

LEFT TO DIE ALONE

Brutal Murder of an Officer by the Filipinos.

BURIED WITH JUST THE HEAD OUT

Food Is Placed Before Him Just Out of His Reach and He Starves.

New York Sun Special Service

Richmond, Va., Jan. 23.—In a letter to Luther E. Obeastwood of this city, Clarence Warner, formerly of Richmond, now quartermaster sergeant of Company A, Twenty-seventh United States volunteers in the Philippines, gives a graphic account of the murder of one of the United States officers. He says:

The Ladronez are still keeping up their trade in various portions of the island, and only a few weeks ago City Engineer Wilson of Manila, who was also superintendent of the waterworks, was murdered by Ladronez in the middle of the day and robbed of about $1,800 in gold. He was on his way to our station to pay off the employes at the pumping station and had refused in military escort.

All the Ladronez concerned in the murder of eight in number, have since been caught by Companies E and F. They were tried by a military commission and confessed. They will be hanged a few weeks.

BRIDGES FOR THE RED

Canadian Northern and Pacific Will Each Build One.

Special to The Journal. Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 23.—Two new bridges of very substantial character will at once be built over the Red river, by the Canadian Pacific railroad and the other by the Canadian Northern Railway company.

William McKenzie of McKenzie & Mann, owners of the Canadian Northern railway, was in the city yesterday. In an interview he stated that the Canadian Northern was now within 140 miles of Winnipeg, and the line, and the coming summer. The contract has been awarded to J. A. Jameson of Montreal. "The building will be of 1,600,000 bushels capacity, and when completed will cost $350,000. It is to be fixed as the time for completion, so that the building will be ready for next year's crop."

WILL HELP BUTTERNUT

The Chicago Crumery Company Will Give It a Factory.

Special to The Journal. Stevens Point, Wis., Jan. 23.—The Clifford & Fox Lumber company has sold to the Chicago Crumery Packing company of Chicago its former mill site of about twenty-four acres of land in the village of Butternut, Ashland county, and a quarter section of timber land in that vicinity. The new owners, during the coming factory there at once that will give employment to fifty or seventy-five hands. The company is capitalized at $2,000,000 and is extensively engaged in the manufacture of veneer packages for crumery goods. The village gave the company a bonus of $1,500.

COAL MINE IN THE STREET

Vein Is Found in the Highway in St. Louis.

New York Sun Special Service. St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 23.—A vein of coal was struck in the public highway on Gastine avenue, near McDonald avenue, in the southwest part of the city, by laborers digging a sewer. Men and boys with picks and shovels began working the vein. The police were ordered to disperse the amateur miners, but the street commissioner saw no objection to their digging, as it could not make the street worse than it had been.

MISSION A FAILURE

Colorado's Executive Would Not Recognize Requisition Papers.

Special to The Journal. Mitchell, S. D., Jan. 23.—Sheriff Swindler has returned from Denver, Col., where he went in quest of a prisoner wanted for criminal assault. He had the necessary requisition papers from Governor Herrell, but the Colorado executive declined to recognize them.

HIS MISSING DIGITS

Founder of Petersburg Recounts Experiences in North Dakota.

NIGHT SPENT IN A SNOW BANK

Shelter Gained in Time to Save Life—Prairie Storm in the Early Eighties.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 23.—L. N. Peterson, the founder of Petersburg, who is one of the old timers and has acquaintances from one end of the state to the other, was in the city the other day and told of an experience in the early eighties that few of the residents of the state at the present time would care to undergo. One of his friends asked him how it happened that he was minus several fingers on each hand. Settling himself back in his chair Mr. Peterson told the following story.

In the winter of 1882-83 I came to the state and started a small feed store at Bartlett. Along in March of the latter year, as business was very dull, I thought I would take a run to my claim at Petersburg. I boarded the train and all went well till we were near the present site of Lakota, when the train became stuck in a snowbank. The storm was one of the worst I ever saw, and we stuck there fast for four days.

The supply was limited, and when on the first day the wind slacked a little and the prospects for better weather were good—as I thought—I determined to start out. I pushed on to Michigan City, where Lamb Bros. were running a small store. Here I got what I wanted to eat, and started on to my claim. When about half way from the track to my shanty it began to storm again, but as the distance was short I proceeded with the construction of a shanty as far as digging a cellar and laying a floor over it. As night came on it grew bitterly cold, and as I was not used to the weather, I was blowing some of the lumber I had for the shanty, I threw it in the cellar, and crawling in, I lighted a fire and thought I could keep from freezing. However, as the wind was blowing such a gale, the smoke from my fire could not escape, and I was soon driven out. The storm was so bad that I knew I could not get back to town, and figured that the best thing I could do would be to dig a hole in a snowbank and stay there for the night. This I did, but when I awoke in the morning my clothes were frozen so stiff that I could scarcely walk. The blizzard was still howling, and I was desperately hungry. I made up my mind that I must do something or freeze to death, as I had but little strength left, and felt more like lying down and waiting for the end than anything else.

I took my bearings as best I could and headed for Deer Lake, as I knew there were a few shanties along the shore, and I thought I might get shelter. I reached one of the shanties shortly after noon, but found no one living there. I tried to kick in the door, but did not have strength enough left to do so, and after trying to get in, I lost all hope of keeping from freezing, as I was all but exhausted. The thought uppermost in my mind was to get somewhere to lie down where the wolves would not find my body and devour it. For a while I lay down on the ice side of the shanty, but my hands were now frozen stiff and I could not get up. I had given up all hope. However, I noticed a path leading from the stacks, and after following it a few rods I found a barn, which was empty and warm. Arriving at the door, I knocked with my frozen hands, as I still had the use of my arms. The owner of the shack opened the door, realized my condition at once and got me inside. He cut my clothes from my back and placed my hands and feet in water and rubbed snow on my frozen members. That was the first time I felt warm, and I fell asleep and my woe was forgotten. I was there for twenty-four hours, try as he would.

Soon after this my hands turned black, and a few days later the skin peeled off from my wrists down to the bones. I was taken to a hospital, where I was treated by a physician, and all that I did was to wrap my hands in kerosene. I went to Minnesota later and found a surgeon, who left me as you now see me.

DYING SUMMONS TO CHILD

A DES MOINES, IOWA, SENSATION

George A. Shockley Sends Across Continent for Babe of Mysterious Parentage.

Special to The Journal. Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 23.—Strange developments following the death of George A. Shockley of this city, who expired recently at Los Angeles, where he had gone for the sake of his health, have excited attention. Shockley was a married man and a real estate dealer, having an office here. Last July he went to Los Angeles to recuperate, his wife being with him. Dispatches from Los Angeles say a young woman arrived from Des Moines just before his death, having with her a 15-month old child, which, it was alleged, Shockley had sent for. In view of his sudden death, no provision was made for the child's support. It did not appear that the young woman was the mother of the child, but she had been hired by Des Moines woman, who was its mother, to take it to Los Angeles.

It is not yet known who the mother is. It has been learned, however, that the child was reared by a Mrs. Anna Conklin, living on East Grand avenue. Mrs. Conklin says the child was brought to her in October, 1899, when 12 days old; that its name was said to be Lloyd Thomas, and that Shockley alleged it was the illegitimate son of a prominent Des Moines man. She says a visit was once paid to her home by a woman, whom she supposed to be the child's mother, who came closely veiled, and whose identity was not disclosed. She relates the circumstances of the sending of the child to Los Angeles, and says she received a letter from Shockley, with instructions to turn the infant

WON'T LOWER THE FLAG

MAYOR VAN WYCK'S REFUSAL

He Says Precedent Is Against Recognizing the Death of Foreign Rulers.

New York, Jan. 23.—Mayor Van Wyck to-day explained the reason why the flag on the city hall had not been placed at half-mast because of Queen Victoria's death. He said: "The flag on the city hall was not ordered at half mast because there is no precedent for it. On the contrary, the precedent in this and former administrations has been against lowering on the death of any foreign potentate or general. I found that the flag was not lowered when President Carnot was assassinated, nor when the Empress of Austria was assassinated; neither was it placed at half mast on the death of the Emperor of Russia nor when King Humbert was murdered."

You must remember that many people come here and want the flag on the city hall to be lowered for certain reasons. When I have had hundreds of letters requesting me to take notice of it by placing the flag at half mast, almost all my personal friends in the city asked this as a favor. Yet I did not accede to the request. My personal inclinations were strongly in that direction, for I believed at that time the British were murdering a brave people to rob them of their freedom and their country."

BOY KILLS HIS SISTER.

Special to The Journal. Osage, Iowa, Jan. 23.—Herbert Lombard, 15 years old, while shooting at a target with a 22 caliber rifle, accidentally shot his 10-year-old sister Maude back of the temple, killing her. The Lombards live west of town.

LEFT THE BOAT.

Special to The Journal. Winthrop, Me., Jan. 23.—The pleasure steamer Gertie H. was stripped of all its brass fittings and a large portion of its machinery by thieves. Human Halpin and Max Levin have been arrested for the theft.

SUBSTITUTE FOR IRON

New Zealand Plan of Branding May Be Adopted.

Special to The Journal. Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 23.—The means which are employed by ranchmen in branding their cattle have long been the subject of discussion, and much complaint has arisen against the inhuman use of the branding iron. Aside from the torture it causes the poor brutes, it injures the hides. Many ranchmen have given the problem much thought, but a satisfactory solution has never been reached. A New Zealand idea in branding has been recently tested with satisfactory results. A composition which consists of equal parts of barium sulphide and of coal tar, preferably thinned by a mixture of American kerosene and water, in equal parts by measure, and of spirits of turpentine, such equal to the original composition, is used. Sulphides of the alkalis or alkaline earths are often substituted for the barium sulphide. This composition is applied with a cold iron, and the iron does not destroy the hair or wool of the animal and brands, in a substantially permanent manner, without injuring the hide.

MRS. LEASE HAS A FALL

New York, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease has a dislocated knee, the result of a fall on the escalator, or moving stairway, leading to the uptown station of the Sixth avenue elevated line at Twenty-third street. Mrs. Lease had never read of the escalator, and when she found herself being carried upstairs by the noisier contrivance she became alarmed and in trying to return to the street she fell. The surgeons say she will be lame for life.
