants has been practically suspended by both Judge Leslie and Judge H. H. Ewing.

Submission of testimony was completed at an adjourned hearing and it was understood at the court house Tuesday that Judge Leslie would enter a decree Wednesday. Lakman was arrested and the liquor seized by Sheriff Bob Gordon at 2715 First avenue north and Deputy Sheriff Jack Abrams testified that while enroute to the jail Lakman offered him a roll of bills to place a bottle of whisky which had been found in a pocket of an automobile with the rest of the liquor seized.

Excepting the one bottle, the whisky was found in sacks in Lakman's garage, and witnesses were produced who had seen sacks, carried there from an automobile.

Lakman testified that two months before his arrest he purchased the liquor, paying $1500 for 25 cases. He first stored it in his house and later removed it to the garage, he said, because his wife was afraid of burglars. He stated when on the stand that he purchased the liquor for his own use and to give to his friends. State witness testified that they had seen and heard cars at the Lakman garage both day and night for a considerable period prior to his arrest.

Lakman is represented by S. J. Cowley and the state's case has been conducted by County Attorney H. G. Bennett and his deputies, W. J. Tye and E. A. Ewald.

Validity Is Attacked of Law Prohibiting Making Carbon Black

Helena, May 3.—Constitutionality of chapter 124 of the session laws of 1921, prohibiting the manufacture of "carbon black" from natural gas is attacked in a suit filed in the district court here by the Gas Products Co., a firm incorporated in South Dakota and doing business in this state under its corporation laws, against Attorney General Wellington D. Rankin and D. Young, county attorney of Fallon county.

An injunction is sought by the Gas Products Co. enjoining the defendants from enforcing the statutes. Constitutionality of the law is attacked on the ground that it is confiscatory and deprives individuals and concerns of property without due process of law. The law provides for fines of from $100 a day to $1,000 for its violation.

The Gas Products Co. has $200,000 invested in Montana, it is said, and was operating a large plant, employing a considerable number of men near Baker, when the law was passed. It is the only concern of its kind in the state. The law declares that the manufacture of "carbon black" which is the principal ingredient in printers' ink, is a waste of natural gas.

Crawford Too Late; Road Agents' Cache Lifted Last Year

Billings, May 3.—Cash buried by road agents years ago and now sought in this district by O. W. Crawford of Missouri, was removed from his hiding place in 1920 by a cow-puncher working for the Custer Cattle Co., according to an unsigned letter from El Paso, Texas, received by the chief of police here Monday morning.

The letter said the money was buried on the south bank of Reno creek, 400 yards from its junction with the Little Big Horn river, near the Custer battle field. Crawford claimed the amount was $83,000.

"This is exaggerated," said the letter, "but the sum was sufficient to justify an effort on the part of anyone possessing information of its existence."

Crawford was arrested here on a charge of larceny in Missouri several years ago. He said the charge was a "frame-up" by a former partner to prevent him from finding the treasure.

Directions to the spot, he claimed, were given in St. Louis by a diving member of the band of outlaws that buried the loot.

Mills Need Not Give Flour for Wheat Is Commission Ruling

Helena, May 3.—The Montana law does not intend that mills exchange wheat for flour except as an accommodation to farmers and not so that the farmers can sell the flour, in the opinion of the Montana railroad commission, ex-officio trade commission. The ruling is made in the case of the Polson farm bureau, which complained that a local mill refused, under the wheat exchange plan, to give the farmers flour in sacks bearing the label of the company. The allegation that inferior flour was given the farmers is not sustained by the commission. It appears from the testimony that the flour was sold by some of the farmers at a price lower than the mill said it could do business on.

Deduction of Fine From Bail Deposit Is Upheld by Court

Helena, May 3.—When a defendant has a cash bail a court may, on his conviction, order this bail money to be applied to a fine and in making such an order the judgment of the court is not modified, the Montana supreme court decided Monday in the appeal of Louis L. Fowler, convicted in Madison county of sedition utterances. He had up a $10,000 cash bail. His fine was $3,000 and the court ordered that $3,000 of the bail be taken to pay the fine. The appeal was on the ground that the court's order modified the judgment. In the opinion, by Chief Justice Theodore Brandt, the trial court is upheld.
