Jobbers and Manufacturers Want to Hold One Next Spring.

TRADE EXPANSION IN MIND
New Scheme May Be Worked Out in Connection With Merchants' Excursions.

Minneapolis manufacturers and jobbers are working on plans for a big exposition which they hope to make one of the permanent features of Minneapolis' wholesale trade. This new venture is expected to aid greatly in the work of making Minneapolis the mecca for northern buyers and buyers from southwestern states, a territory which Minneapolis wholesalers are canvassing with much vigor.

Every jobbing point of importance in the state is discussing ways and means of attracting the buyer. Merchants' excursions have been a success, especially with Minneapolis. The jobbers of some of the larger cities of the country have been loyal to the plan of visiting the retail trade once each year by special train. Minneapolis wholesalers believe that with an exposition of local factory products properly handled, the spring gathering of buyers can be made profitable to both wholesaler and retailer.

THE DETAILS OF THE plan are being worked out by a number of jobbers. An effort will be made to interest every manufacturer and wholesaler in the city. Minneapolis can make a tremendous showing in manufacturing by wholesaling, outside of lumber and flour, leading items. The promoters of the plan consider that with the state fair in the fall and the exposition and buyers' gathering in the spring, Minneapolis will be strictly in line as a favorite rallying point among the merchants.

CZOLGOSZ'S CRIME
Judge Cauty Discusses It From a Legal Standpoint.

W. W. Erwin Holds Czolgosz Amenable to the Common Law - Judge Lochren Dissents.

It is the duty of both the federal and state government, in the opinion of Judge Thomas Cauty, to provide an adequate penalty for an unsuccessful attempt upon the life of the president. Judge Cauty believes that congress has undoubted power to meet the issue, but to make it doubly sure, he would have every state in the union adopt legislation making such a crime punishable by death. He declares that an attempt on the life of the president is a blow at the safety and security of the republic and should be ranked as a crime, and he thinks that congress and the state legislatures should make a clear distinction between an assault directed against the president in his personal capacity and an attempt to assassinate the president. The former, in Judge Cauty's opinion, should not be classed as treason and the penalty should be nothing more than as prescribed in the case of any other citizen. He holds such a distinction necessary in order to keep within constitutional bounds.

Erwin Says It's Treason.
W. W. Erwin declares Czolgosz's act a clear case of treason and holds that the state of New York should be held responsible for the crime. He says, is not limited by the statute on definition of treason, but may proceed under the common law. He considers it an error, however, to hold that Czolgosz can be tried in federal courts or on other counts and given a cumulative sentence that would practically mean life imprisonment.

HE "HOLLERS" VET
Burlesque Manager Still Regrets That Departed $25.

Legality of Fee Depends on That - Health Commissioner Hall's Statement.

Manager Ballau, of Fred Irwin's burlesque company, that Dr. Irwin's still insists that Medical Inspectors W. H. Hanscom and H. A. Luxton of the health department, who vaccinated his troupe, Monday, informed him that vaccination was a representation of an understanding of the case, he says, that induced him to part with $25. When Mr. Ballau and Dr. Hanscom met last evening at the theater, the former declared that he had no right to understand that vaccination was compulsory, and he characterized the proceeding as a "hold-up." Dr. Hanscom vehemently denied having made any such representation and charged, whereupon Ballau as strenuously repeated his accusation.

W. W. Wittig, resident manager of the theater, is inclined to take sides with the inspectors. He understands that Dr. Hanscom suggested that vaccination was advisable, but not compulsory. An Official Certificate. The fact remains that Manager Ballau was given a regular health department certificate, made out by Dr. Irwin, in exchange for the $25, after the company had been vaccinated. Dr. Hanscom explains his solitude in behalf of the company by the statement that Wittig is a personal friend and that he wished to do him a good turn. He informed Wittig that it would be advisable to have the company vaccinated before it played at his theater. Wittig, however, has been more or less dangerous from smallpox throughout this section of the northwest.

Health Commissioner Hall investigated the case this morning. At the conclusion of his inquiry he made the following statement: In view of the publicity which was given to the vaccination of the company now playing at the Dewey theater and the charges leveled in the same publication against the acts of two of the members of the health department staff, I desire to state, after careful examination, that the matter of collecting a fee for the vaccination of the company was acting in his capacity as a private physician, as he had a right to do, and not as a health official. He supposed the matter was thoroughly understood by the members of the company.

Manager Ballau decided this afternoon to take the matter into the courts. He retained J. R. Corrigan as counsel, and suit will be commenced at once to recover the money, which alleged to have been obtained under false pretenses. The city doctor, W. H. Hanscom, and H. A. Luxton, medical inspectors, will be made joint defendants. Said Manager Ballau: I don't care about the money. But I object to being called a criminal, and as representatives of the health department, with badges proclaiming them to be such, and gave me to understand that the vaccination of my troupe was a right to which I was entitled by law. Had I for a moment understood that there was no necessity for the vaccination, and that the matter was optional with me, I never would have taken any such performance. It has put the members of my company to a great deal of inconvenience. Many of the women members are half sick already from the heat and the noise of the vaccination. Health Commissioner Hall informed me last night that the inspectors had absolutely no authority to come here and even suggest that I have my troupe vaccinated without being so directed by him.

MEMBERS FAVOR IT
Chamber of Commerce Votes on $200 Assessment To-morrow.

IT IS PRETTY SURE TO WIN
What the Officers Say of Its Necessity - The Plan Generally Approved.

The proposition to assess the members of the Chamber of Commerce $200 each will doubtless be approved at the meeting to-morrow. This is at least the belief of the officers of the chamber and of most of the influential members. How plausible a showing the opposition will be able to make is problematical, but it has not yet crystallized into any organized force. On the contrary, several members who were loud-voiced against the plan when first proposed are known to have modified their views. President John Washburn, who is sanguine as to the success of the plan, said: It is hard to see how members can do otherwise than support the plan. Should be defeated the only alternative would be for the Chamber to borrow $100,000, giving as security a mortgage on the property. The two buildings, the old and new chambers, are now covered by a first mortgage of $400,000, held by the Minnesota Loan and Trust company, and a second mortgage of $50,000 held by the Security bank. The raising of the money in the open market would therefore necessitate the placing of a third mortgage on the property and the disadvantage and impracticability of this is too obvious to require comment. The increased cost of the building is due to improvements that make it much more valuable. When the building plan was first proposed memberships sold at $400. They are now selling in the neighborhood of $2,500. Many members will therefore be called upon to pay only about one-tenth of what has been gained for them by the new building plan.

PRICES ARE SO HIGH
Plaint of Housewives and Boarding House Keepers.

FOOD PRODUCTS UP 50 PER CENT
Prices of Necessities Have Doubled With No Corresponding Increase in Wages.

With the past quarter of a century the cost of living in Minneapolis has never been so high as it is this fall. To-day potatoes sell for $1.10 a bushel. A year ago they were 27 cents. The following table of comparative prices will give some idea of the situation:
Article - 1901 1900
Potatoes, per bushel $1.10 $0.27
Cabbages, a piece .07 .01 1/2
Hubbard squash, apiece .08 .04
Oyster plant, per bunch .04 .02 1/2
Tomatoes, per bushel .25 .35
Onions, per peck .14 .14
Beets, per peck .15 .07
All food products in which oats or corn are the constituents are about 50 per cent higher than a year ago. This includes oatmeal, rolled oats, corn meal, hominy and similar food stuffs. Higher prices also prevail both for canned vegetables and canned fruits, the raise having been brought about not alone through the scarcity of the vegetables and fruits, but by the increased price of tin and steel. Apples, which brought high prices a year ago, are still higher to-day. Cauliflower and peas are no longer on the market. Sweet corn is still to be had, but the price is almost over. It is selling to-day for 15 cents a dozen, about double last year's price. Fruits, with the exception of peaches, are all much above the usual price. Flour is the same as last year. Turnips, rutabagas and carrots, for which there is little demand at present, are all high and will go higher. The price of potatoes is probably about as high now as it will go. The scarcity locally has been brought about by recent rains, which have prevented the farmers from digging their crop. With two or three dry days the price is expected to rise back to 80 or 85 cents. The potato crop has been good in Minnesota this year, and the high prices are due to the demand from southern markets, where the crop was almost a total failure in Kansas City to-day the succulent tubers are retailing for $1.50 a bushel. Of course this price is due simply to a shortage that will be obviated later. In past years a Minnesota farmer has considered $75 a good return for an acre planted in potatoes. This year each acre has paid from $250 to $300, and that, too, on land worth anywhere from $40 to $65 an acre. The farmer is reaping the benefit. Cabbages which a year ago brought $3 a ton in the local wholesale market, are selling to-day at from $12 to $14. With foods, fuel and rents all much higher than they were a year ago, the man who must care for his family on the same salary he received in 1900 is having a hard time of it. The wages paid labor in the cities have not changed much from the schedule in force last fall, while the prices of necessities have, in many cases, doubled.
