

ELABORATE PAGEANT FOR QUEEN VICTORIA

Funeral Procession in London Will Be Even More Extensive Than Was Expected.

King and Emperor William on Horseback Will Ride at the Head—Kings Will Take Part.

Queen's Body Lies in the Diningroom at Osborne House—Magnificent Flowers and Drapings.

Cowes, Jan. 26.—A number of leading newspaper correspondents were admitted to-day to see the queen's remains lying in state. The approaches to Osborne House were as rigorously guarded as ever.

It was but a step from the entrance, across the hall to the dining room where the queen's body rested. The entrance to this room was beautifully draped with crimson, and attached thereto were several gigantic wreaths from members of the household.

The coffin is but eighteen inches from the flower-decked ground. At its head are the wreaths of the king and queen, while on either side are the offerings of the emperor and empress of Germany.

But little of the white satin-covered coffin or the silk flag on which it rests is visible, being almost hidden by the magnificent white pall and the crimson velvet roses of the insignia of the Order of the Garter, the whole being surmounted by a glittering diamond crown, which reflect the lights of the tapers, six feet high, in silver candlesticks.

The pall is ten feet long and seven feet wide. The heavy gold fringes hang from it, and in each corner, diagonally, are embroidered the royal arms surmounted by the crown. The lion is in applique of cloth of gold and the unicorn in silver, both worked up in silk embroidery.

The pall was made by the students of the Kensington school of needlework under the direction of Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

QUEEN AND THE CHURCH

Cardinal Vaughan Sets Forth His Position.

London, Jan. 26.—Cardinal Vaughan, archbishop of Westminster, has written a long letter to the clergy of his diocese, which is dated at the English college, Rome. This letter will be read in the Catholic churches to-morrow. It says: "Of public religious services for the dead the Catholic churches know none but such as she has instituted for the souls of her own children. No one would feel it right that in our grief we should forget ourselves or the properties due her deceased majesty and the official position she filled as to even appear to claim her as a member of our church, which we should be doing were we to perform in her behalf the religious rites that are exclusively applicable to deceased Catholics."

At the same time we may remind you that it is lawful to those who believe that any persons who have departed this life in union with the soul of the church, though not in her external communion, to offer prayers and good works for their release from purgatory. The church itself forms no judgment. Upon a matter which must remain a secret between God and the individual soul, what can we do?

Glady and eagerly shall we join in the purely civil mourning that will be offered by the nation to the memory of the queen. We fully and unreservedly sympathize with her sorrow and anxiety inseparable with such a period. We trust and pray that the noble traditions established by the mother will be carried on and perfected by her son. The attachment of Catholics to the throne and dynasty is beyond suspicion.

OBEYED QUEEN'S WISH

Why the King Was Not Present When He Was Proclaimed.

London, Jan. 26.—One of the illustrations of the queen's thoughtfulness has come to light connected with Thursday's coronation. When Sir William Vernon Harcourt was home secretary years ago she sent a sealed package to him with instructions that it should not be opened until after her death. It contained a recommendation that her successor should not be present when he was proclaimed, and that he should not visit the city in state. The queen had anticipated the annoyances and risks of the traditional ceremony, and had taken pains to forewarn and relieve the king.

CROWN PRINCE ARRIVES

Frederick William Is Met by the German Emperor.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 26.—Emperor William left Cowes at 8 o'clock this morning on the royal yacht Alberta to visit Portsmouth and meet Crown Prince Frederick William. On the return of the Alberta at 11:29 a. m., the Duke of Connaught boarded the yacht and welcomed them. The party drove to Osborne. The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, arrived here to-day.

NEW ADJUTANT GENERAL

Queen's Appointment of the Duke of Connaught Will Stand.

London, Jan. 26.—One of the queen's last projects was the appointment of the duke of Connaught as adjutant general. It will probably be carried out at an early day, as the king will need his brother's advice on military matters.

New York Sun Special Service

London, Jan. 26.—Although the announcement is still withheld probably because the arrangements are incomplete, the military procession in London for the queen's funeral is likely to be considerably more elaborate than was at first supposed. The Telegraph asserts that the king, accompanied by Emperor William, will ride on horseback as chief mourner, attended by the distinguished staff, and the paper implies that there will be a great military and civic display similar to those that occur at the funerals of great continental sovereigns.

Presumably the effort will include foreign representatives, among whom will be the Kings of Belgium, the King of Greece, the King of Portugal and possibly, the czarowitz and the Crown Prince of Germany, Austria, Sweden, Greece and Denmark, Grand Duke Serge, Prince Alexander of Russia, the Duke of Saxe, and Grand Duke of Hesse, and many other members of European royal houses.

It is stated that in addition to the members of both houses of parliament afloat the procession will include the lord mayor and the corporation of London. The procession is expected to occupy two hours, traversing London from Victoria station to Paddington station, whence the funeral train will depart at 11:15 a. m., reaching Windsor at 11:50. The coffin will be conveyed in the queen's special saloon carriage, drawn by the royal train, built specially for the diamond jubilee, by which the king and the royal family will journey to the royal borough.

TRIBUTES TO THE QUEEN

Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour Speak in Parliament.

London, Jan. 26.—Grief and joy were never so closely joined as in the official eulogies of the dead monarch and the congratulations to the new one. These were pronounced in both houses of parliament yesterday by the leaders in response to a first message from the king to the people's representatives. It was the greatest parliamentary scene in recent times, and the orations pronounced by Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour, while unpretending, were dignified and appropriate to the occasion, which the speakers said marked the close of an epoch in the world's history. All that they said, all the nation feels, perhaps is best summed up in these lines: "I am broken hearted."

"Edward VII is his mother's son." "Great and noble as the grief and silent in their mourning garments, hung almost breathless upon the words of the nation's leaders as they led them through conceptions of grief to consolation, from hope to a new allegiance."

Mr. Balfour said in his address in the house of commons: "The constitution, in my judgment, is not a diminishing, but an increasing factor. It is increasing and must increase with all the growth and development of the free self-governing communities—those new commonwealths beyond the seas which are bound to us by the person of the sovereign, who is the leading symbol of the unity of the empire. But, it is not given to a constitutional monarch to signal his reign by any great isolated action. The effect of a constitutional sovereign, great as it is, is produced by the flow and constant cumulative result of a great ideal and example. As to that great ideal and example, surely Victoria is the first of all constitutional monarchs the world has yet seen."

"Where shall we find an ideal so lofty in itself, so constantly and consistently maintained through two generations—through more than two generations—of her subjects and through many generations of her public men and members of this house?" Her queenly dignity only served to throw into higher relief those admirable virtues of the wife, mother and woman with which she was so richly endowed. Those kindly graces those admirable qualities, had endeared her to every class of the community.

Less was known perhaps of the life of the queen than of the position of queen. She threw upon her. Short as was the interval between the last trembling signature she affixed to a public document and her final rest, she carried on without intermission the wheels of administration. When I saw the vast mass of untouched documents which awaited the hand of the sovereign, it was brought vividly to my mind how admirable was the unostentatious patience with which, for sixty-three years, through sorrow and suffering, in moments of weariness, in moments of despondency, it might be said, she carried on without intermission her share in the government of this great empire. For her there was no holiday and no intermission in her term. Domestic sorrow had no difference in her labors, for the hour when she became sovereign to within a few days of her death.

Who is there that will weigh in the balance the effect which such an example produced on the highest life of the people. It was a great life and had a fortunate, and in my judgment, a happy ending. The queen had her regard in the undying affection of all her subjects. She passed away, I believe, without a single enemy in the world, for even those who love not England love her. No such reign, no such end, had ever been known in our history."

Lord Salisbury said in part in the house of lords: "My lords, the late queen had so many titles to admiration that it would occupy enormous time to glance at them even perfunctorily. One that I think will be attached to her character in history is that, being a constitutional queen with restricted powers, she reigned by sheer force of character, by the loveableness of her disposition over the hearts of her subjects, and exercised influence in molding their character and their destinies which she could not have done more had she had the most despotic of powers. She has been the greatest instance of government by example and by love, and it will never be forgotten how much she has done for the elevation of her people, not by the FUN WHILE IT LASTED. Senator Clapp—It does seem too bad to spoil such a good time.

THE "HELLO" CO. TAX

Proposed to Repeal the Gross Income Tax Law.

When the Hennepin legislative delegation met in the afternoon it was confronted by a proposition to repeal the act providing for the gross earnings tax on telephone companies. The proposition was submitted by present and past county commissioners in the following communication: "We, the undersigned, present and ex-members of the board of county commissioners of Hennepin county, having seen the workings and experienced the results of the act generally known as the 'Gross Earnings Tax of Telephone Companies,' are not liable for taxation imposed for local improvements, such as side-walks, and other special improvements."

STATE NOW GETS THE BENEFIT

Urged That the N. W. Telephone Company Does Not Bear Its Share of Taxes.

She had an extraordinary knowledge of what her people would think, so much so that I have said for years that I always thought when I knew what the queen thought I knew pretty certainly what her subjects would think, especially the middle classes. "We owe her a debt of gratitude for her influence in elevating the people, and gratitude for her ever foreign courts and sovereigns in removing difficulties and misrepresentations which sometimes prevailed."

BRIGHTER FOR FREEMAN

VINDICATION IS LOOKED FOR

Investigation of the Upper Peninsula's Prison Completed at Marquette.

Special to The Journal. Marquette, Mich., Jan. 26.—The prison investigation conducted last night yesterday afternoon. The most significant testimony was drawn from Dr. A. W. Hornbough, Freeman's physician, who admitted that he had treated the warden for narcotics which he thought was at least partially superinduced by alcoholism. He had done this on two occasions, once within a few weeks. The members of the investigation committee are in doubt. The committee is plainly impressed with the economy of Freeman's management and the condition and neatness of the prison. The members will finish their work at Lansing, when the testimony is all transcribed. They consider the charge of drunkenness as the only fault of the discipline, including the severity of the discipline, having been completely disproved.

HALF A MILLION FOR BETTERMENTS

Program of the Twin City Rapid Transit Company for This Season Is a Big One—Mr. Lowry Tells About It.

"One thing in connection with our expenditures this season which will be good news, is the fact that we will employ from 500 to 700 men on track work during the entire season. There will also be a great impetus in other branches of the service. Our equipment will be materially added to, and many more of our large cars will be put in service. It is the company's intention, so far as their operation is practicable, to equip all lines with new and improved cars. We will also improve our power plant and do everything possible to maintain the efficiency of the service."

The street railway company has made wonderful progress in the way of improvements since the return of good times. During the past three years more than $1,500,000 have been expended in the twin cities in track improvement and the construction of new cars. A feature of the track renewals this season will be a vast amount of labor to secure what is known as the continuous rail. This device consists in welding the ends of the rails solidly together, which with the heavy rails and thorough ballasting, insures a perfect track.

Mr. Lowry will leave for New York Sunday evening. Thomas Lowry, president of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, discussed the company's plans for the next season with great enthusiasm to-day. "We have arranged to spend a large sum of money," said Mr. Lowry, "and are doing our best to keep pace with the growth of the city and the demands of a discriminating public. We are very proud of our street railway system, and it is the intention of the management to keep it always up to a high standard of excellence."

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 26.—The three recent appointees took the oath of office and the four adjourned to meet to-day at Huron to organize by the election of a president and secretary. They may also make appointments to the places under their control, but had not decided to do so at an early hour this morning.

Rice, Finerud and Steere will go to Sioux Falls on Monday to demand that the old board which meets there the same day, go out of business. If the old board refuses to surrender the new board will propose a friendly suit before the supreme court. If this is refused, the new board and appointees will institute proceedings to oust their opponents.

There were seven bids for the emergency warrants issued by the state. The highest bid was that of the Pierre National bank, 4 1/2 per cent for $100,000 and 4 1/4 for $100,000. The bid of C. R. Hannan, president of the First National bank of Council Bluffs, was accepted. He took the whole issue at 4 1/2 per cent and a premium of $111. The warrants will be issued in two lots, the first $150,000 to be paid Jan. 1, 1902, and a second lot, $100,000, to be issued March 28 and payable Jan. 1, 1903. During the time these warrants are outstanding the treasurer will hold the collections of the general fund to meet the warrants.

Senator Spooner of Wisconsin is preparing a speech against the subsidy bill, which he will make to the senate soon. It has been known some time that Spooner was against the bill, but not that he proposed attacking it actively.

After an hour's hard fight this afternoon in the house, Mr. Tawney, by a margin of only one vote, lost his proposition to amend the pending postoffice bill by incorporating into it the scheme for a reclassification of railway mail clerks. This has been for two congresses one of Tawney's pet measures.
