Advantages of The Journal's Excursion.

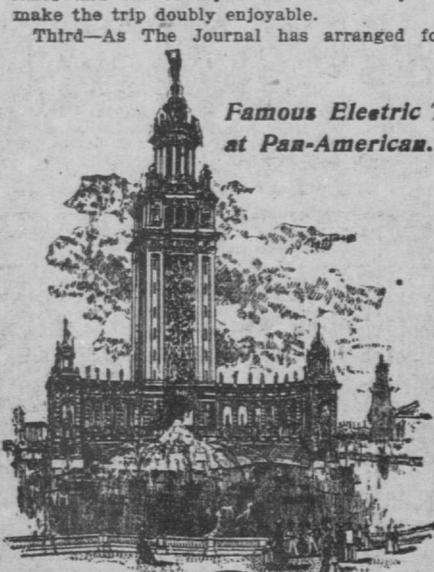

There are many special advantages offered by The Journal's Pan-American Excursion that should appeal strongly to those who want to visit Buffalo's big show.

First—it is the most healthful, restful and invigorating trip that can be planned. It is strictly a "pure air" trip. Certainly the tour of the great lakes is the most pleasurable vacation one can take.

Second—the steamships are the finest on the great lakes and the luxury and comfort they afford will make the trip doubly enjoyable.

Third—As The Journal has arranged for special but three stories high, plastered on the inside and covered with ornamental stonework on the outside, making it semi-fireproof. Every room is an outside room and is well lighted and ventilated. It is a handsomely appointed, first-class hotel in every respect.

Cost of the Grand Trip.

The cost of a ticket for each passenger for the entire round trip of 11 days is only $44.50

This includes one round trip ticket from Minneapolis to Buffalo, N. Y., and return via Great Northern Railway, Duluth and the Northern Steamship company luncheon and dinner in Duluth, carriage drives in Duluth, Mackinac Island, Detroit and Cleveland; four days' board at Statler's Pan-American Hotel in Buffalo, including lodging, breakfast and evening dinner and a day's tour of Niagara Falls in a most enjoyable and satisfactory way. Ticket also includes sleeping car berth from Duluth to Minneapolis on Journal Special train on return.

As to Berths and Meals

The round trip rate does not include berths and meals on the steamships between Duluth and Buffalo. These splendid ships are operated on the European plan, which has been found to be the most satisfactory system. The price of berths vary according to location on ship and run from $5 upward, each way, between Duluth and Buffalo. A most desirable berth costs $6 to $7.50 each way. The round trip price includes 19 meals on the ships. The restaurants on the ships offer first-class service and the prices are no higher than at good city restaurants. Where two or three are in a party the cost of meals, of course, can be materially reduced. People who have traveled the most times on these famous ships speak most highly of the faultless table service and the reasonable cost of meals.

Fourth—and very important, you will be sure of first-class hotel accommodations while in Buffalo, and will not be obliged to worry about getting quarters, to say nothing of paying four prices for what you would get. You will be in a handsome, clean, well furnished, up-to-date, modern hotel, just a block from the exposition and you will be comfortable in every respect.

IF YOU CALL AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE FOR TICKETS call between 8:15 and 9:15, 11:45 and 12:30 or 1:30 and 3 pm, or Telephone "Main 748" for an appointment. If you have any further questions to ask it will be a pleasure to answer them. A. W. WARNOCK, Excursion Manager, THE JOURNAL.

this church, whose destiny is so dear to the heart of the Roman pontiff who highly esteems the virtues the young and vigorous American nation. And well indeed may you glory also in the presence of so many faithful pastors of souls, men of prudence and wisdom, venerable by reason of their years and labors, men filled with zeal, who day and night never cease to watch over the flock committed to them. But among those I see some who more particularly rejoice and rightly so because they are united with the new cardinal in spiritual ties; they have listened to the same divine voice that he listened to, they profess the same rule and they have come together with us to-day to add their congratulations to ours whilst they greet him the glory of the distinguished Augustinian order whom before they esteemed as a kind brother and loving father! And the members of other religious families rejoice also with them because this prelate has given a new pledge of the advancement of the universal sign pontiff who very recently did not hesitate to say that the religious orders are an ornament and splendor of the universal church.

Allow me therefore, most eminent sir, to read the apostolic brief by which the holy father, Leo XIII., elevates you to the college of cardinals, but before so doing, I must add that you are a son of the church, the supreme pastor of the church of God who by a special mark of favor has chosen me unworthy though I be, as ablegate on this occasion.

And, finally, most eminent sir, again receive my sons of devotion and my congratulations. May your life be long and happy and may God preserve you for many years for the honor and glory of his church.

Cardinal Gibbons responded as follows:

Cardinal Gibbons' Address.

Most Eminent Father: I beg leave to tender to your eminence my most sincere congratulations on the well-merited honor which the holy father has conferred on you in associating you with the members of the sacred college, and I am sure that, in offering my felicitations, I am expressing not only the sentiments of my own heart, but also those of all my venerable colleagues of the American episcopate, who are so numerously represented on this joyous occasion. I am certain, also, that the good wishes of the prelates are shared by the clergy throughout the United States. Less than five years ago you came among us an entire stranger. You will leave us bound to all by the hallowed ties of friendship, without a single enemy to second your mission in our universal jubilee of praise and commendation.

Your mission to the United States has been a mission of peace. While living among us you have taken as your model the Prince of Peace himself, of whom it is written: "He shall not contend nor cry out, neither shall his voice be heard in the streets. The bruised reed he shall not break, the smoking flax he shall not extinguish." You have fulfilled your mission of apostolic delegate, your eminence has been actuated by a high sense of justice, by a justice tempered with charity. The spirit of your administration has been fittingly characterized in the words of the royal prophet: "Mercy and truth have met each other. Justice and peace have kissed." You have followed the injunction of the apostle of gentiles, "I have not shamed the ministry of your own illustrious founder, 'Omnia vestra incharitate fiant.' Let all your works be done in charity. By your justice you have settled disputes. By your charity you have healed the wounds which are sometimes inflicted by litigation.

There is but one sad note in the joyous festivity of to-day, and that is found in the reflection that your eminence is about to leave us. But we indulge the hope that you will abide with us for a long time yet. And we are cheered and comforted by the consideration that when you take up your residence in Rome, the holy father will have in you a wise and prudent counselor, who is conversant with the religious, moral and social conditions of the United States. Your eminence will be able to inform his holiness that is no country in the Christian world that is so full of the spirit of Christ as the United States. Be assured, most eminent father, that our prayers and best wishes will follow you. May you enjoy in the eternal city that peace and tranquillity which is the fruit of a mission faithfully accomplished.

The Crowning Act.

Cardinal Gibbons then descended from his throne and advanced to the front of the altar, accompanied by his attendants, bearing the beretta. Martinelli rose and escorted the member of the noble guard and the cardinal obsequiently. Cardinal Gibbons, before whom he knelt and bowed his head. Slowly lifting the beretta from the silver salver upon which it rested, Cardinal Gibbons unfolded it and held it high in order that the congregation might see it. Then stooping and, with what seemed to be a soothly murmured prayer, he placed it upon the head of the cardinal-elect, who rose and, advancing to the front of the altar, spoke as follows:

Martinelli's Reply to Gibbons.

Most Eminent and Most Reverend Sir: Having been by the kindness of the supreme pontiff made a member of the sublime college of cardinals of the holy Roman church, nothing could have pleased me more than to receive from your eminence, surrounded by this crown of bishops and illustrious personages, the insignia of this honor and high dignity. It rejoices me to receive these signs of pontifical favor in this metropolitan see in which the entire ecclesiastical and pastoral care have been so bright and has done so much for the promotion of Catholic interests as well as for the furtherance of all things which aid in the progress of humanity and the glory of the nation.

You will permit me to add another reason for my happiness. I find it in your continuous and untiring kindness toward me from the moment in which, by the command of the supreme pontiff, I was placed at the head of the apostolic delegation. These acts and other considerations availed in my apostle of latitude toward your eminence. I beg you, then, to accept the thanks which I cordially offer you, and not only to you, but to all the illustrious prelates and others who have come to honor this occasion by their presence do I offer the expressions of my sincere gratitude. Meanwhile, most eminent sir, I pray the great and good God long to preserve and protect you.

Having concluded the address, the newly-made cardinal, who up to this time had worn the vestments of an archbishop, retired to the inner sanctuary and in a few moments returned clad in his cardinalial robes. Almost immediately afterward he divested himself of these and appeared in the white and gold vestments of the mass in which he was pontificate. Assisted by his priests and deacons, he conducted this short service in presence of the vast audience. The sermon was delivered by Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia, after which Cardinal Gibbons pronounced the benediction and the ceremony was ended.

Time to Spare.

Charles M. Scowall, the man who has more responsibility on his shoulders than most kings, has been a tremendous worker but he has always had time to enjoy life. He is an accomplished piano player, an expert at billiards and equally good at golf. The great railroad builder Van Horn is a wonderful performer on the violin, and so it is with successful men in many branches of life—they have time to work and to play. Employment of life also comes with drinking "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. It is pure, refreshing and delicious and should be in every home in the land. Have a case sent home to-day.
