What Rev. W. P. McKee Says in the Chicago Standard.

RELIGIOUS LIFE OF STUDENTS

Of 2,000 Young Men in the Collegiate Department Half Are Church Members.

Rev. William P. McKee has contributed a paper to a symposium in the Chicago Standard, which bears on religious life in the University of Minnesota.

In a residence of ten years under the shadow of the University of Minnesota, the study the religious life there as an outsider, and yet as a sympathizer and co-worker.

During those ten years the impression deepened in my mind that the atmosphere about the university is favorable to the growth of a wholesome religious life.

It would be difficult to say too strongly, however, that the influence of the university itself, through its faculty, its professors, and its students, is largely a positive one.

STORY OF PROHIBITION IN NORTH DAKOTA

Embedded in the Constitution, the Law is Likely to Endure—How It Works—Progress in Enforcement—Place in Politics.

North Dakota, of all the states which have experimented with a statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, has been the most successful in the enforcement of the law.

When A. C. Rankin, the "moulder orator," who will be remembered more recently as the temporary manager of Carrie Nation's Chicago tour, decided to locate in North Dakota, he predicted that the day would come when North Dakota's greatest fame would be based on prohibition.

Prohibition was made a part of the North Dakota constitution by a small majority in the popular vote in 1889. Of a total vote of 35,945, the margin in favor of prohibition was 1,150.

Failure of the regular machinery of the law to run down illegal liquor vendors brought the Enforcement League into existence years ago. This is an organization whose purpose is the punishment of all violators of the law. Its active officer is the secretary who is assisted by a detective force in gathering evidence.

The Enforcement League has done very effective work in several sections, and while the "blind pig detective" has been given a hard time at times, some of the western districts he has on the whole been instrumental in securing many convictions.
