

JOHN MAKES A SLATE

Capt. Fitchette Would Have Ames Run for Governor.

WM. H. GRIMSHAW FOR MAYOR

The Captain's Relations to the Doctor May Give Peculiar Significance to His Utterances.

For Governor—Dr. A. A. Ames. For Mayor—Wm. H. Grimshaw. For Congress—Some young unknown.

That is the way Captain Fitchette of "Coffee John" fame, would make up the republican slate if he had his way.

"Coffee John" fame, would make up the republican slate if he had his way. "You see it's like this," said the captain this morning unconsciously using the exordium of Minneapolis' greatest political alchemist.

"They say to me, Dr. Ames must go to congress. And I know the doctor wants to lay out Fletcher for that particular office. That is true. But this is my idea, and it is what I've told them. John Lind will unquestionably be the next democratic nominee for governor. Oh, yes; there's no doubt about it; he's trimming for it now. Well, Dr. Ames is the only man in the state who can beat Lind for governor. The republican party cannot afford to lose the state, and so it must nominate Dr. Ames for governor, who can secure democratic votes in addition to the republican vote.

"Of course whichever office Dr. Ames seeks, his candidacy will necessitate a new majority candidate. My choice for that high office is W. H. Grimshaw, one of the greatest republicans to be found anywhere. He is solid with the G. A. R., with business men, with the laboring men, and he can be elected over any man the democrats can put up.

"As to congress, let the republicans pick out some young man to defeat Fletcher. That would be my idea. I can't see how it can be regarded in any other light. Dr. Ames for governor is the only solution of the political puzzle of 1902."

As "Coffee John" stands in the full blaze of the fierce light that beats about the city hall throne, it is barely possible that his gubernatorial-majority congressional ideas are inspired. It is not likely that he would talk politics as they pertain to his chief otherwise.

Very many people have never put any faith in the doctor's professed desire to hold a seat in congress. He realizes that he is no longer a young man, and that it would take him several years to get a foothold in the national legislative body. But as governor of the great state of Minneapolis he could live and move and have his being in Minneapolis, where his life has been spent and where all his hopes are centered.

As to Mr. Grimshaw's candidacy, Captain Fitchette probably speaks without authority for that gentleman. Mr. Grimshaw has enjoyed the reputation of a "mentioned" in connection with the mayoralty, but so far as is known has never made any combination with the Ames forces.

"THE CHARM OF ESSAY"

The Topic of Dr. Richard Burton's Final Lecture.

Richard Burton concluded a short course of lecture recitals Saturday evening, speaking on "The Charm of Essay." The charm lies wholly in the man behind the essay, in Dr. Burton's view. The true essayist is a sort of brother in general to mankind. He is vibrant with human sympathy.

Dr. Burton must be richly endowed with the quality himself, for he held his audience enthralled with the elusive beauty of Lamb and Stevenson's essays. He is in moods and their smiles so near their hearts. People left the church with a laugh over Stevenson's troubles with his donkey, Mac, and his "Old Mortality," and Lamb's "dream children" still tugging at their heart strings.

The "scientific essay" is a misnomer in common use, said Dr. Burton. A didactic paper is a treatise. The matter of the essay is nothing, the form and the personality behind it everything. The essayist speaks of himself, or rather of humanity in terms of "me." He does not speak to the many, but to you alone. He does not say opposite, but beside you, and nudges you when you are asleep.

The essayist cannot be a parvenue. It is absolutely essential that he have good breeding and culture, which means absorption of the best things.

Such was Lamb, the master of the essay in the early years of the last century, and such was Stevenson, his equal in modern times. "Life was but a wilderness" to Lamb, whose devotion to his sister robbed him of other family ties. Yet none loved children as did he. His style is unpretentious, and his humor is subtle and ardent to give us a thrill of pleasure. He was steeped in the classics, yet not pedantic.

Lamb's essays Dr. Burton divided into the satirical humorous, the playful tender, and the poetic pathetic.

Stevenson was great in fiction, but even in that an essayist, and the cream of him is in the essays. In many ways he resembled Lamb, in mood, style, humor and human feeling. The same cheerfulness under a weight of misfortune shows forth in Stevenson's essay on "The Sick Man's Estate in a Southern Watering Place."

Dr. Burton will give another course of three lectures this fall, Saturday evenings, at the Unitarian church. His topics will be "The Short Story," with readings from Kipling; "The Place of Parody," with readings from Thackeray and others, and "The Literature of Childhood," illustrated from Stevenson and Kipling.

PARLOR FOR THE "HELLO" GIRLS

A Novel Heating and Ventilating Plant Strictly Up to Date.

A novel heating and ventilating plant is being installed in the new central exchange of the Twin City Telephone company at Seventh street and Third avenue S.

The new system has been adopted primarily to insure that during the winter months the telephone exchange will be kept at a comfortable temperature.

A novel thing in connection with the ventilating plant is that the windows above the ground floor will never be opened except for the purpose of cleaning them, either in summer or winter, as artificial ventilation will be depended on to keep the rooms comfortable the year round.

At all times the air utilized in the big room will be drawn in through openings in the vaulted ceiling, the entire atmosphere of the room receiving a complete change every ten minutes. During the winter the air will be fanned through a great sprayer of cold water, which will clean it and cool it at the same time.

General Manager E. E. Webster says that the new system will make the large exchange room where 100 girls will be employed perfectly comfortable, even during oppressively hot days.

The Twin City Telephone management has also set aside a large room 30x30 as a parlor for the young lady operators. The room will be nicely furnished and will contain a library of choice books. An adjoining room will be fixed up in an attractive manner and utilized as a dining-room or room where the girls may eat their lunches. Hot tea, coffee, soup, etc., will be served at all hours.

LOSS IS FELT IN NOME

THE NEWS OF MCKINLEY'S DEATH How It Was Received in the Far-Off Northern Mining Camp.

October 9 was observed as McKinley Memorial Day at Nome, Alaska. C. A. Mitchell, writing of the ceremonies of the day, says:

"Today has been observed as memorial day on account of the death of the president. I have just returned from the Congregational church, where services were held this afternoon. The church was packed. There were about 500 present. The services were good and we had some fine singing.

All places of business were closed from 1 o'clock until 5. Even the saloons had notices posted: 'Closed until 5 p. m.' So you see, although we are so remote we are ready to pay tribute to our martyred president.

The steamer Queen, which arrived Sept. 19, brought the news that the president had been shot. The Seattle papers gave the details. The newsboys did not have to go far to dispose of them at 25 cents a copy. In half an hour after the arrival the entire camp was thrown into a state of excitement; then a deep gloom settled down on the entire population.

On the afternoon of the 23th the steamer Portland hove in sight, in a terrific storm. The Portland came in as near shore as she dared and turned with her broadside to shore, showing her flag at half-mast. Then we knew the news was true. The boat then turned and put out to sea.

Soon after that the news came from St. Michaels to Port Safety by cable. And in the middle of the night every flag in town was dropped at half-mast.

BEFORE THE PUBLIC EYE

Among the important musical announcements of local plans is a series of vocal and piano recitals which will be given before the holidays by Miss Vera Golden and Carlyle Scott. The concerts will be given at the Unitarian church, the first on Oct. 22. On that occasion four sonatas will be played, by Locatelli, 1633-1764; Beethoven, 1770-1827; Hauptmann, 1792-1868; and Grieg, 1843. The second concert includes another group of sonatas. The program for the third concert has not been announced but it has been arranged that Paul Palmer Knapp, a cellist now of Chicago, but formerly a Minneapolis resident, will be the first soloist.

A concert will be given Wednesday evening in Johnson Music hall by the faculty of the Johnson School of Music, Oratory and Dramatic Art. Those who will take part are Gustave Johnson, Carl Riedelberger, Mrs. Charles Holt, Mrs. R. N. Park and Mrs. Mamie Swanberg. A string quartet composed of Carl Riedelberger, Sam Most, Joseph Frank, Julius Blackstad and Ernest Piech will assist in the program.

Arrangements are being made for a fair to be given in Masonic Temple the week of December 1, for the benefit of the Catholic Orphans' Home. Fancy articles will be sold at booths and tables and voting contests will add interest. Dinner will be served by the ladies' auxiliary of the G. A. R. It is hoped that a mortgage of $8,000 on the home may be raised through the fair. A meeting was held last evening in Columbus hall and representatives from the parishes of Immaculate Conception, St. Anthony of Padua, St. Charles, St. Stephens, Holy Rosary, St. Lawrence and Ascension churches, were present. Rev. Father Keane, Rev. Father Arctander and Rev. Father Lee spoke in favor of the affair.

S. J. Brown will give an entertainment, "Gems of Shakespeare," Thursday evening, in the Unitarian church.

GROUND TO DEATH.

Marvin Weaver, 19 years old, was crushed to death by the Omaha freight train in the St. Paul yards yesterday. The boy came to Minnesota from his home in Harvey, Ill., early in the harvest season, and went to work on a farm near Ortonville. Last week he started homeward, beating his way. Yesterday, with two companions, he attempted to board an outgoing freight, but was thrown under the wheels.

BOY MISSING WITH MONEY. The 18-year-old son of W. A. Potter, 797 Holly avenue, St. Paul, wandered from home Saturday with about $50 which he had collected for the Minnesota Type Foundry company, of which his father is manager. Mr. Potter has asked the police to search for the boy. He fears that the lad is mentally deranged and that harm will come to him because of the money.

YALE'S PROUD DAYS

Celebration of the Bicentennial Fully Inaugurated.

FOREIGN COLLEGES REPRESENTED

Booker Washington to Have a Degree and Dine With President Roosevelt Again.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 21.—Yale university extended a formal welcome to-day to her returning sons and to the hundreds of distinguished guests from other institutions of learning in this country and across the seas who are here to attend the celebration of her bicentennial. The welcome was voiced officially in Battell chapel this afternoon by President Arthur T. Hadley of the university, and responded to the greeting were in behalf of the city, state and nation, and of the universities of Great Britain and continental Europe. Delegates from thirty foreign universities and societies and from 125 American institutions were represented in the audience, which filled every part of the gray stone chapel.

Nearly all the delegates were gowned in the academic robes of their respective degree or of their university. Scarlet-trimmed gowns and hoods of doctors of divinity were mingled with the purple of the learned representatives of the law, the blue of the doctors of philosophy, the green of the medical department, the white of the masters of arts and letters, the orange of science and the brown of the fine arts. Everywhere was a variety of color, which, combined with the universal blue of Yale decorations, gave a picturesque air of festivity to the dignified ceremonial.

Aside from the address of welcome the day's program included addresses descriptive of the advance of the past two centuries in various departments of learning. The first of these addresses was by Thomas Thacher, M. A. of the New York bar, who discussed "Yale in Its Relation to Law." Mr. Thacher spoke in Battell chapel at 10:30, after he had been presented formally to the delegates by Simeon E. Baldwin, LL.D., associate justice of the Connecticut supreme court and professor of constitutional law at Yale. The hymn composed by the Rev. Dr. Leonard Bacon, a former fellow of Yale, and entitled "O, God, Beneath Thy Guiding Hand," was rendered with fine effect by a large chorus.

Sunday Ceremonies.

Yale University began the celebration yesterday. The bicentennial of the great institution of learning was ushered in with ceremonies essentially religious. The services were performed in accord with the devout and reverent traditions of the good old New England days when the little handful of clergymen gathered together and with prayerful supplications asked the divine blessing upon the institution which they had conceived and brought into being. The old hymns were sung and powerful sermons were uttered.

The city had bedecked itself in Yale's colors and presented a splendid appearance. Blue and white were everywhere, with wintergreen and this general scheme of color was broken only by the graceful folds of the stars and stripes.

The principal streets had become arches of blue, adorned at intervals with pictures of President Roosevelt, who on Wednesday is to be Yale's guest and who on that day will become a son of Yale when the university's honorary degree is conferred upon him.

From the simple school of 1701, Yale to-day found herself a great university developed through years from a one building institution down through her "brick row" to a campus, thence to a second campus, and now to a third, and stretching out in her departmental buildings to territory as great as any of the great universities of the world.

Within battle chapel where the bicentennial was inaugurated the services were participated in by an assemblage as imposing as that ever to be seen in the rostrum at President Arthur Twining Hadley. At his right was Rev. Joseph Twichell, D. D., of Hartford, the preacher at the first of the Yale services, and at his left was Thomas G. Bennett of the Yale corporation, while next to Dr. Twichell sat former President Timothy Dwight. On one end was Henry Howland of New York; on the other Rev. Charles H. Hay, both fellows of the university corporation. All wore the gowns of their offices. Below in the choir stalls sat a picked choir of students. The body of the chapel was occupied in the center aisle by distinguished delegates and guests who wore gowns with hoods of many colors.

The seats of the side aisles were filled with Yale graduates, while the three galleries were reserved for women. The service began at 10:30 a. m. A chant by the choir was followed by the Lord's prayer. President Hadley read a lesson from the scriptures and after the "Te Deum" the vast congregation sang Psalm lxxv. Rev. Joseph Hopkins Twichell, the senior fellow of the university, closed to-day with big meetings in both the Congregational and Methodist churches. John Willis Baer, the international secretary, arrived yesterday. He spoke to a packed church at the Congregational church last evening and preached there to-day, while Rev. Marion Darling, the young lady preacher from Detroit, Minn., spoke in the Methodist church. This afternoon Mr. Baer spoke to a church full of men at the M. E. building and Mrs. Tapping, superintendent of Junior work, had hundreds of children at the Congregational church.

The business session was held on Saturday. The next place of meeting is left to the executive committee with Worthington the only place now giving an invitation. After that meeting it was decided that the state meetings biennial, alternating with the international meetings, and that the Epworth League and other young people's organizations be asked to join. The officers elected were as reported by the nominating committee which was unanimous in its choice and the maximum punishment was given to the president-elect. The new president is the Rev. W. H. Medlar of Alexandria, President Curtis declining to be considered for re-election. The choice of secretary was left to the president and district president with authority to select a trained worker if they thought best. Ira C. Oehler of St. Paul was re-elected treasurer and the following district presidents were chosen: Minneapolis, Arthur C. Barth; St. Paul, L. A. Larson; Fergus Falls, John Reid; Hawley, Windom, Rev. H. O. Judd; Clayton, Red Wing, H. J. Keeler; Zumbro Falls; Shakopee, John Finch, Eden Prairie; Hennepin, Rev. J. H. Sells; Buffalo;

Regular engines will not enter Lead until the curves have been straightened, which will be done in the spring.

Irwin Is Convicted.

A verdict of assault in the third degree was returned against Frank Irwin for the brutal attack on his common-law wife, Daisy Wolford. This charge is the same as assault and battery, and the maximum punishment which can be imposed is ninety days in the workhouse. The jury was out a little over six hours and the verdict is plainly a compromise, for, if Irwin is guilty, it is of something more serious than mere assault and battery.

Mr. and Mrs. James McKinley of Aledo, Ill., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cahoon. Mr. McKinley is a member of the Illinois railway and warehouse commission and is prominent in the republican party in that state.

CANCER

Sufferers from this horrible malady nearly always inherit it—not necessarily from the parents, but may be from some remote ancestor, for Cancer often runs through several generations. This deadly poison may lay dormant in the blood for years, or until you reach middle life, then the first little sore or ulcer makes its appearance—or a swollen gland in the breast, or some other part of the body, gives the first warning.

To cure Cancer thoroughly and permanently all the poisonous virus must be eliminated from the blood—every vestige of it driven out. This S. S. S. does, and is the only medicine that can reach deep-seated, obstinate blood troubles like this. When all the poison has been forced out of the system the Cancer heals, and the disease never returns.

Cancer begins often in a small way, as the following letter from Mrs. Shirer shows: A small pimple came on my jaw about an inch below the ear on the left side of my face. It gave me no pain or inconvenience, and I should have forgotten about it had not begun to inflame and itch; it would bleed a little, then scab over, but would not heal. This continued for some time, when my jaw began to swell, becoming very painful. The Cancer began to give it an edge and spread, until it was as large as a half dollar, and it was determined to give it a fair trial, and it was remarkable what a wonderful effect it had from the very beginning; the sore began to heal and after a few bottles disappeared entirely. This was two years ago; there are still no signs of the Cancer, and my
