

LEGAL PROVISION MADE FOR GLACIER STORAGE

When Playground Was Created Government Reserved Flowage Rights; Cannot Raise Objection Offered at Yellowstone.

Foresight of reclamation service officials at the time congress established Glacier National park will forever prevent any legal objection to the impounding of water in upper and lower St. Mary lakes for irrigation purposes. It was stated Friday by George Sanford, manager of the Sun river project, in reply to a question as to whether the current understanding concerning the availability of a site at the lake for an international reservoir is correct.

Provision is specific.
"There can never be raised the same objection to a reservoir at St. Mary lake that has been raised to the proposal for a dam in Yellowstone park," said Mr. Sanford. "When the enactment was drawn which set territory aside for Glacier park, specific provision was made for the reservation of the government's right to use any portion of the park for the storing of water for irrigation."

Would Bar Private Project.
"The bill for the creation of Glacier park was approved May 11, 1910, and before it was passed there was inserted this clause:—and that the United States reclamation service may enter upon and utilize for flowage or other purposes any area within said park which may be necessary for the development and maintenance of a government reclamation project." The only project that would encounter a legal obstacle through the impounding of water in St. Mary lake would be one not developed by the reclamation service.

Would Not Submerge Scenery.
Mr. Sanford stated that an opinion frequently expressed is that the raising of the water in St. Mary lake would add to the attraction of the place for tourists. The water would be raised over all of the lower lake and slightly in the upper lake, but it is said that at no place would any land of scenic or other value be submerged. The proposal that a storage dam be built at the lake was the outcome of negotiations by the international joint commission for a settlement of the controversy growing out of the division, between Montana and Canada, of the waters of the Milk and St. Mary rivers.

Rushing Work at Sun River.
Work on lateral ditches recently authorized for the extension of the watered area in the Sun river project is being pushed as rapidly as possible and bids for an additional six miles of ditch will probably be opened November 7, Mr. Sanford stated. Engineers are now at work on a survey for about six miles of ditch near the Crow school house and bids will be asked as soon as the survey is completed. The remainder of the survey for work recently authorized will be completed during the winter.

CASCADE COUNTY HAS 1,400 FARMS, 2,000,000 ACRES OF FARM LANDS, MAC SPADDEN TELLS AD CLUB MEN

The cackle of poultry, the brayings of the ball-horn man, a brass band and a few unseasoned chickens were the only things needed to make the luncheon program of the Great Falls Ad club at Hotel Rainbow Friday a complete county fair. All of the more essential features were there, which is to say there was lots to eat, a wealth of grain exhibits and oratory of quality.

The program was given over to the advertising of Great Falls resources, and County Agent F. E. MacSpadden accompanied a description of the displayed exhibits with some agricultural statistics of Cascade county that varied from the usual recital of columns of figures in that they were fascinating. The county has 1,400 farms, of which 276 embrace 1,000 acres or more; 2,000,000 acres of farm land and 370,000 acres improved.

Big Wheat Acreage
The county's wheat acreage in 1921 totaled 198,000 acres, about equally divided between spring and winter wheat; 18,000 acres of oats, 1,000 acres of potatoes, 4,000 acres of barley, 1,000 acres of corn, 14,000 acres of alfalfa, 1,000 acres of sweet clover and 26,000 acres of hay.

"Corn," said Mr. MacSpadden, "is a crop that is rapidly proving itself adaptable to Cascade county. It was only a few years ago that the total corn crop here was no more than 40 acres, but this year there was 1,000 acres. Every year this crop is improving, the ears getting longer and bigger and maturing earlier."
"A vital point brought out at the state fair this year was that Montana is better adapted to the growth of corn than many mid-western states where the crop is supposed to be staple. It was positively established that the greater portion of Montana's corn crop matures in time for the exhibits at the state fair, while the exhibits at many eastern fairs are from the crop of the previous year."

Wins at State Fair
The speaker said that Cascade county this year took eight first prizes in grain at the state fair, 13 seconds and 11 thirds; 12 first prizes in displays of forage crops, 16 seconds and six thirds, and six firsts in vegetables, 11 seconds and 13 thirds. Eighty-nine varieties of forage crops flourished in Cascade county.

Over a 30-year period, the average rainfall in Cascade county has been 16 and 9-10 inches, and the average fall for the crop season 7 and 9-10 inches, but the last crop season was sub-normal with but 6 and 4-10 inches, winter deeply into the science of so-called dry land farming. Mr. MacSpadden declared that had summer following been universally employed the average wheat yield for the county would have been from 28 to 39 bushels an acre, while under the methods pursued the average has been 18 bushels.

is Misused Term
"The term 'summer following' is a phrase that has been very much misused," said Mr. MacSpadden. "There are only a scattering few who know the real definition of the term. Summer following is the method which calls for plowing in advance of the spring rains, followed by adequate summer tillage. Plowing done later in the season is simply summer plowing, nothing more, will not be realized unless the land is and the benefits of summer following permitted to lay an entire year without crop."

Cascade county, he continued, grows nine varieties of milling wheat, and three new varieties are now being introduced. A new barley with an average yield of 97 bushels an acre over a period of five years is also being introduced, as well as Victory oats, which yield an additional three times as much as the varieties now grown.

Little Flax Grown
Flax is grown but little in the county, there being but 40 acres cultivated in the county this year. The "Montana 32" variety is being developed as a successor to Turkey Red.
"It is of first importance that we turn our attention to agriculture," said Mr. MacSpadden, "and even increase our rate of progress. The national strength lies close to the soil. Man and beast are dependent upon agriculture for sustenance. Prosperity depends upon it."

Most Modern Shoe
Scientists today deplore the wearing of shoes which bind the foot and prohibit the free action of the muscles. Primitive peoples, who wore simple foot coverings of soft skins, had feet that were graceful and sturdy. Their walk was elastic and untrailing.
The ordinary stiff-soled shoes of "civilized" races cause many serious foot troubles because they check the circulation and weaken the muscles by disuse. But the Cantilever Shoe gives the foot perfect freedom. It supports a weak arch without harmful restraint. The flexible shock encourages the foot to arch and bend, to EXERCISE. It strengthens the muscles surrounding the twelve bones of the arch. In this splendid natural way, Cantilevers prevent and correct flat foot.
The Cantilever Shoe has a natural inner sole line that permits the toes to point straight ahead as they should for comfort. The heel is set to distribute the weight properly, without strain on the arch. Every detail is designed for ease and health. And without sacrifice of good looks!
