

Dempsey's Stock Rises and Carpentier's Falls Since Latter's Arrival

American's Rugged Physique Compared to Frenchman's Pink and White Complexion and Flat Chest Has Influence Upon Fans.

New York, May 21.—Since Georges Carpentier's arrival in this country, a decided slump has been noted in the confidence of the boxing enthusiasts who had been inclined to the belief that the Frenchman had an even money chance to beat Jack Dempsey on July 2 next. You hear no talk of that sort today. On the contrary, if the sporting men continue to feel as they do just now, I should not be at all surprised to hear some new offers within the next week. Odds of that sort would be silly and they may not exist. The fact remains, however, that Georges has lost prestige. The reasons for this state of mind follow.

Has Parlor Look.
Of course, this is a little overdrawn, but I am merely giving the state of mind of those who have seen Dempsey recently and then went down to the dock to look Carpentier over. The Frenchman has a sort of pinkish color below the cheek bones, which, though probably natural, suggests a man who is to be trusted. Again, his chin is sharp and all in all, the impression he gave was that he was a pretty fragile customer to battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. This idea was given by an apparent flatness of chest.

Second.—The theory of his manager, Deschamps, is that too much boxing will not help his protege and that as a consequence sparring as a part of the training course will be limited, emphasis being placed on road work and gymnastics, shadow-boxing and the like. This hit American sportsmen right between the eyes and they are inclined to believe that the wily Francois is trying to put something over on the public.

Wise Guys Puzzled.
But, if he is serious, how, ask the wise guys, can Carpentier expect to perfect himself in the judgment of distance, timing and all the other niceties of the fistie art which require constant attention lest a fighter grow rusty in these valuable elements of his game.

Three.—The secretiveness of affairs at Carpentier's training quarters may have been designed to conceal from the public how good the French fighter is. But there are a lot of Americans who are doing it out that it might just as well be for the reason of not showing how poor he is. That may sound a little foolish, but it's the way the minds of people work.

Four.—Looking over Carpentier's opponent in his next fight, it is not hard to take down the calibre of the men he has met. Of these the best are held to be Billy Papke, Frank Klaus and Joe Jeannette, all of whom beat the French champion. Whatever may be said about other men Carpentier has fought, however, no one can say that these men were not the goods.

Given No Credit.
They were tough guys, about in their prime and Carpentier, a mere kid, gave them grueling battles. Why this is not held to his credit is beyond me. Anyway it is not, just now, anyway, while everyone laughs at his victories over Bombardier Wells and Joe Beckett.

As for Dempsey, as everyone well knows, had not Bill Brennan made the showing against him that he did, Jack would not be at least a 3 to 1 favorite, with not a great deal of interest in his next fight. Somehow, this little Brennan affair at Madison Square Garden has been fading out of the mind, while most of the talk is concentrated upon Dempsey's man-killing performance against Willard, Fulton, Mike and other opponents. Why? I don't know.

Here's one explanation. Almost everyone who thinks that Carpentier has a good chance would not get sick with disappointment were the American heavyweight to be installed as a hot favorite. Nothing would suit them better than to see Dempsey's long shot; for look at the money they would rag down were the Frenchman to slip over one of his well known sleep producers.

TRIO WILL NAME WINNER OF BOUT JULY 2 IF IT SHOULD GO THE LIMIT

Because of the possibility of the Carpentier-Dempsey championship battle going the limit of twelve rounds, Tex Rickard has decided on a plan to officially name the winner of the bout in spite of the referee's decision. Rickard will ask Jim Jeffries, Lord Lonsdale and Jim Corbett to act as judges in case of necessity. It is probable that the principals in the great bout will agree to abide by the decision of the judges should there fail to be a knock-out. The judges' decision will also serve to decide the thousands of wagers on the battle.

YANKEE GOLFERS BEGIN CAMPAIGN FOR BRITISH CUP

Bobby Jones Starts Game at 10 O'Clock This Morning With Manford as Opponent.

By WALTER CAMP,
Special Correspondent of The Tribune.

New York, May 21.—When Bobby Jones tees off at Hoy Lake at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the opening drive of the American campaign to capture the British amateur title, he will be one of the best players in the United States who will be stirred as never before. Jones' opponent will be Manford, one of the young players—not a top notch, but still a very formidable golfer.

Dispatches, cables and letters tell us that the Britishers are hopeful of repelling the Yankee invaders, they are by no means over-confident, which is a wholesome mood—and a dangerous one.

Although our countrymen realize, as a result of the success of Tully in the 1921 championship affair, that youngsters are formidable, yet nevertheless they appear to win their greatest hopes upon some of the older players, seadoned like Dick O'Scott and Major Boyd or Johnny Ball.

O'Scott Getting Old.
It is, however, unlikely that Dick, who comes up against O'Connell in the first round, will enter again play much golf as he has at various times in the past at Prestwick, or even at Hoy Lake, which is really his home course, for he is well along toward the sixties. Still, he may, and if he does O'Connell will have his work cut out for him.

Better Players Younger.
The best of the British professionals are of a more recent vintage than the amateurs named above. The great triumvirate, Vardon, Taylor and Braid, were born in the early seventies. Sandy Hovell was born in 1870. Ray was born in 1878, but Duncan, Douglas, Edgar and Jock Hutchinson were born respectively in 1883, 1884 and 1885.

America does not lack "grand old men." At least we have one outstanding veteran, Wilber Traverser, who has just added another star to his crown at Garden City. He is a remarkable man. He was beyond 40 when he crossed the ocean and accomplished something that Americans have tried—and in vain to do since—he won the British amateur golf championship in 1890. This is a splendid record and, in spite of his years, he is capable of the most remarkable of all time.

Exception to Rule.
The old saying "youth will be served" is true, but in spite of this it has become apparent that exceptions exist. More than one old timer, indeed, has demonstrated that skill, strength and co-ordination of muscle are not the exclusive possessions of younger men. The best of it is that our generation has produced more men in middle life who are capable of great deeds on the field of play, perhaps more of them than ever before—a fine sign of the physical and mental progress of our race. And it would be indeed interesting and to some of us inspiring were some veteran among the 223 contestants at Hoy Lake to come through and win the title at the expense of many youths assembled for that honor.

Girl in Boys Clothes Knows All About Movie Studios in California

"Freddy" Weiderecct Breaks Silence to Talk Films.

Deputy Sheriff Edith Connelly believes she has uncovered a fragment, however small, of the past of Freddy Weiderecct, the mysterious girl prisoner at the county jail. From Freddy's intimate knowledge of the California moving picture studios and the stage business of cinema production, it seems apparent to the sheriff that the girl has had extensive experience in the world of fiction, but no more is known of her position there than of her reason for wearing men's attire.

The girl's determination to say nothing at all about her past is as steadfast as on the day of her arrest two weeks ago, but she appeared not at all reluctant to discuss the movie studios. She believed, Mrs. Connelly thought, that this detail of her experience would disclose no vital part of her personal history, and in analyzing her story the sheriff's force has decided that she was right. Her former activities have not been traced beyond the hotel where she was arrested.

An Accomplished Pianist.
Freddy came under suspicion because she had not left her room for a month. She was known to the landlady as a retiring young man who apparently had some good reason for remaining hidden. Towards the last Freddy ran out of funds and it came to be the habit of the landlady to give food to the young man who was so certainly out of luck. To the hotel guests Freddy was an accomplished pianist who gave delightful concerts, but whom they never saw. By paying the first instalment she secured a piano and throughout the month of her hiding she spent much of her time at the keyboard. Classical music was her favorite dispassion, but at the jail she passes the dragging hours reading Victor Hugo.

In the basement of the jail Sheriff Bob Gordon found a battered old organ—the kind that folds up into a vest pocket edition of the real thing—and with this Freddy entertains the prisoners at times, but somehow it doesn't seem to fill the bill. A cigarette and a book of poetry is much more to her liking.

Hair Getting Long.
The girl's hair has grown until it would be difficult for her to continue her masquerade without another trip to the barber. Before her arrest her deception she practiced by wearing a man's suit, brogans, cap, shirt, collar and necktie was complete. Her landlady was in her room every day, but she did not suspect that her boarder was a girl until after her arrest. A doctor was called for Freddy when she had been in the room a week, and he did not suspect her masquerade. The same physician saw her at the county jail on the day of her arrest and did not know until told that his former patient was a woman.

Freddy's good nature and philosophical attitude towards events as they occur have not changed since her imprisonment. She pleaded guilty to vagrancy with a grin and has smiled much of the time ever since. Officials have found it easy to imagine all sorts of reasons for her masquerade, but of one thing they are convinced—she is missing from somewhere.

ICE PRICE CUT TO 60 CENTS HUNDRED LBS.

One Company Has 6000 Tons at Valier Which Must Be Moved This Summer.

Instead of increasing the price of ice, the failure of the Missouri river to freeze over last winter has been the indirect means of reducing the cost 40 cents a hundred to consumers in the city. Differences between the dealers, according to accounts, have reached a stage that compels one firm to dispose of a large tonnage of ice, harvested and stored at Valier, before winter or lose all that is then left in storage, and the result is a cutting of prices to 60 cents a hundred weight, retail.

$1.00 Last Year.
Last year the price of both natural and manufactured ice was $1 a hundred and this figure prevailed until a few days ago. The Great Falls Ice Co., which handles the bulk of the natural ice sold in the city, and the Crystal Ice Co., manufacturers of artificial ice, failed to continue their former amicable relations, it is said, and since early in the week there have been different quotations. Saturday the Great Falls Ice Co. announced a selling price of 60 cents, with the declaration that this figure will be lowered as soon as the next crop is harvested.

$6 Ton Wholesale.
L. W. Suhr, of the Great Falls Ice Co., stated that his firm has 6000 tons of ice stored at Valier and that it must be disposed of before winter. Its location will make it valueless once the river freezes over again at Great Falls, he said. Last year, Mr. Suhr controlled both natural and artificial ice sold in Great Falls, but when the river failed to congeal last winter the former arrangement was not renewed. This result made it necessary for Mr. Suhr to put up ice at Valier, and now that he has it he must sell it before fall.

The price of 60 cents is offered to the family trade. The wholesale price $6 per ton. Last year the wholesale price was fixed on a sliding scale, ranging from 40 to 80 cents a hundred above ton lots. The price of $6 a ton makes a flat rate of 30 cents per hundred, wholesale.

Babe Ruth bagged three circuit drives. Harris added a brace of bags to his stolen base record and is showing the way with eight.

Sun River Highway Will Be Improved

Four drags were placed at work on the Sun River highway Saturday as the first step of the county commissioners' plan to improve the road. Ben Johnston, chairman of the board, and Robert Day, county surveyor, inspected the road from the summit to the rough condition of the road which travel had diverted along the side of the gravel stretches instead of following the crown. The worst stretches of the road are between Sunnyside and Vaughn and between Sunnyside and the Sun River bridge. Frequent dragging will place the road in a satisfactory condition, believes Mr. Johnston.

ESTIMATE BRIDGE COST BY MONDAY

An estimate as to the cost of the temporary running along the Missouri river between the south end of the Tenth street bridge and Sixth street viaduct will probably be ready for presentation to the city council Monday night, City Engineer M. L. Morris announced Saturday. If the estimate is available for consideration at that time the council will have a basis for devising means for financing the project.
