WILL NAME COMMITTEES

Mrs. La Penotiere Will Endeavor to Distribute Work.

Almost the closing action of the annual convention of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs at Owatonna was the election of Mrs. Lydia Phillips Williams, the retiring president, as an honorary president of the organization. This choice was not a mere empty honor, but one mode of expression of the affection in which Mrs. Williams is held. She has with her name large in the annals of the organization and has left a marked impress upon it. Having expressed with deep sincerity its appreciation and loyalty to its latest leader, the organization turned with confidence to the new one. While always a member of the organization, the features of Mrs. E. M. La Penotiere are probably not familiar to many of the club women through the state, and they will undoubtedly examine with interest the excellent likeness of her, printed to-day. Mrs. La Penotiere has made no formal statement of policy, but her appreciation of committee work with the sharing of responsibility and power in developing workers will lead her to give particular attention to strengthening this line of the organization. Their importance as leaders and the representative character of the district vice presidents was recognized by making them in nearly every case delegates to the Los Angeles biennial. The only exceptions made were because the districts had already been provided with representation. The color question is now being discussed quietly and reflectively and the thought uppermost is one of congratulation over the

VALLEY FORGE MONUMENT

Minnesota Daughters of the Revolution Celebrate its Dedication.

The Minnesota State Daughters of the Revolution held a social meeting on Saturday at the Jones-Harrison Home at Cedar Lake. At the same time, on the site of the revolutionary camp at Valley Forge, the general society was dedicating a monument to the soldiers who lie in unmarked graves in that spot of dark but heroic memories. The women of the Minnesota chapter went out at noon to the Home, and carried their baskets of provisions for an indoor picnic. In the course of which until recently housed the institution. Bountiful provision had been made, and many dainties were left as a treat for the old women of the Home, who greatly enjoy occasionally a taste of cooking different from that to which they are accustomed. The meeting was wholly an informal one and the literary exercises were in the form of table talk. Owing to the illness of the state regent, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. A. T. Anderson. The account of the movement which resulted in the placing of a monument at Valley Forge was given very briefly by the chapter historian, Miss Martha Scott. The movement began with a visit of the delegates to the general society to the field of Valley Forge two years ago last May, during the annual convention in Philadelphia. The women learned that there was no monument to those who died at Valley Forge, and that but one of the countless graves was marked in any way. The owner of the land, after giving this information and seeing the interest which the society's discussed, offered to give a plot of ground for a monument if the society should decide to erect one. The offer was accepted and $5,000 was raised for the monument. It is placed at a spot where the graves lie thickest, near the temporary hospital site where so many of the brave men died. The granite shaft of the monument is forty feet high, and the base is a bas-relief of William Brueckner's painting of "Washington at Prayer at Valley Forge." Interesting anecdotes of the services of their ancestors in the revolution were given by all present. The guests of honor were Mrs. Caroline M. Coffin, matron of the Home, and Mrs. Ruth Van der Hule of St. Paul, who has recently been admitted to the Home and is occupying the room furnished by the chapter and named for it. Mrs. Coffin is a descendant of John Hicks, the Cambridge minute man aroused by Paul Revere in his ride, who was the first man to fall at Concord bridge, as is recorded on the monument at the bridge and in Longfellow's poem, as well as in historical records. Mrs. Coffin has recently visited the spots about Boston connected with the history of her family, and also that of the original home of the historic Coffin family, into which she married. She gave a very entertaining account of what she saw and her experiences with local historians and antiquaries. Mrs. Van der Hule is the granddaughter of William Bramble, who served both as a Connecticut and Vermont soldier, rising to the rank of captain in the Indian fighting on the northern frontier. He was one of the donors of land as an endowment for Dartmouth college. At the close of the luncheon a visit of inspection through the home was made. Most of the members had not had an opportunity before of seeing the room furnished by the chapter. The furniture is in birdseye maple, which approximates the buff of the society's colors, and the hangings, linen and crockery all repeat the buff and blue of the Continental army uniforms, adopted by the society as its colors.

The Young Ladies' Phillethea Bible class of the First Baptist church is an organization of thirty-eight young women who study under the direction of Mrs. T. K. Gray. The class is ambitious to increase its membership to 50 and is anxious that young women who are not identified with any other church should attend the lessons which are held every Sunday at 12:15 o'clock. The class is a part of a national group of young women which works in connection with the Barceas, an organization of young men. The sole aim of the organization is to stimulate the growth of Bible study and to support the Sunday school. The Phillethea has a social as well as a spiritual side, and several entertainments are planned for the year. A series of rally day services will be held the second Sunday of each month. Yesterday a postponed rally day talk was given by Rev. W. B. Riley on "White Fields." Miss Sadie Geer will talk on "A Jolly Good Girl" Nov. 10. The officers are as follows: President, Miss Annabel White; vice president, Miss Clara Noble; secretary, Miss Grace A. Howells; treasurer, Miss Annie McDermid; reporter, Miss Jane A. Sawyer; chairman of social committee, Miss Florence McColl; chairman of calling committee, Miss Ella Mapes.
