REDUCED VALUE ON LAND ASKED AT FORT SHAW

New Petition Says Some Acreage Appraised as Irrigable Not Under Water.

To their protest against the county assessor's valuation of $75 an acre on their irrigated land, about 20 Fort Shaw farmers have added a petition for a reduction in the county's appraisal of a portion of their holdings which has been designated as irrigated. The petition was laid before the county commissioners Friday by R. K. West, who represented Fort Shaw land owners in the recent appeal of Assessor Harold Mady from the board's action in reducing the value of their land from $75 to $50 an acre. Say Lands Not Under Ditch.

The petitioners assert that the county's appraisers designated as being irrigated certain lands which are not under the ditch. Mr. West told the commissioners that the difference between the appraiser's survey and that of the government varies frequently from 5 to 15 acres and that occasionally the difference is 25 acres. It is claimed that the area of irrigated land is conclusively established by the government's acre charge for water. The board is considering the advisability of sending the county surveyor to the affected land to officially determine the acreage, but no action has been definitely determined.

Classification Nearly Done.

It was stated Friday by Commissioners J. R. Bennett and L. H. Komers that land owners over the county are generally entirely satisfied with classifications determined by the appraisers. A few requests have been received for alterations in cultivable areas, but difference of opinion between the owners and the appraisers are usually of little consequence.

The work of classifying land in Cascade county will be completed September 1 and the board is now mailing out notices to land owners to appear on certain dates if they have protests to enter. Notices have thus far been mailed to owners in 12 townships.

TINY PISTOL MENDED WITH GARTER IN HANDS OF 14 YEAR OLD YOUTH, SENDS SHOT INTO PLAYMATE'S ARM

Its hammer operated by a piece of elastic garter, a .22 calibre pistol having perhaps twice the dimensions of a large sized peanut, was responsible Wednesday for a shooting accident at Monarch. A bullet from the midge gun struck Warren Silloway, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Silloway, of 721 Second avenue south, in the left arm, causing a painful flesh wound.

According to information furnished Deputy County Attorney W. J. Tighe, the gun was held by Stewart Tolliver, 14, of Monarch, when it was discharged. Young Silloway avoided being shot in the face when he saw the gun pointed at his head. The gun was brought to Great Falls and turned over to Mr. Tighe, and an investigation will be made by Probation Officer A. A. Carpenter. All parts of the gun were missing except the barrel, stock, cylinder and hammer. The trigger and original propelling force behind the hammer had long since disappeared. By attaching one end of his garter to the barrel and hooking the other end over the hammer, Tolliver found it possible to put tension on the hammer when he drew it back, and by releasing it suddenly was able to explode the shell. The shell could be placed in position only by revolving the cylinder by hand.

A month later he turned up at Monida with a saddle stolen from a ranchman in Idaho. The sheriff was notified and he arrived promptly from Dillon.

Yeik took his arrest without apparent protest but turned suddenly on the sheriff, shooting him twice. He was captured a few hours later and taken to Dillon.

Yeik was convicted May 26, 1920. The execution was witnessed by the father of Yeik's victim, Alphonso Wyman of Phillipsburg, 85 years old, and Henry and Forrest Wyman, brothers of the former sheriff.

Hartley of Spokane, who is in Great Falls for a few days on his way home from a trip to Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and other points. "Whether the general business depression has caused an unusual quiet in the east just now, or whether Great Falls is always livelier than the larger cities, I can't say, but I certainly have seen more life here in this city than I did in any of the larger places." Mr. Hartley is a railroad employe and works between Spokane and Whitefish. He is a guest at the Johnson hotel.

TENTH ST. BRIDGE WILL OPEN SOON

Barricade Erected to Keep Traffic Off Until Latter Part of Next Week.

A barricade to prevent traffic from going over the new Tenth street Mississippi river bridge was built at the north end of the bridge Friday morning by City Engineer M. L. Morris, following the discovery by automobile drivers that it was within the range of possibilities to enter the city over this route. Traffic will probably be opened on the bridge late next week.

Thursday evening Engineer Morris, City Treasurer W. P. Wren and City Clerk W. H. Harrison drove over the bridge, their car being the first vehicle to cross. The approach at the south end has been built up to a point that makes it possible for a courageous driver to make the descent, but the route is considered hazardous.

The fill at the south end of the bridge has been built up to its present point with the more substantial portion of the city garbage and earth washed in by hydraulics. The permanent route between the bridge and Ninth street and Ninth street and Ninth avenue north will not be built until next year, traffic approaching the bridge from the Sixth street viaduct over the city dump. This route will follow the river bank very closely and it is the intention of the administration to eventually make the road permanent as a scenic driveway.

STUDY OF HEALTH IN SCHOOLS URGED

National Tuberculosis Worker Has Conference With County Superintendent.

The possibility of establishing a course of health study in the schools of Cascade county was discussed Friday by Miss M. Grace Osborne, assistant crusade executive of the National Anti-Tuberculosis association, and Miss Jane Keeney, county superintendent of schools.

She declared that she will make herself more intimate with details and investigate into the advantages of such a study.

According to Miss Osborne, Montana ranks among the highest of all states in this work, although it has not yet been firmly established in this state. It is a new field of work and is progressing rapidly in all parts of the country.

"The idea is to make the children form habits through agreeable means which will be competitive," said Miss Osborne. "Score cards are given each student and records of their health and observance of daily hygiene habits posted on the blackboard of each school room. Credits are given for this work, as with other studies. In the high school, it is possible and practicable to work the theory in with any science study; in the grade schools it is given as a separate course or with physiology of such a study.

"Teachers are graded on the results they get from the children. Normal, healthy, properly fed and cared for children can do better school work, therefore it is to the interest of the teacher that such a course be adopted.
