Producers Protesting.

IT IS the fashion these days when any class of producers get into a place where there is distress, or lack of profit, to arrange a financing corporation and in this way meet the emergency.

Cooperative marketing and organized financing are protests against somebody who is charged with, or who is actually getting away with some money which the consumer pays and which the producer ought to get.

Counting the Cost.

STATISTICS of British foreign trade for May reveal in part the enormous damage done by the coal miners' strike.

We have no hesitation in saying that all of the difficulties of the farmers who raise crops, of the stockmen who supply meat products, of the sheepmen who produce wool would be solved if they, each and all, could get for their products what they ought to bring at the ranch, with only the necessary and reasonable charges for transportation and distribution.

If we cannot find a way to get more of the consumers' money to the producer, then the protests that we have spoken about will continue. The farmer is entitled to receive more of the money that is paid by the person who finally uses what he sends out from the ranch.

The Public Has Rights.

MAYOR Armour, acting in behalf of the council, has been successfully moving garbage for several days. The health menace is for the time being, removed. This is mighty important and does away with a situation that was full of danger for every man, woman and child in the city.

The city is attempting to care for its parking system while the wage dispute drags along. It is the duty of the administration to do as much work of this kind as will prevent damage to these parks that have cost nearly a million dollars.

Montana Will Learn.

THE production of 30 and 40 bushels of wheat to the acre in 1915 and 1916 where the seed was carelessly shot into stubble ground, has turned out to be the greatest curse that ever happened to Montana agriculture.

This may sound like a rash statement but we think it is true. Thousands of alleged farmers have been trying the same foolish method ever since, and have not harvested the seed that was wasted.

If the public is not entitled to these reservations we may as well turn the city charter to the wall.

Peace at Fargo.

IT WAS a good safe bet that the state executive committee of the Nonpartisan league of North Dakota would not allow its differences with George A. Totten, deposed manager of the Fargo Courier-News, to come up to the point where Totten would be put upon the witness stand.

The Haskin Letter

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

THE WHITE HOUSE CHINA.

Washington, D. C., July 10.—China the flora and fauna of every state. The china was of a beautiful quality and the designs were artistic, but when they were copied in cheap china and sold, the Hayes dishes lost the individuality, which was their main charm.

With White House china designs so much copied that many people owned articles they honestly thought genuine, with the historic White House china scattered to the ends of the country by sales; and with no systematic records kept of the articles left in the executive mansion, you can see how making a collection of china used by the presidents could easily take 18 years.

Luckily, presidential souvenirs have been treasured in the families of the presidents, and their descendants have been generous in turning over some of their relics to the government. It may be said here that nothing has been, or will be, bought for this china collection from the White House china and china closets has been donated or loaned.

Interest of Presidents' Wives. The mistresses of the White House of late years have been eager to see the china collection established.

On the other hand there is the Cincinnati plate of the Washingtons which is certain authority asked for would do, and of his founding of the Order of Cincinnati. In his time it was a popular custom to use all kinds of insipid articles of personal use.

Both Washington and Jefferson sent to Paris to obtain such things as ornaments and silverware. Washington's friend, Gouverneur Morris, suggests in a letter that the president may think him extravagant for his purchases.

One of the most interesting objects in the china collection is a fruit dish which has long been in the White House and is now identified as one of the Madison dishes, very probably one saved by the level-headed Madame Dolley when the capital was attacked by the British.

The dish is very elaborate. It is set on a pedestal formed by figures of the three graces. The decoration in blue and gold was exactly that of the Madison china table. An employee of the White House remembered seeing the dish in use in Lincoln's time.

The identity and historic associations connected with each article in the china collection has been arranged on a series of cards, in the care of Mrs. Isabella A. Burley, county superintendent of schools, Phillips county.

Those attending the state normal school at Dillon this summer are: Jean Hewitt, Olive Johnson, Ellen Swanson, Ada Towne, Mary Kay, Susanna Evans, Evelyn Zabelle, Etta Zabelle, Eugene Zabelle, Viola Panacke, Goldie Reid, Alice Ness, Madeline Davis, and Azalia Strathman.

Eight of the number are taking training at the state university at Missoula: Margaret Olson, Dorothy Garrison, Frances Garrison, Bessie Cattanech, R. L. Wampler and Mrs. Esther Wampler, Thelma Wuest and Gladys Robinson.

Should be given authority" which would permit him to substitute German reparations bonds for the Allies, which the authority asked for would do, and the Nashville Banner (Ind.) believes that "this country will assuredly not be willing to accept any settlement demanding the reason why."

Without urging refusal the Baltimore Sun (Ind. Dem.) suggests "drastic amendments" to the plan because: "The act in its present form gives the secretary of treasury altogether too sweeping, and therefore altogether too dangerous, a power—a blanket authority to convert or refund the allied bonds in any way he sees fit, or in any manner an opportunistic policy toward the economic condition of Europe may suggest."

Looking at it with a political slant the Charlotte Observer (Ind. Dem.) makes the comment that "according to the Republican theory, it is all wrong to invest a Democrat with any power out of the ordinary when it comes to giving a Republican power, the sky is the limit." There is "no necessity," it feels to endow the secretary of the treasury thus, since the laws already in force should be promptly rejected.

Granting Mr. Mellon the best intentions the Knoxville Sentinel (Ind. Dem.) does not believe that yielding to the administration's request would be a "safe and business measure."

But the majority sentiment is behind the plan and newspapers of Democratic as well as Republican leanings support it. The Mobile Register (Dem.) for instance, sees a danger to "national business" in "legislative leisure and delay" and considers it "to be to the public advantage to grant the powers asked for by the Senate."

Death Grip on Bushes Held Drowned Boy; Is Found Encase in Mud

Special to The Tribune. Libby, July 14.—The body of Oscar Grambauer, the 16-year-old boy who was drowned in the Kootenai river nine days ago near his home, seven miles down the river, was discovered Monday afternoon by Harry Burrell.

The Burrell lad, walking down the railroad track about two miles from the spot where Oscar was drowned, saw the body lying in the stream and called to some neighbor boys on the opposite side to get a boat. They crossed to the body and took it to the Schneider home.

It is thought that as Oscar went down, he grabbed for some bushes which, in his death grip, held him fast, as he was completely covered with mud—about two inches deep on his face.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in the Gompf parlors and interment made in the Libby cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Young of the Episcopal church of Whitefish, read the service.
