

PRESIDENT COMENDED

Offset to Criticism for Booker Washington Incident.

SENTIMENTS CONFLICT Chivalrous Ideas and Prejudice at Odds in the South.

"WELL DONE!" BOSTON'S VERDICT President Roosevelt Ignores the Clamor Over This Matter Personal to Himself.

Special to The Journal. Chicago, Oct. 19.—The Tribune to-day says that throughout the southern states yesterday the press and people discussed the president's action in having Booker T. Washington as a guest at a private dinner in the White House.

Boston Commendation. In Boston the matter was discussed and universal opinion there commended the dinner-host and guest.

"Last commended Booker Washington sat at Harvard's table. By that we express what we think of him," was the way President Eliot of Harvard university expressed it.

"Because the president entertained this man," said Senator Mason last night to the members of the Young Men's club of the Fourth Presbyterian church, "he is being basted and lampooned from one end of the country to the other by a certain set of people."

PRESIDENT UPHELD He Refuses to Take Any Phase of the Subject Seriously.

From The Journal Bureau, Room 45, Post Building, Washington. Washington, Oct. 19.—Northern sentiment in this part of the country sustains the attitude of President Roosevelt regarding the Booker T. Washington affair.

PREVALENT POISON AS HUMAN FOOD

Butcher Witnesses in "Preservative" Cases, Now on Trial, Tell Some Startling Trade Secrets.

Conditions Better Now Than Before the Borax Law Passed—What Present Crusade Means.

In the case of the state against C. H. Wagenholes, meat dealer, in the municipal court yesterday afternoon, expert witnesses showed how it is possible to "doctor" diseased meats so skillfully as to deceive the consumer and induce him to take into his system that which would ordinarily be most revolting.

The witnesses were C. S. Lilly, and J. O. Taylor, butchers. Both swore of their own knowledge that meat so badly decomposed as to have sickening smell could be completely deodorized by the use of preservatives known as "Four X" and "Freezum."

A Vigorous Campaign. We are using every means to discourage the use of these preparations and so far we have been very successful. I want to say in justice to the firms whose butchers testified for the state that their meat departments are absolutely above reproach and that no such practices obtain in them.

Doctored Meat Dangerous. Dr. Andrews of Mankato, gave expert testimony from the standpoint of a physician when the case was resumed to-day.

George L. Dingman of the state dairy and food commission, said this afternoon that the commission would continue to carry the war into the enemy's country until the use of borax became altogether too expensive a luxury in the cost of ensuing litigation.

TO RESTORE THE CANTEN

Law Abolishing It Will Probably Be Repealed. IT PROVES A FAILURE

Temperance Guns Spiked and Ammunition Stolen. MORALS OF SOLDIERS SUFFER

Educational Interests of the Northwest Described in Commissioner Harris' Report. PROGRESS IN EDUCATION.

Washington, Oct. 19.—That the anti-canteen law will be replaced by congress this winter is the belief as well as hope of every officer and private of the regular army.

It is pretty well understood at the war department that the no-canteen system has not been a success. Department commanders claim that discipline has been relaxed; that the soldiers disregard the regulations and indulge without restraint in the vicious hard liquors of the sutler.

The official position of the war department just now is one of supreme indifference. The report of the secretary of war will not mention the canteen. There will be no suggestion that the law be repealed. Adjutant General Corbin said when asked about the matter: "The canteen incident is closed. Congress passed the law abolishing it and the law is being enforced. There will be no recommendations or communications to congress on the subject of the canteen."
