Declares She Can Do Her Housework With Perfect Ease Since Taking Tanlac.

"I was almost a complete wreck from influenza, so I began taking Tanlac, but now I'm in perfect health and weigh twenty pounds more than I did when I began taking the medicine," said Mrs. C. Provo, 1817 Seventh Ave., Seattle, Wn.

"A little over a year ago I suffered an attack of influenza, and I had already suffered so much from stomach and other troubles that I thought I would never be well again. I lost my appetite, and often the little I forced myself to eat would not remain in my stomach. My food soured and so much gas formed that it pained me awfully and almost stopping my breath. I suffered from nausea, cramping pains, and constipation and headaches nearly set me wild.

"I was troubled so with dizziness that when I stooped over I would nearly fall. I also had rheumatic pains in my back and left leg which caused violent suffering and for two weeks before I got Tanlac I was unable to be on my feet and do my housework. I was very nervous and would lie awake for the night unable to sleep and when morning came I was tired and miserable. I lost weight until my clothes were entirely too large for me.

"Shortly after beginning to take Tanlac my appetite got better and the constipation, headaches, dizziness and rheumatism gradually disappeared. I am no longer nervous and now I get up in the mornings after a good night's sleep, feeling just fine. All the troubles which caused me so much suffering have disappeared and I am able to do my housework without getting tired."

Tanlac is sold in Great Falls by Model Rx Pharmacy, 312 Central ave. and Cascade Rx Pharmacy, 110 Third St. So.—Adv.

JAPAN AND U.S. SETTLE YAP CONTROVERSY

YANKS GIVE CABLE RIGHTS, NIPPONESE TO MAINTAIN ORDER

Treaty Drawn Recognizes Mandate Granted Tokio Government by League of Nations Over German Islands in Pacific North of the Equator; Puts Powers on an Equal Footing.

Washington, Dec. 12.—(By The Associated Press).—The text of a treaty between the United States and Japan covering an agreement involving the island of Yap was made public late Monday at the state department. The treaty prohibits fortification of the island of Yap and gives Japan the right to maintain order. The United States under the treaty recognizes Japan's mandate given by the League of Nations over the German islands in the Pacific north of the equator.

No licensing would be required of American firms who desire to construct either cable or radio facilities on Yap. In regard to radio arrangements, however, it is provided that so long as Japan maintains an efficient radio station on the island, with unrestricted communications to other stations and to ships at sea the United States will not exercise its right of establishing an American station there.

The provision in regard to cable facilities is drawn in the broadest terms. It declares that the United States shall have "free access" to the island for purposes of cable communication in everything that relates to the Yap-Guam cable or to any other cable which American interests may desire to lay in the future.

The treaty also contains detailed provisions for protection of American property and the right of American residence in Yap "on terms of entire equality with Japan." It declares specifically that both the United States and Japan shall be free to operate as they desire both ends of cables which may touch the island and Japan undertakes by the rights of expropriation to secure suitable cable facilities for the United States on Yap.

Negotiations with Great Britain are to follow for a similar agreement as that reported with Japan. Great Britain under the treaty of Versailles, was given the mandate for former German islands in the Pacific south of the equator and it was said the United States would proceed to deal with Great Britain with respect to these.

Under the treaty the United States will stand on an equal footing with Japan in the Pacific south of the equator and to the privileges accorded on the island of Yap and the other islands mandated to Japan. This nation, it was said, will have the same right as Great Britain and other nations including Japan, as to the use of the islands with the exception that Japan would have the technical suzerainty.

Admit Missionaries Free Provisions are made for free admission of missionaries and protection of American interests in the mandated territory and require that Japan shall report to the United States as well as to the league on details of her administration.

In the exercise of cable and wireless rights American nationals are to be free from taxes, licensing, censorship and every form of discriminatory supervision, and in addition are to be aided by the Japanese government in securing needed property and facilities.

The immediate value of the arrangement to the United States lies in the concession in the cable company because they insure complete American control of the existing cable between Yap and Guam. Considerable importance also is attached by American officials to the radio privileges.

Signature is expected within a few days, erasing one of the principal causes for controversy between Washington and Tokio and ending several months' negotiation. The agreement was announced to the committee of the whole of the arms conference.

First Discussed in Paris The American request for a communication base in Yap first was laid before the powers at Paris, and the Wilson administration later protested when the league awarded a mandate to Japan without recognizing the American claims. The league referred the question to Japan and the United States for settlement.

After an inconclusive dispute as to promises declared to have been made informally to the American delegates at Paris, the negotiations lapsed into a long succession of proposals and counter proposals. At first Japan sought to invoke a Japanese law prohibiting the landing of foreign cables on Japanese soil, but the objection was withdrawn when the United States insisted that Yap only was under the trusteeship of Tokio.

Final instructions to the Japanese delegates to accept the latest American proposal are understood to have been received from Tokio Sunday night.

AGENT GIVES DEMONSTRATION AT CLUB MEET

Miss Borthwick Speaks on Household Efficiency to Great Falls Women.

There was not one woman who attended the meeting of the home economics department of the Woman's club Monday afternoon, who did not carry away some new idea which she could apply in her own home, as a result of the demonstration given by Miss Albert Borthwick on efficient household appliances.

Before demonstrating the articles Miss Borthwick gave a brief account of the work carried on in the rural districts through the county demonstrator's office. In that district there have been formed testing circles for each of the four communities, with six women to each community.

Will Compile Record The women are allowed to take the articles provided they return them at least once. After they have experimented with them, their impression of their usefulness will be written on a card and turned into the county agent. The first two communities have certain appliances, as does also the second two, and when both have finished their exchange.

One of the articles demonstrated was a fireless cooker, fashioned from an ordinary candy barrel from which excellent results had been obtained at a very nominal cost.

Simplicity and Ceremony Innumerable ways of not only simplifying the daily routine of the household, but also of reducing the amount of labor and also of reducing the expense, were described by Miss Borthwick.

Tea and a social hour were enjoyed following the demonstration. The annual tea for the seniors of the high school will be given next Monday afternoon by the club at the Y. M. C. A. building. Reports from the vocational congress held last month in Bozeman given by Miss Verona Clark, who represented the club, and Miss Sarah Haight, who was sent as a delegate from the high school.

THREE ACCUSED OF PURCHASING STOLEN GOODS

Billings Men Deny They Knew of Theft When They Bought Property.

Lawyers passed around the cigars to the jury and to the judge in federal court Monday—with the request "Please don't take any." And not a cigar was lighted in the room.

A quantity of cigars and cigarettes were produced as evidence in a case involving the purchase of 15 cases of cigarettes and 5,000 cigars, alleged to have been stolen from an interstate shipment from a Great Northern train near Laurel last June. The purchase was made by three Billings business men, David Kohn, Lew Jackson and J. R. Bain, who were alternately on the stand during a trial that lasted day and was continued for trial this (Tuesday) morning.

Bought at a Bargain The men were charged with purchasing the goods, knowing that they were stolen property. Counsel for the defendants are S. J. Cowley of Great Falls and Thad Smith of Billings. The accused men testified that they made the purchase because they were able to obtain the goods at a bargain and that they had no idea that it was stolen property.

Bain testified that he stored the cigars which he and Jackson had purchased jointly in his garage and later moved part of them into his cellar because he had no room for them at his cigar store. He bought them from a man who claimed to be handling that sort of goods in job lots and he delivered them to him at night, saying that he had brought them from Laurel and that trouble with his automobile had prevented his getting into Billings before dark.

The prosecution pointed out to the jury that the affair looked shady. Bain told the jury that the man had first asked $300 for the lot of 5,000 cigars, but that he and Jackson had observed that the man was anxious to get rid of the cigars and offered the lot for $150, which he accepted.

Found at House and Garage Witnesses for the government testified that part of the shipment had been found in various places around Bain's house and garage. These goods were seized by special agents for the railroad who had warrants for searching for the alleged stolen property in the stores and other buildings of the suspected men.

Bain denied that he had made any attempt to hide the property, but that it was impossible to store it in his downtown store. The goods were delivered to him because he had made the purchase of the whole amount—5,000 cigars—and Jackson later paid him $75 for his half of the goods, he said. A check for $75 made out to Bain by Jackson was introduced as evidence by the counsel for the defendants.

Several boxes of cigars were retained by the court as evidence. The rest of the shipment was turned over to the railroad authorities.

Additional testimony before the jury will be resumed this (Tuesday) morning.

GREATER STRENGTH Fewer Spoonfuls

The value of baking powder is based on its leavening strength. You can't judge it by the size of the can—or by the amount you get for your money. You must estimate it by the amount of baking powder used in each baking and the results you get.

CALUMET

is the greatest value ever offered in Baking Powder—it has greater raising "force"—it goes farther than many of the other brands. You use only a rounded or heaping teaspoonful where many others call for two teaspoonfuls or more.

But Baking Powder is not all you'll save when using Calumet. You save baking materials. Calumet never fails. The last level teaspoonful is as powerful as the first. Calumet is perfectly manufactured—keeps perfectly—and is moderate in price.

You save when you buy it. You save when you use it. One trial will satisfy you of these facts—and demonstrate beyond doubt that "Calumet spells economy."

Your grocer sells it on a guarantee of money back if you are not pleased with results.

Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authorities.

HIGHEST QUALITY AWARDS

OBSERVE THIS A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.
