In Social Circles

Miss Marguerite Gray gave a tea from 5 until 6:30 o'clock this afternoon at her home on Spruce place. About fifty invitations had been issued and the guests included the men as well as the girls of the younger set. In deference to the day, the decorations were patriotic and the national colors were used with southern smiles. In the dining-room red, white and blue ribbons, twined with smilax, fell from the chandelier to the table. Red and white carnations in a blue bowl formed the centerpiece. Miss Gray was assisted in receiving by the Misses Helen Janney, Alice Morton, Elsie Meier, Jane McDonald, Mrs. E. W. Backus, the Misses Grace Gray, Harriott Pillsbury and Della Brook alternated in pouring and coffee. They wore blue gowns trimmed with white and carried red flowers. Assisting in the dining-room were the Misses Florence Fiove, Elizabeth Donaldson, Alma Hoegh and Katharine Barton.

Miss Elizabeth Donaldson will give a collation next Friday evening for the visiting girls.

Saturday Magazine club, Mrs. A. O. Hubbard, 1775 Girard avenue S, 2:30 p. m.

FEBRUARY COUNCIL MEETING

Will Consider Domestic Topics for Various Standpoints.

The Woman's Council will hold its February parliament to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 in the First Unitarian church, 230 First and Eighth street. The roll of officers, presidents and delegates of clubs will be called, but as the meetings are public and the general theme will be "Twenty-first Century questions of importance to all women," it is hoped that the general attendance will be large. The last parliament was gratifyingly successful and the new officers are hoping to see gains each month.

The program has been carefully arranged along lines suggested at a meeting to-morrow afternoon to the council. Its general theme will be "Twenty-first Century Housekeeping." There will be several practical addresses that will present in a practical way several aspects of the subject and there will be opportunity for the fullest discussion from the floor. Mrs. Virginia Mercedes, preceptress of the Minnesota school of agriculture, will speak on "Domestic Economy Taught in the Agricultural School"; Mrs. E. W. Merdman on "One Woman's View of the Housekeeping Question"; Mrs. Alberta Garber, "The Consumers' League"; Mrs. C. E. Conant, formerly corresponding secretary of the National Consumers' League, will give a greeting to her former associates. Music will be furnished by Mrs. D. Edmund Smith and Miss Grace Noble.

General Legislative Body.

The general legislative body meets once a month. It is composed of the tribunes assembled from the different rooms, forty in number. The tribunes are distinguished by the imprint of the letter of the room from which they come upon a pennant badge. Any matters of business that need consideration are presented formally to the tribunes in the center of the room. The council has its own clerk and sergeant-at-arms, whose badges of office are pennants stamped with the proper title. The chief of the vigilance department, even after the tribunes have seats in the council also.

The Department of Vigilance.

This general legislative body has created a department of vigilance. It consists of a chief, designated by the council, and his appointees—four assistants, called lieutenants—numbered one, two, three, four—and a playground inspector. The staff is completed by two sergeants from each room, one boy and one girl. The chief makes his appointments very formally on mimeograph blanks which read:

Mr. _____

I have the honor of offering _____ you the position of sergeant of _____ _____ room. Respectfully,

_____ C. of V. D.

The chief's term of office is one semester and the lieutenants serve one month. The sergeants are appointed each week with the consent of the tribunes. The badge of this department is the shield on which is inscribed the title of the office. The department of vigilance takes care of everything about the building in the way of looking after the government of the grounds and the halls.

The playground inspector covers the matter of its general condition, such as the removal of litter, or correction of anything wrong.

As the bells are rung the importance of various positions is shown. The tribunes keep their own papers on the school grounds, and the sergeants have charge of the passing of the lines. The badges which were formally presented in the school on Thursday were to take the place of white buttons in the center of a red rosette. The buttons bore only the initial of the office, and they were easily lost. The new badges are the property of the school. They pass from one officer to the next and are worn with great pride.

The Room Elections.

The room elections take place on Friday, and on the following Monday the officers are formally installed. The installation is patriotic in character, consisting of songs, flag salute, citizen's pledge and obligation of office. The flag salute is accompanied with these words in concert: "I pledge allegiance to my flag and the republic which it symbolizes—one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

All citizens' meetings are presided over by one of the tribunes selected from the four, and he is called presiding tribune.

Club Notes.

The Art Club of the university will give several lectures during the next term. Miss Clapham will open the series with a talk on "The Necessity of Art in Education." The Robert Koehler of the school of fine arts will speak of the early German masters and their work.

The women of the Baptist church will hold an all-day missionary conference Tuesday in the First Baptist church, beginning at 10:30 a. m. At 2 o'clock a Chinese program will be given and Dr. Josephine Bixby of Kit Yang, China, will speak. A basket luncheon will be served.

Yesterday afternoon the Colonial chapter of the D. A. R. gave a program in Hope chapel. Mrs. J. K. Hillmer made a short speech and Miss Martha West made a short talk on the American flag. The patriotic singing was led by Mrs. S. S. Brown.

THE ROMAN MODEL

Blaine Public School Form of Self-Government.

FORMAL EXERCISES YESTERDAY

Trial of Self-Government Has Proven Eminently Satisfactory—Outline of the Scheme.

The patriotic exercises at the Blaine school yesterday were made memorable by the first public presentation of self-government badges. These badges are nickel shields and pennants on which are indicated in red letters the official which the bearer holds in the school's scheme of government.

This system, which is based on the old Roman, the simplified form of government, is entirely different from anything of the kind in the city, and until to-day notice of it has not been made in the papers.

Miss F. C. LeGro, the principal, says that the scheme has been tentative for a year, but now has the unqualified support of the teachers, and after a twelve-months' trial, there is no reason for not giving the idea publicity. She continued:

The idea of self-government for schools is in the air. There is a feeling that boys and girls ought to be put on some responsibility and prepared for democratic government. To-day when I asked the teachers whether the plan had proved all it was intended to be, they said it had accomplished more than was ever hoped for, and they were unanimous in their opinion that the system of government be retained. They are distinguished by the novelty has worn off, are unwilling to think of giving it up. We cannot compare the ideals of conduct with those of a year ago. I know it is good thing, and I am sure that the teachers are stronger than under the old autocratic methods of ruling.

The Scheme of Government.

There are two departments of government, the legislative indicated by the pennant badge and the "vigilance" shown by the shield. The pupils of each of the ten rooms in the school elect four tribunes, a secretary and sergeant-at-arms. The tribunes are elected four times a year, at the beginning and middle of each term. They represent the interests of the room in the general council. The secretary and sergeant are elected once a month.

Weekly Citizens' Meeting.

Each room has a citizens' meeting once a week at some spare time, which continues about fifteen minutes. At this meeting any matter that concerns the room, or anything of general interest in the building, is brought up and recommendations made that will correct any fault or will improve some special condition in any way.

The Constitution.

This plan of government is based on one formal constitution, which each room has adopted. Article I. of the constitution reads:

Object. The object of self-government in the Blaine school shall be to emphasize the need of a personal responsibility on the part of each pupil to do right, to form habits of self-control and honorable conduct, and to establish our ideals of citizenship upon a high moral foundation.

Article II. is the civic creed:

We believe that upon every person rests the moral obligation to do right, to expose wrong, to personally obey the law, to be strong enough at all times in the face of duty to say, "I ought, I can, I will."

Article III. is the pledge, the observance of which is the key to the success of the plan just described:

As citizens of this school and community, I pledge that I will at all times and in all places try to do right myself and to influence others to do right.

I will faithfully assist officers and teachers in securing good order and right conduct in and about the school and the community in which we live.

In carrying out the scheme the teachers and principal are careful about anything that would suggest trials, or sitting in judgment on others, in fact anything judicial. The citizens make the laws for their own rooms, with the approval of the teacher. The council makes the laws for the building, which must interfere in no way with the room laws. There is a clause in the constitution to the effect that all established rules and regulations of the board of education or of the teachers must be observed.

Only Ten Rooms Self-Governing.

The form of self-government applies to only ten of the nineteen rooms. The others are in preparation. The primary teachers, however, are in sympathy with the work, and are putting the young children on their own responsibility as far as possible. When they reach the grade they will be ready for the form of government. They practically have it, but are not allowed to elect officers.

Washington Birthday Exercises.

At 2 o'clock on Thursday the primary department of the Blaine school gathered in the lower hall and had their patriotic exercises commemorative of Washington's birthday. The program consisted of patriotic songs such as "Hail to the Chief," and the flag salute, which is a recitation of the national salute. "I give my head and my heart to God and my country—one country, one language, one flag." At the last word the national emblem is saluted with a gesture of the right hand and a step forward. A new feature was introduced by the principal this year. It was a series of questions about the character of Washington and the principal acts of his life such as the pupils could answer in unison. One question was: "To what office did the people elect George Washington?" Their answer was: "First president" and the room L scholars rattled on as one child: "First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen." The singing of America closed the primary exercises.

In connection with the badge presentation the other rooms held commemorative exercises in the upper hall. The first part consisted of the singing of patriotic songs and the flag salute. At the end of the singing Miss Le Gro talked concerning the appropriateness of uniting the commemoration of the birthday of Washington as the founder of this government with their own attempts at a formal government. The exercises were ended with the recitation of an adaptation from Sumner's "Address on the Flag."
