OVERWORKED

The trouble with every ambitious American is nerves, always nerves; sometimes it appears as dyspepsia, sometimes as catarrh, sometimes as nervous prostration, but it is overworked nerves all of them.

Read the following from Mrs. MARTHA W. LEWIS, of 150 W. York St., Philadelphia, Pa. Mrs. Lewis is a well-known newspaper correspondent, and also the author of "The Wife's Vow" and "Twice Tried." She says:

"It is the rush, the rush, the rush, the incessant struggle after something more and something higher, that drives us Americans on to nervous prostration, and often to mere wrecks."

"Dr. Greene's great Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the sovereign remedy which comes under my cognizance as a boon to nerve-tired, overworked humanity. If you are troubled by dyspepsia, catarrh, fainting, or sleeplessness, I would advise you to try it."

As a nation we are hard workers. Many of us do not realize how hard we are working until something gives way.
