

SUNBURST ACREAGE BOUGHT BY HOMESTAKE AND O'NEILL

Great Falls Company Gets 1,680 Acres and Takes Over Drilling Rig; Purchased From Sunburst Oil & Gas Company.

The Homestake Oil company, by agreement with the Sunburst Oil & Gas company, Friday took over 1,680 acres of the Sunburst acreage on the Sunburst structure, according to an announcement made by J. C. Peters of the Homestake and L. C. Stevenson of the Sunburst. A second deal in acreage in the Kevin district was made by "Tip" O'Neill and J. B. Catlett, who obtained scattered leases totalling 800 acres near Kevin.

Details of the consideration involved in the Sunburst-Homestake transfer of acreage were not announced, but the two officers saying the arrangement was one "mutually advantageous to the stockholders of both companies." Both officials expressed gratification on the conclusion of the deal and promised immediate development.

The statement was authorized that the Sunburst will retain a "substantial share in the production of the wells." The first well will be known as the Homestake-Sunburst No. 1, and others by changed numerals, with perhaps some change due to arrangements with leaseholders.

Takes Over Derrick
Under the agreement, the Homestake takes over the derrick and rigging virtually completed by the Sunburst on the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 34, about six miles from the Gordon Campbell-Kevin syndicate well, and with machinery to be brought from the Homestake operations in Cat Creek a well will be spudded in as soon as possible. It is very probable that the well will be spudded in at the present site of the rigging, according to Mr. Peters. Other wells will be spudded in as conditions warrant.

The Sunburst, which the previous day bought material for a second derrick, will hasten construction on a new site and the drilling contract made at the same time with the drilling firm of Burks & Clark will be begun at the new location. An agreement appeared to the original contract provided for the change in locations should the agreement with the Homestake be consummated. The site for the new well has not yet been definitely determined according to Mr. Stevenson, but will be within a few days.

Near to Railway
Mr. Peters pointed out that the nearness of the railway will greatly speed development of the acreage since a single well will justify the construction of the two and a half miles of pipe line needed to care for the production.

The Homestake, an independent company owned principally in Great Falls, is the first of the larger companies to obtain acreage in the field. The company is already one of the large producers in the Cat Creek field, has acquired large holding in Salt Creek and is drilling in the Browning field.

Mr. Stevenson for the Sunburst company expressed satisfaction over the conclusion of this deal on terms advantageous to both concerns and said that he was especially pleased "that the first important deal by the Sunburst Oil & Gas company on any part of its holdings should be with a home company, which has made a big success."

Both Mr. Peters and Mr. Stevenson indicated that by this deal the Homestake company obtained some of what they considered the choicest ground in the field.

Causes Flurry
Announcement of the agreement entered into by the two companies and the active entrance of the Homestake in the field occasioned something of a flurry among oil men of the city, who regarded it as an important step in the quick development of the field. According to Mr. O'Neill, immediate drilling in the acreage obtained by him and Mr. Catlett is not contemplated at this time but development will largely depend on conditions. The acreage is scattered in small pieces obtained from several holders. A part is between a half and three-quarters mile from the Gordon Campbell-Kevin syndicate well in section 15, some is about a mile from the well in section 22 and some in the adjoining section, 23, and in 26. A small piece is situated adjoining the townsite of Kevin. There is no stipulation in the leases requiring immediate development.

FALLS LAWYERS ARE MENTIONED FOR U. S. JUDGE

Four Local Men Said to Have Backing of Friends for Appointment.

Four attorneys of Great Falls have been mentioned by the viscerates in the political world as worthy candidates to the position of a second United States district judge in Montana. They are J. W. Freeman, L. L. Callaway, Fletcher Maddox and W. H. Meigs, assistant United States district attorney for Montana.

Montana was included with 23 federal districts in the United States that are to be provided with additional federal judges by a bill passed Friday by the senate. Owing to the increase in the number of cases requiring federal jurisdiction that have developed in Montana within the last year Federal Judge George M. Bourquin of Butte, present federal judge of the district of Montana, asked that an additional judge be appointed.

Other prominent attorneys in the state who are mentioned as likely candidates for the position are Judge Edmund Nichols of Billings, Fred Gibson of Livingston, speaker of the house in the state legislature, and Judge E. K. Cheadle of Lewistown.

The federal judges are appointed for life by the president.

GIVE APPROVAL TO PLANS FOR ARTISTS SERIES

Round Table Will Make Recommendation to Clubs: Want Business Manager.

Request that the Round Table of civic organizations name a business manager of the Musical Arts association in its program to encourage music and aid a city auditorium was made of the Round Table members at its meeting Friday afternoon and approved and referred to the memberships of the individual organizations for confirmation. The association also requested each civic organization to nominate a candidate for the board of directors at the annual election to be held in May.

Business Men on Board
In its request made upon the Round Table, the Musical Arts asked that the nominees for the board of directors be business men who are experienced in organizing work.

The association has asked the members of the civic organizations to aid in the sale of tickets for the series of concerts to be managed by the association during the next season with season tickets selling at $10. The program, consisting of the New York City band, a grand opera company and other features, is to cost the association $6,500, with additional expenses of $4,500 incident to the program.

The tickets are to be sold before October 1 under the plan. The plan was presented to the Round Table by C. D. Elliot and W. L. Beers.

The annual "clean-up" of the city was turned over to the Boy Scouts for direction, speakers before the Round Table praising the work done by the scouts in the work last year.

TOWN TO SHOW WILD WEST TO NEWSPAPER MEN

Wolf Point Preparing Entertainment for National Editorial Association.

No town in Montana is taking a more lively interest in the visit, in July, of the members of the National Editorial association than is Wolf Point, in the far eastern part of the state. "That town with its quota, has met its obligations promptly and is the first to definitely arrange its program of entertainment for the visitors when they stop there in their eastward journey. I was at Wolf Point a few days ago," said Charles D. Greenfield of the Great Northern agricultural development department, who was in Great Falls Friday night, "and it happened that the board of directors of the commercial club was in session. The first question they asked was, when the newspaper men would be in Montana? When I told them the latter part of July, they said the reason they wanted to know was that they had determined to fix the date of their annual wild west show for the day the excursionists will be there."

"They give a real wild west show at Wolf Point. There are a lot of real cowpunchers down there, and a lot of real Indians, it being on the Fort Peck reservation, and the show they pull off is not the sort one sees in the movies, but the real article."

"We'll tell them in our printed matter," said one of the directors, "what a rich agricultural country we have, and we'll show them a sample of the old wild west so they will know what hunting a broncho and throwing a range steer really is."

Sunday School Gets Loan to Meet Debt

Loan of $1,800 to complete payment on the south side mission Sunday school, supervised by the First Methodist church, has been arranged through the Church Extension society of Philadelphia, according to a statement issued Friday.

The loan clears the debt on the property, on which the church had already paid $1,000. The property was bought more than a year ago from Gus Norquist. The new debt is assumed by the Sunday school, although the loan was obtained through the assistance of the First Methodist church.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of... REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

THE WAY "SMITH" CAME BACK INTO MIDGE'S LIFE
It was but for a second that I stood erect, in the position to which I involuntarily had sprung when I heard the voices of the horsemen coming down the lonely wood lane.

They still obeying the instinctive impulse of concealment which had seized me at the sound of the second voice. I swiftly moved to the tree against which Dick's car rested, seated myself there in such a manner that the machine almost concealed my presence, and adjusted my hat so its brim drooped over my forehead.

"Remember, Anton—" For, if my ears and my memory had not deceived me by the associated voice of the second approaching horseman was that of the man Smith, whom I had last seen in the Catskill mountains, and who was now a fugitive from justice who had been mysteriously escaped that memorable night when our fishing party had discovered the wounded trooper in the reservoir grounds. If it were not for the fact that the arrogance of the man was only concealed, his cunning working swiftly and surely.

And then the two men on horseback moved into my view from the recesses of the forest path, and from underneath my hat brim I looked furtively at them.

The first man I knew, in the casual, friendly fashion of the countryside, as the "big man" of the neighborhood, a retired farmer, wealthy, public-spirited, respected and liked by his neighbors. That he could know anything of the real personality of Smith—if the second man really were Smith—was, of course, unthinkable. And that the relation between them was that of a kindly efficient master and new servant, as I gleaned from the elder man's words as they rode toward me.

Remember, Anton—the one thing above all others which I will not have is brutality to animals," he was saying. "I discharged the man just before you for that."

"I will remember," Anton said slowly, and then his eyes fell on Dick's car, and I saw his start unmistakably. I wondered if, with the keen perception which he possessed, he had recognized the car, having remembered seeing it upon that night which had seen his exposure.

A Swift Decision
For I had convinced myself now that beyond all doubt the man, Anton, evidently a new man-of-all-work of my neighbor, Mr. Briggs, was the same man. Smith, who had been the opulent autocrat of the Catskill mountain region in which he had his barriercaded estate. And yet, barring their height, which the man, Anton, made less by appearing slightly stooped, there was little outward similarity between the two.

Smith had been a commanding figure, erect and broad-shouldered, with a well-fed appearance. This man was thin, almost to emaciation, and his clothing hung loosely on him. Smith's appearance had been that of a scrupulously fastidious man, accustomed to luxurious bathing apparatuses, who would almost have died rather than appear unshaven, a man with many changes of clothing.

"Anton" had at least a three-days' growth of beard upon his face, his clothing was grimy and hung loosely on him, and his hands were distinctly soiled with dirt and the bandages were but surface soil, that the cloth next his head was clean, and that underneath the rough garments were others, clean and fine. He was altogether too typical—he outdid his compatriots whom I had seen working in the neighboring fields.

Mr. Briggs had reined in his horse when he saw the car, and "Anton" followed his example. For a second or two they did not see me, then Mr. Briggs espied me and swept off his hat with a courteous bow.

"How do you do, Mrs. Graham?" he said heartily, adding solicitously. "I hope there is nothing wrong with your car."

I explained, conscious as I did so that "Anton's" eyes were furtively searching my face. But I did not look toward him. I had swiftly decided that though he had recognized me, I must give him no inkling that I had any suspicion of his identity.

Next—"The Way 'Anton' Came to Mr. Briggs."

The winning candidate received a total of 104 votes to 97 for Boyle. Precinct 9 gave its seven votes to the Belt candidate.
