In Social Circles

A charming home wedding was that of Miss Martha Elizabeth Harris and Charles Albert Bachman, which took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Harriet Ellen Harris, in St. Anthony Park. The service, which was read by Rev. Mr. Presey, took place beneath a large green and white. The bride's gown was of white batiste and point d'esprit lace. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Miss Frances Harris, the maid of honor, wore a pale yellow mousseline de soie. The two little flower girls, the Misses Marjorie and Elizabeth Wellington, were also in pale yellow. Before and during the ceremony selections from "The Rose Tree" were played on the harp. A profusion of ferns, vines, daisies and sprigs were used in decorating the parlors, while the winding staircase in the hall was banked on either side with E. M. Moore and Mrs. A. F. Cobb of Elizabeth, N. J., the guests of Mrs. H. H. Kimball. Covers were laid for twelve and pink and white roses adorned the dining-room. The other rooms were bright with garden flowers.

CLUBS AND CHARITIES

CLUB CALENDAR.

TUESDAY.

Authors' club, 917 Fifth avenue S., evening, Lucy Hayes W. C. T. U., 1222 Clinton avenue, afternoon.

The Minneapolis Improvement League has been invited to join the National League of Improvement Associations, and the question will be considered at the first fall meeting. The work of inspecting the rows had not begun shortly. The school children will make no regular exhibition at the state fair this year, but several of the schools will have individual exhibitions in the Woman's building. The current issue of the Minneapolis Outdoor Art Association's publication devotes considerable space to the work of the Minneapolis League, which is recognized as one of the most important in the country.

The Minneapolis chapter, D. A. R., will have its annual picnic at the home of Mrs. Lucius Frink at Lake Park Saturday. Trains will leave at 1:45 and 3:15 and return at 5:30 o'clock. The men will also enjoy the picnic supper.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church will hold its monthly meeting with Mrs. Avery at Orono Point, Lake Minnetonka, Wednesday at 3 p. m. A basket luncheon will be served.

PIONEER FRENCH CLUB

A Place in Paris for Rest, Recreation and Conversation.

In all France there is but one woman's club and the organizer and president of this pioneer club is Miss Louise Kimball. The club has a beautiful home of its own in the very heart of the fashionable quarter, with a portico overlooking the magnificent colonnaded boulevards of Paris. It is what the famous Jockey Club is to the men—a place for rest, for recreation, for social conversation. The women who have elected it to become their club are intelligent and progressive. At first it was limited to all respectable women who hold liberal views; and those who lead isolated existences or are deprived of a family environment are particularly welcome. It is composed of several elements—women of title, fashion, wealth, aristocracy and those who own their position solely to their own energy and intelligence. It is a club of artists, musicians, journalists, women of letters and others who neither toil nor spin. In the club all are on a plane of social equality.

The club motto is "Union, Solidarity, Benevolence." It is composed of several elements—women of title, fashion, wealth, aristocracy and those who own their position solely to their own energy and intelligence. LAKE MINNETONKA

The golf game at Lafayette lake made that spot the center of attraction Saturday afternoon. The Minnetonka team was accompanied by a large number of members and a party of enthusiastic women who came to see them win and to enjoy the social attractions of the lake club's home. The lake was represented by a team made up from the members of the Minnetonka club, and there was considerable confusion in the minds of the "gallery," for the Lafayette people had to get acquainted with their own side. The confusion was increased by the fact that a large number of the women were men prominent in Minnetonka club, and vice versa.

The "gallery" remained on the veranda for the most part during the first round, as much of the course could be seen from the cool shelter. At the beginning of the second round, however, the game between C. T. Jaffray and Rev. M. D. Hardin, the crack players of the two teams, became so exciting that a large number felt they were getting a nearer view, and each stroke was watched with almost breathless interest. The game was nip and tuck almost through the whole round and the playing of greens, when the spectators were close at hand, was almost a silence almost as solemn and impressive as at a funeral.

Mr. Hardin's victory in this game without any possible sting of a big score was a surprise to many of the spectators. The "little dominion" from the East Side is easily the idol of the club these days, and they rejoice that Scott endowed him with skill in golf. Mr. Hardin is particularly an object of admiration and a person of distinction among the caddies, and George Dodge, who carried his clubs on Saturday, was more elated over the victory than most of the spectators. Mr. Hardin's only comment on the side of the caddies furnished much sport for their elders who chanced to overhear the remarks.

The fact that the first testing grounds is just far enough from the side veranda that features cannot readily be distinguished in a crowd, most of the men were picked out by means of their clothing while making their way to the clubhouse. The cause of the disagreement that before all the players were off several rounds of drinks had been lost in trying to determine who were trousers of flannel or duck of various colors, and also certain styles of shoes, and the consequence was that certain individuals were. As it was too hot to go out and see, and the statements of caddies had to be relied on to settle the disputes, it is by no means certain that the men who paid for the game were the ones who were wrong in their guesses and bets.

The victory of Mr. Hardin over Mr. Jaffray evidenced that he spent the past week in acclimating himself to the attentions of the "gallery." Last Saturday, on the Burton links, he did not play his accustomed game, and he was obviously "fussed" by the large number of spectators who were spectators. This he readily admitted, and on his return expressed the hope that everybody who cared to, and especially the women at the club, would follow him around in his practice, doing the worst in the hands of the club. The crowd at the clubhouse was increased with each train from the city, and Steward McClurg had his hands full in serving dinner for the numerous special parties and visitors. The teams had the best of the situation, the women of letters and others who neither toil nor spin. In the club all are on a plane of social equality.
