A BRECKENRIDGE'S FATE

Grandson of Vice President Breckinridge Dies in San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 26.—Lloyd Tevis Breckinridge, grandson of the late Vice President Breckinridge and of the late Lloyd Tevis, president of the Wells Fargo Express company, committed suicide last night at the family home in this city, where he lived with his grandmother and uncle, Dr. Harry Tevis. A rubber tube leading from the gas jet to the bed where the body was found told the story of his death.

Despondency due to a nervous trouble from which the young man had suffered for years led to the suicide. He had just passed his twenty-third birthday. He was the son of the eldest daughter of the late Lloyd Tevis, now Mrs. Frederick W. Sharron. His mother is in Paris with her daughter, Miss Florence Breckinridge. She closely the death of her son Hugh Tevis, in Japan, was almost more than she could bear and her condition verges on nervous prostration.

BUBONIC PLAGUE

Assurance That the Disease Will Not Spread in New York.

New York, July 26.—The steamship Hohenfels, which was detained at quarantine, to enable the health officers to investigate a case of bubonic plague found on board, will begin to unload her cargo to-day. As the cargo was exposed it will be fumigated to avoid all chances of spreading the contagion. Twenty-seven members of the crew are at Swinburne Island, where they will be held for twelve days, until the period required for the incubation of any disease germs has passed. The rest of the crew, the officers and one health officer of the port are on board. Dr. Doty, the health officer of the port, said:

The case of bubonic plague found on the Hohenfels is an extremely mild one, over which no apprehension should be felt by the public. It is my opinion that in all probability some member of the crew was attacked with the disease either before or immediately after the steamer left Cebu, and that the case in hand was contracted from that other seaman. I think little of the theory that rats spread the contagion.
