HOLDING A HUSBAND
Adele Garrison's New Phase of... REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Way Dicky Took the News Madge Bought.

Where is Richard? Mother Graham shot the question at me when I had finished my breakfast and was rising to go upstairs to Junior.

"Still sleeping when I came over to help you with Junior." I feared my cheeks showed a betraying flush at the consciousness of the tarradiddle. "Humph!" My mother-in-law gave me a keen, sceptical glance.

A Decision. "I thought so." She smiled sardonically, but I saw that the chance to put me in the wrong had restored her good humor and would give a fillip to her digestion.

"Mrs. Ticer, if you'll just—" She turned her back upon me in undisguised dismissal, and I fully seized the opportunity to speed back to Dicky.

"He was still sleeping soundly when I entered the room at the other farmhouse, and I infinitely dreaded waking him, for I knew from bitter experience that rousing a sleeper from his slumber and trying to get Dicky up in the morning were, or so I whimsically fancied, distinctly similar processes.

"But I knew that I could not delay the performance so I marched resolutely to the bed, bent over it, and kissed him lightly on the forehead, hoping against the experience of years that this time honored method of conjugal rousing would be effectual.

"I Can't—" Alas for sentiment! My husband stirred and brushed his hand impatiently over his face.

"Cursed flies," he muttered, then turned heavily without opening his eyes and sank into profound slumber again.

"There have been times in my earlier married life when this response would have brought tears to my eyes, and an ache to my heart. But time has brought me a new sense of calmness—sometimes I think the two terms synonymous—and I only smiled appreciatively as I bent over my husband again, shook him vigorously by the shoulder and called:

"Dicky! Dicky! Wake up!" "Wicky! Dicky!" Roused into irritation, he opened his eyes and glared at me. "Let me alone." He jerked his shoulder loose from my hand and rolled back sleepily.

"I can't let you alone," I said firmly, sitting down upon the side of the bed. "Your mother is up, and wants you to get over there immediately so that after breakfast you can go with her to find a house!"

The mention of his mother's name brought him to a sitting posture with a jerk. "Mother!" he frownedly ejaculated. "What's eating you? She isn't here."

"No, but she's over at the Ticer house," I patiently explained. "How do you know she wants me?" "I've just come from there."

"For the love of Mike, also Pete! Did you go over there and rout her out to start that crazy scheme of yours?"

I wisely forebore to remind him that the crazy scheme to make his mother discover the Dacey farm and propose buying it was conceived in his own fertile brain. Instead, I hastened to pour oil on the troubled waters as fast as possible, for—to borrow from Dicky's own vocabulary—it looked like a wild night at sea.

"No indeed," and I felt that much of my reply to be truthful at least. "I went over to help with Junior, but she was already up when I arrived."

"I wouldn't believe you on a stack of Bibles," Dicky growled, as he rolled laboriously out of bed. "And if I hadn't promised last night, like a fool to go through with this thing, I'd let you and that old ruin you want to buy go where they're headed!"

"Next—Why Dicky called Madge 'An Incurable Optimist.'"

VERIFIED ADS OF "MIKEHASIT" BRING FAME TO POET PUBLICIST AND STATE AGENCY FOR GARMENT

The poems of Mikehasit will today (Wednesday) become a statewide institution in Montana. Instead of a purely local medium of advertising for the mercantile business of Mike Mullen, the lyrics which have been editorially recognized from one end of the land to the other will appear in all of the state papers as publicity for a new business departure which they won for their originator.

Mr. Mullen published poems in the Great Falls newspapers for more than 11 years as a business advertisement and within the last year awoke to the fact that they had made him nationally famous. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, in March, 1920, devoted much space to a story of the Great Falls man whose trademark was better known in his home town than his own name and thereafter many of the largest papers in the country carried the account.

Articles in Many Papers. The Seattle Times, the Edmonton Journal, the Minneapolis Tribune, and other of the widely circulated journals followed the Public Ledger's lead in publishing stories of "Mikehasit" and scores of trade journals devoted pages to the achievements of his verse. The American Hatter, New York; The Watch Dog, San Francisco, and the Commercial Tribune, Minneapolis, were among the important journals which published accounts of the Mikehasit poems.

In 1919 a magazine writer passing through the state heard of the local fame of the poems and came to Great Falls from Helena to learn more about them. He found out here that great numbers of people frankly did not know Mike Mullen and that some folks had never heard of him, but there was no one who did not know Mikehasit. People who "stared blankly" when asked about Mike Mullen would smile their recognition of "Mikehasit."

State Agency Offered Him. The story in the Philadelphia Public Ledger followed. Mr. Mullen saw the writer person, but his call meant nothing at all until friends began to bring in newspapers and magazines with stories about the Mikehasit poems. The Mikehasit verse deals usually with matters of current interest and more frequently than otherwise have something to say about local affairs. Some of the poems are run in series, while others refer to only a day's events. There is never a convention, a political gathering or a thing of general community interest that does not attract Mikehasit's attention.

The national recognition given Mr. Mullen as a result of his poems recently brought from the manufacturers of one of the staple garment lines an offer of their Montana state agency and arrangements have been completed for a state wide advertising campaign that will feature the verse that has until now been used only in Great Falls. Two or three road representatives will cover the state for Mr. Mullen and he will himself "make" the larger cities. He left Great Falls Tuesday evening for his first trip through northern Montana.

Jugo-Slovak Clashes With Greek Cafe Men on Restaurant Noise

Greece and Jugo-Slovak clashed Tuesday afternoon in police court and with the help of Police Magistrate H. A. Sheppard, the former emerged triumphant. The controversy was the outgrowth of several complaints filed by Joe Cartez, owner of the Lincoln Hotel, who charged the Greek proprietors of the O. K. restaurant with allowing boisterous conduct in their place of business during the early morning. The racket, the hotel keeper complained, had the effect of keeping his roomers from sleep and was the cause of several leaving. The hotel is over the cafe.

One of the cafe proprietors denied every allegation by the hotel owner. He told the court that the cause of business was as quiet as possible and the only way he could run his restaurant to suit the plaintiff, would be to close the doors. Judge Sheppard dismissed the case on the grounds that evidence was insufficient to convict. A restaurant and hotel should not be conducted in the same building, especially when the nationalities of the proprietors are different, the judge said. The ordinance providing for peace and quiet was read to the Greeks and they promised to exert more care in keeping conversation confined within the four walls of the cafe.

Quits as Bondsman When Stafford Has Him Arrested, Too.

Dan Stafford caused the arrest of Fred Dahliman Thursday last week on the charge that Dahliman had used Stafford's automobile without legal authority. He did not realize that his action would bring about his own arrest. Dahliman had helped furnish the bail for Stafford's release following his arrest, May 24, on the charge of selling intoxicating liquors. Dahliman immediately withdrew as bondsman and Stafford was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Curt Dennis, Tuesday and placed in the city jail. Dahliman was accused of using the car Dahliman was accused of using was not the property of Stafford. In order to protect himself Dahliman secured a mortgage on the machine and the bill of sale, which gave him possession. According to Deputy County Attorney F. A. Ewald, Dahliman has furnished bonds for Stafford on three other occasions.

Kiwanis Club Man Will Speak Today at Rotary Lunch

L. E. Flint, representing the Great Falls Kiwanis club, will today (Wednesday) address the Rotary club luncheon at the Hotel Rainbow pursuant to the plans of club organizations of the city to exchange speakers. Scott Leavitt of the Rotary club addressed the Kiwanis club last Monday. Mr. Flint's subject will be "Community Life." A program of music will be given at the luncheon if plans under way with Rotarian Hiram Johnson of the program committee are successfully matured. Next week the Rotarians will be addressed by Arthur Lamey of Havre, who will come here to complete an exchange of speakers between the Great Falls and Havre clubs. Rotarian Johnson addressed the Havre club last December. Mr. Lamey is president of the Havre club.

Promise to Leave But Stay in City

Steve Combs, 40, who had a $100 fine suspended Monday morning on his promise to leave Great Falls within 24 hours, was back in the toils of the police again Tuesday. Combs was arrested by Captain Fred Locher who observed the man begging on the streets. Two partially filled bottles, containing a liquid said to be denatured alcohol, were taken from Combs by the police. John Tillman, partner of Combs, also instructed to leave town, would have been back in jail but for the fact that he saw Captain Locher approaching and thus made his getaway.

ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER, WOUNDED, GIVES BAIL. Albert Strizich, alleged bootlegger, shot during a liquor raid at Manchester on May 29, was admitted to $500 bail in the Wilson justice court Tuesday. Strizich was released yesterday afternoon from the Deaconess hospital where he has been confined since the shooting. His case will be called for trial at the next session of the district court.

Last of N. P. Trains Run Through City on Detour for Washouts

The last passenger trains of the Northern Pacific, passing through Great Falls on the Great Northern tracks on account of washouts at Wibaux and Colgate, passed through here Tuesday afternoon, it was announced Tuesday at the office of W. E. Smith, general superintendent of the Great Northern at Great Falls. The washouts were reported Saturday and it was necessary to run the Northern Pacific passenger trains from Lead and Sydney through Great Falls on a detour.

80% of oil and gas to shareholders raising $100,000 syndicate capital, 7 1/2% to Mr. Campbell and associates, 12 1/2% to landholders.

"Big and Juicy, and Untainted"

That is what one of the shrewdest oil operators in Cat Creek gave as the REASON for the CONFIDENCE they have in Gordon Campbell's company, and another keen man, remarked in the same discussion—"YOU ARE RIGHT, and THE PEOPLE ARE INVESTING WITH CAMPBELL FOR THE FURTHER REASON THAT WHEN HE BRINGS HIS FIRST WELL IN THEY HAVE WON A FORTUNE, while an investor in a company with a small acreage, or with only a little GOOD acreage and a lot of POOR stuff, don't get much when they do bring in one well."

From the Arctic to Old Mexico

Do not forget that this is not just ANOTHER OIL COMPANY; this is THE COMPANY. THE GORDON CAMPBELL company—organized by Mr. Campbell in order that YOU might have the opportunity of participating at Kevin. After more than twenty-five years of the widest and most successful work as a professional geologist, embracing experience in every important district from Old Mexico to the Arctic Regions of Northern Canada and Alaska, Mr. Campbell runs into this structure, here in the "center" of the "great oil belt" paralleling and east of the great Rocky Mountain uplifts.

"Puddles and Lakes"

But without meaning the slightest knock for any other field—the Great Creator made them all so there is nothing mortally personal when we observe and consider His work—KEVIN formation, size of dome, gathering area, depth of erosion in Colorado shale over top of dome (shallow drilling to reach the lower Colorado oil horizons); the several sands that can be reached with standard drilling equipment; estimated thickness of the sands—these things assure the Kevin possibilities are as "A LAKE BESIDE A PUDDLE" when compared with most fields.

A Closed Company Soon

Books will close for public subscription in a very short time now. Those who can subscribe should do so at once. We have arrangements for taking Liberty Bonds at their par or face value. All subscriptions should be mailed, and applications for reservations should be wired, direct to Kevin.

If We Could Tell It

If every reader of this advertisement knew what GORDON CAMPBELL and the writer of this appeal know, we couldn't issue our shares fast enough to take care of the rush. But you don't know it, and if we told you publicly, it would spoil the plans. So all we can say is—take our word for it and subscribe now! While you can!

In the World—I'd Pin Them to the Order Blank at the Corner of This Advertisement—

People only hope as a rule to get an "HONEST RUN" for their money. But here you get not only an honest run, but an INTELLIGENT RUN—a picked, "ALWAYS WINNER" run for your money.

The men and women who have taken the trouble to inform themselves, investigate and study the facts, are buying all the shares they can in this "GREATEST OPPORTUNITY IN THE OIL WORLD TODAY."

We have yet to know of a SINGLE INDIVIDUAL, who has actually looked into the whole proposition from "A. to Z." who is not just as satisfiedly confident as Gordon Campbell and others close to him are.

And that is right. We couldn't afford to "speculate" with UNCERTAINTY. Just remember, Mr. Campbell was right, and right FIRST—in both Cat Creek and Devil's Basin; but he couldn't do anything alone, and under circumstances generally prevailing at time he worked so hard to get California capital, and others interested, nobody "believed" there was oil in Montana; but his geological advice and RECOMMENDATIONS were RIGHT.

Back to Kevin

When he went back to Kevin it was with the hope that if it surveyed and checked out according to earlier indications, he would try to convince enough people to permit of its development on a basis to sort of fix himself for life financially—that is all the reason that he is reserving 7 1/2% for himself and associates. And for every dollar he is going to make, shareholders of the company will make approximately from their 80% in the over 14,000 acres of very choicest oil ground on top of the dome.

Books Close Soon

Books will close for public subscription in a very short time now—it may be very sudden, with no notice. Those who can possibly subscribe should do so AT ONCE. Units will remain at $25, the par value, for the short time they may still be available before all are sold or production of first well determined.

Liberty Bonds

We have arrangements for taking Liberty Bonds at their par or face value. All subscriptions, however permitted, should be mailed, and applications for reservations should be wired, direct to Kevin.

GEOLOGY OF BOWES STRUCTURE. For detailed report, reference is made to the findings of Stewart & Wright, geologists, Lewistown, Mont., contained in their written report, Dec. 24, 1920, on file in the office of the Bowes Structure Oil Company, Stapleton Building, Billings, Mont., a copy of which is available upon request. Irving E. Stewart, senior member of the firm Stewart & Wright, was formerly associated with geological department Midwest company. Following are quotations from the report:

FIRST—The Bowes Structure, all within the reach of the drill, which are very favorably located and which are of sufficient thickness and porosity to make favorable reservoirs for the accumulation of large quantities of oil and gas. "It is recommended that the Bowes Structure be tested for the following reasons: FIRST—The presence of two small anticlines favorable for the accumulation of oil and gas. SECOND—The presence of black bituminous shale, which will provide a source of oil or gas. THIRD—The presence of four sands which can be reached within a depth of 2,600 feet favorably located stratigraphically. FOURTH—Easy accessibility of the structures from a railroad, the nearest railroad point being only seven miles distant. FIFTH—Presence of lignite beds from which fuel for drilling purposes can be obtained, and an abundance of water for drilling purposes."

Further geological data is available from Mr. Earl Hyde, mining engineer, for many years in the employ of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate, New York City. In a wire from Mr. Hyde, under date of May 24, 1921, is quoted as follows: "Bowes structure is interesting to me, will consider joining in deal."

TITLES, CONTRACTS, ETC. All titles, contracts and legal matters of the Bowes Structure Oil Company have been examined by counsel for the company. Written opinions are on file in the company office, Billings, Mont. Copies may be had upon request.

PURPOSE OF THE COMPANY. It is the aim of the company to develop maximum oil production from the extensive holdings now controlled or later acquired, and from time to time to extend operations as deemed aggressive, progressive, and advisable. No. 1 well will be drilled on location selected by Stew art & Wright in the Bowes structure, to a maximum depth of 2,600 feet, which, according to geological measurements will develop four known oil sands.

HUGE POSSIBLE RETURNS TO SHAREHOLDERS. The Bowes Structure Oil Company is a wildcat venture. Because of the existing favorable geologic conditions, eliminating the large percentage of hazard, the possibilities of developing a new oil field in the holdings of the company are very interesting. And, because of the choice and extensive holdings of the company, the high prices of the Bowes Structure Oil Company may command after an oil field is developed, a readily understood, to mean huge profits for buyers of the shares at this time. An idea of the advances in market prices of shares in wildcat wells after oil is developed is recalled through citing recent history, as follows: 66. Petroleum stock, bought at $250, sold at $10,000, after bringing in No. 1 well, which was drilled in wildcat territory, Cat Creek, Montana. Fowler-Burkhardt stock, bought at $100, sold at $17,500, after bringing in No. 1 well, which was drilled in wildcat territory, Burkhardt, Texas. Hog Creek Oil and Gas stock, bought at $100, sold at $30,000 after bringing in No. 1 well, which was drilled in wildcat territory, Hog Town, Texas. Petroleum stock, bought at $100, sold at $3,500 after bringing in No. 1 well in wildcat territory, Northwest Burkhardt.

TREASURY STOCK OFFERING. At 10 o'clock a. m. June 20, 1921, at office the Montana National bank, Billings, Mont., subscription lists will be open to applications for 20,000 shares capital stock out of the treasury holdings of the Bowes Structure Oil Company, at par, $5 per share.
