Margaret Duval, Comedienne, Edi tor and Reformer, Heads & Unique Movement.

New York Sun Special News Service. Paris, Aug. 7.—Margaret Duval, editor of La Fronde, the woman's daily paper, is about to begin a crusade in France to arouse the nterest of women in the feminist movement. Mme. Duval is not only a reformer, an editor and a suffragist, but she also is a capable actress and will use her histrionic power to place the wrongs of woman fully and fairly before her compatriots. She will take a company of players with her and will tour the country, presenting problem plays in all the principal cities. The performances will conclude with a lecture by Mme. Duval, in which she promises to tell to the men and women of France a few startling truths about women's present place in civilization. woman's present place in civilization.

OUR DAILY BREAD Valuable Suggestions for the Kitch en and Dining Room. By Katherine Kurtz. THE FLOWER OF VEGETABLES The cauliflower, while not a neglected vegetable, is regarded more as an aristocrat and an ornament for the table of the well to do than as a really useful addition to our list of vegetables. While a very near relation to the cabbage, it demorstrates in appearance and in its much greater delicacy of flavor, what careful cultivation will do for all growing things. Unfortunately, it is less hardy than the cabbage and cannot adapt itself to every kind of soil or climate, and it is, therefore more of a luxury, and account of its supply being, of a necessity, rather limited.

Compared With Cabbage.

Housewives, through lack of knowledge of the nature of most of the foods they eat, consider the difference in price only, and will probably be governed in their choice by reasoning thus: A head of cabbage costs but few cents, and goes so much farther, and is just as good, if one only overlooks appearcause of feminist reform. Her views are not revolutionary, but favor only the emancipa-tion of women from restraints which, in her ance; in fact, being much stronger in flavor, it must be more satisfying. While in fact the amount of nutrients is greater in the more delicate vegetable, for while it contains 90 per cent water, the cabbage has a higher percentage of water, but very much lower amount of nitrates and phosphates, and con-siderably more waste Cabbage contains also considerable more heat producing power than the more delicate product. Coupled with these facts, we must understand that the cauliflower is the most digestible of the cabdelicate eaters.

Cooking Cauliflower.

This vegetable, being an aristocrat among its kind, must be treated as such. Unfortunately, housewives do not take this into consideration and understand the proper way to prepare it in order to make a delicacy of it. When it is cooked in a proper manner it has a very pleasing character as well as appearance, which commonds it to every refined taste. It must not be simply placed in boiling water and cooked until tender, but should be placed, head down, in plenty of cold, sold, water water and allowed to scoke for so cold, salt water, and allowed to soak for an hour or two, according to size and age of head. In this way all insects will be driven out, and the salt penetrates the vegetable and gives it a finer flavor than when cooked with-

When ready to cook, remove the outer leaves and trim the stalk quite close each head is tied loosely in a piece of thin white cheesecloth, it will keep it white while cooking. Place the heads in the boiling water, stems upwards. Cooked in this way it can be sent to the table whole.
