

FOR A BOLD ORDER

Evidence All Submitted in the Tapper Case at Chaska.

DEFENDANT WAS ON THE STAND

Memory Failed Him Just Before He Is Alleged to Have Struck the Blows.

Special to The Journal.

Chaska, Minn., Oct. 22.—The fate of Andrew Tapper, alleged murderer of Rosa Mika, will be in the hands of the jury some time to-day. The state rested its case early this morning, and at 11 a. m. the defense was through and court took a recess.

The state proved the killing of Miss Mika by Tapper at Carver on July 3, by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, proprietors of the Staller hotel, where the girl was employed; by Sheriff Johnston, coroner Halgren and other witnesses.

The facts brought out from their testimony were that the girl was murdered at 5 o'clock a. m., her throat being cut. Several wounds were also found on her limbs and arms, showing that a terrible struggle had ensued before Tapper succeeded in overpowering her. Chris Bristol, a celery farmer, testified to hearing screams issue from the kitchen of the hotel while passing the house on his way to his farm, which is on the outskirts of the village. He immediately went to the rescue, but was too late. The deed had already been committed.

John Leonard testified he heard the screams of Rosa and hurried to the kitchen and tried to get into the room, but the door would not open, as the body of the murdered girl lay across it. He placed his shoulder to the door, and as he pressed it open was confronted by Tapper, who made a lunge at him and tried to stab him with the bloody knife he held. Leonard ran for help and upon his return Tapper had made his escape to the Minnesota river, where he tried to commit suicide.

Sheriff Johnston said that he examined Tapper and found a knife in his pocket. The clothes which Tapper wore when he did the murder were found in court and examined. Another witness for the state was Noah Hammlund, who entered the saloon connected with the hotel shortly after the murder and found Tapper and Leonard there. Tapper said, "It is no use." His clothes were soaked with water, and the witness learned afterward he had just come from the river.

Tapper told of his movements prior to the murder, and said his recollection was good up to the time that he went to the bar and took several drinks. He had no recollection of the shooting. Mr. Hammlund said he had had trouble with whiskey he swore he remembered no more until he was returning from the river and suddenly noticed that his clothes were wet. He then went back to the hotel and saw Rosa lying on the floor bleeding and dead.

The witness swore he was 35 years of age and was born and reared in Dahlgren, Carver county. His father and mother were dead. He had worked on a farm up to the time of his employment by Leonard as barkeeper.

Attorney Odell for the defendant and County Attorney Morrison are making their arguments this afternoon and the case may reach the jury at 5 or 6 o'clock. A verdict of guilty was rendered in the second degree would not cause much surprise here. The courtroom has been crowded during the two days that witnesses have been examined.

TEACHERS TO MEET

Southeastern Minnesota Educational Ass'n at Rochester, Nov. 8-9.

Special to The Journal.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 22.—The Southeastern Minnesota Education association will hold its sixth annual convention in this city on Nov. 8 and 9. The sessions will be held in the opera-house with the exception of the reception which will take place in the Masonic temple hall. It is expected that 30 teachers and educational workers will be present and that the gathering will be one of the best and most profitable that the city has ever held. The city will be at its best in way of entertaining and the school faculty will aid in every possible way to make the gathering a successful one.

"Crying for the Moon"

Has become a proverbial expression which expresses the futility of mere desire. There are a great many people who think it is useless to hope for health as to cry for the moon. They have tried many medicines and many doctors, but all in vain.

A great many hopeless men and women have been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; people with obstinate coughs, bleeding lungs, night-sweats and other symptoms of disease which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

"Golden Medical Discovery" has a wonderful healing power. It increases the nutrition of the body, and so gives strength to throw off disease. It cleanses the blood from poisonous impurities and enriches it with the red corpuscles of health. It is not a stimulant, but a strength giving medicine. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.

Sometimes the extra profit paid by inferior medicines tempts the dealer to offer a substitute as "just as good" as "Discovery." If you are convinced that "Discovery" will cure you accept nothing else.

"I was in poor health when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Volga, Jefferson Co., Indiana. "I had stomach, kidney, and liver trouble. Was unable to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhage of the lungs, but after taking your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and flesh, and stopped coughing right away. Took about six bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' then, and last spring I had grippe, and it settled on my lungs, leaving me with a severe cough. I had the doctor, but he didn't seem to help me any; so I commenced your medicine again and after the three or four bottles of the 'Discovery' and two of Dr. Pierce's Kidney and Bladder Pills, and that straightened me up. I feel like a different person now. I had gladly recommended your medicine to all sufferers for I know it cures me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation by curing its cause.

NEWSPAPER MAN'S STORY

Can you give us that conversation?

After we had reached the quarterdeck from the gangway, the conversation between Commodore Schley and me was as follows: "Have you got them, Sigbee?" Captain Sigbee said: "No, they are not here. I have been here for a week and they have not been here."

Is that the whole of the conversation as you recollect?

No, sir. We went further back on the quarterdeck and continued the conversation. Commodore Schley said: "Are you sure they are not in there?" Sigbee said: "I have been very close to the harbor entrance two or three times. Captain Cotton has been in and cut a cable, and they are not there."

You heard Sigbee say that?

Yes, sir. I took some part in the conversation. Did you record that conversation and did Captain Sigbee know you recorded it?

Captain Sigbee knew I was a newspaper man and was there looking for information, and he simply said that they were not in and was visited by Commodore Schley. He took it aboard his ship and was to deliver it to one of the small boats or else take it over himself.

And Captain Sigbee took that dispatch?

Yes, sir. It was open. I detailed the fact that the feet was not there.

Do you remember the reconnaissance of May?

Yes, sir. I was aboard the Massachusetts. Were you present at any conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson on the pilot house of the Massachusetts?

Schley's Advice.

On the Brooklyn I had heard that they were going to bombard and capture the flag and be transferred to the Massachusetts. I asked permission to go aboard the Massachusetts with the commodore. He had just given permission to me, and I was going to go, and turning to me, said: "I do not think you had better go. You can see it better from the Brooklyn. She was then calling. He further said that he did not intend to do anything except find out what the batteries consisted of. I kept urging him to let me go and he finally consented.

Now tell me regarding the conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Higginson.

There was some discussion about what the Spanish fleet had brought with them. A report was current that they had brought arms and ammunition for the defense of Havana and there was also a discussion as to whether they had had time to mount them or whether they had any ships in the harbor prior to the arrival of the fleet.

They had taken any large guns and mounted them. Commodore Schley said his idea was to go in within 7,000 or 7,500 yards and fire, simply draw their fire. So far as I remember Captain Higginson acquiesced in that. Later Mr. Potts came. Were you in the presence of Commodore Schley during the whole of this reconnaissance of the Massachusetts?

Only part of the time. At times I was behind the conning tower and he was on the other side of it.

Did you see Lieutenant Potts on board the Massachusetts?

He came into the pilot house during the conversation and took some part in it.

Mr. Rayner—Were you present at any conversation between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant Potts or were you present at any time when Commodore Schley made any remarks when Potts was present?

Witness—No, I followed him right out of the pilot house and down to the conning tower. I did not hear any conversation of that kind.

"Let's Go Out of It."

Mr. Rayner—Then you don't know anything about the conversation about which Potts has testified that the commodore said: "Gentlemen, we are very conspicuous objects here. Let's go out of it!"

I stood on top of the forward thirteen-inch turret. The commodore called to me: "Boy, that's a bad place for you. Step in here." I afterward asked why, and he said that the conning tower was high. I had no serious intention of remaining there.

The witness said he was with the commodore during the whole of the reconnaissance and did not hear either of the conversations between Commodore Schley and him or heard Commodore Schley say anything about "potting the Colon" when the commodore went aboard the Massachusetts. He was absolutely cool and sent continuous orders to the men to cheer them up. When Ellis' head was shot off he wiped some of the blood from his own person, and as the men picked the body up he stood over it, and he said: "Don't touch that body over. Take it below and we'll give it Christian burial."

Witness—When we ashore the commodore went into the conning tower and himself called down the tube to the men below: "They are all gone but one; it all depends on you, boys."

Mr. Rayner—Did you ever see Commodore Schley when he appeared to be laboring under any mental excitement.

Witness—Oh, no. He was jovial and good-natured at all times, and I did not observe the least trace of excitement or anxiety except at one time. That was when it looked as if the Colon might get away. He expressed a fear that might occur, and he seemed much concerned. I remember that he discussed with Captain Cook the advisability of stopping to couple his engines before dark, fearing that he might slip over the board and get away.

Object and Fight Over It.

Mr. Rayner asked the witness concerning a conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Evans of the Iowa, after the battle. Before the examination had gone far it was objected to by Captain Lemly.

"Were you," asked Mr. Rayner, "present at any conversation between Captain Evans and Commodore Schley in the Brooklyn on July 6. When Evans came in the first thing he said was: 'Schley, did you see Jack Philip run away with the Texas?' and Commodore Schley said: 'No, neither did you.'"

Admiral Dewey (addressing counsel)—One moment. Poor Philip is not present, you know.

Mr. Rayner—That has gone in Captain Evans' testimony.

Captain Lemly—in cross-examination—Something in regard to it has gone in. I cannot see what bearing it has.

Mr. Rayner—We do not want to prove anything about what Captain Philip said. This is a conversation in which Commodore Schley was present.

Captain Lemly—You propose to contradict what you drew out in cross-examination?

Mr. Rayner—Why, of course. I object to that ground, which I think is quite sufficient. To further discuss the matter, even on my part, would be to do the same harm to the dead as to the absent man.

When Schley Has a Chance.

gets on the stand he would like to have the opportunity of stating what that conversation was. Captain Evans has stated it. Why cannot Admiral Schley state it? Why cannot one who was present state it? It does not reflect in any degree upon Admiral Evans and certainly not upon Captain Philip. It would be unjust, unfair, to permit that statement to remain in the record without the opportunity to contradict it by the people who are present. If Commodore Schley was not present of course it would not be admissible.

Captain Lemly—How does this affect Commodore Schley's conduct in battle. I want to bring it down to the present.

Mr. Rayner—Are there no other specifications in the precept except Commodore Schley's conduct in battle? Is there no specification about the turn of the Brooklyn? Does this conversation directly relate to that? That it was the Brooklyn which made the turn and not the Texas? The point is an important one to me because it will occur many times during Admiral Schley's testimony, as we expect to ask him a hundred times with reference to what other witnesses have said.

Captain Parker spoke briefly, saying there could be no objection to the testimony of Captain Philip by repeating the conversation.

"We all honor Philip too highly for that," he said.

Mr. Hines contended that the question was not admissible unless intended to impeach the testimony of Captain Evans. Incidentally he objected to "the vigorous and various verbosity of counsel for the applicant."

Admiral Dewey then announced that the court would then retire for the consideration of the point raised.

After being out twenty minutes the members returned and Admiral Dewey announced their decision in the following terms:

The court decides that the questions intended to impugn the credibility of a witness; intended to prove any point regarding the movements of the Brooklyn during the battle of July 3; intended to prove any statements made by Commodore Schley or conversation held with Commodore Schley, which have a material bearing upon the matters designated by the precept, are all inadmissible. Such conversations or statements occurred in the presence of and within the hearing of the witness.

What the Conversation Was.

Mr. Rayner then repeated his question, asking the witness to repeat the conversation which Mr. Graham had followed.

Captain Evans came into the cabin. I sat at a round table in the center. Commodore Schley got up and shook hands with Captain Evans and the latter said: "Schley, did you see Philip run away with the Texas?"

The commodore said: "No, neither did you. He did not run out of the fight." Captain Evans said: "Oh, yes he did. I saw him. He was in the next ship and saw him. The commodore said: 'It was not the Texas at all. The Texas was in the fight all the time. The ship you saw turn around was the Brooklyn.'"

The court at this point took the usual recess for luncheon.

BOERS STOCKING UP

BUYING IN SEVERAL COUNTRIES

Kruger the Only Burgher Leader That is Opposed to Reprisals.

New York Sun Special Service.

London, Oct. 22.—The morning papers print reports that the Boers are replenishing their war supplies in Europe. The correspondent of the Standard at Moscow writes that the Boers have been buying the peasants of southern Russia at fair prices. The Express learns the Boers are bargaining with a French company for the purchase of field guns. They are making special efforts to obtain the French guns which were displayed at the military exhibition in London and have not as yet been removed. They have also asked a small South American state to buy guns and rifles in England for the Boers and an agent is now residing at Birmingham for that purpose. It is added that the Boers have also succeeded already in getting many guns through Portuguese East Africa. The Brussels papers print a story that Mr. Kruger has received £200,000 in English bank notes for the purchase of arms.

BOER REPRISALS

Kruger the Only Burgher Leader Opposing the Idea.

Vienna, Oct. 22.—The Pester Lloyd says it learns from the Hague that Mr. Kruger, Dr. Leyds and Messrs. Wessels, Van der Merwe and Plesner have formed a council of war at Villa Caracasa to consider what answer is to be made by the Boers to the executions in South Africa. There is said to be no doubt that the Boers are already in getting many guns through Portuguese East Africa. The Brussels papers print a story that Mr. Kruger has received £200,000 in English bank notes for the purchase of arms.

INFLUENCE OF YALE

Theme of Addresses in Connection With the Celebration.

PRESIDENT NORTROP A SPEAKER

Graduates Recall Other Happy Days by Playing a Little Football.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22.—Scholarly presentations of Yale university's relations to affairs, in a student dramatic performance and a jollification in song by graduates, young and old, constituted the features of this day's program of Yale's bicentennial. The exuberant and spectacular demonstration of last night, with all its fatigue, seemed not to dampen the enthusiasm of to-day. The first of the day's exercises were held in Battell chapel.

The first address was delivered by Cyrus Northrop, LL. D., Yale '57, president of the university of Minnesota. He was introduced by Judge William Kneeland Thompson. Dr. Northrop's address presented Yale in its relation to the development of the country. (The address will be found on page 3.)

The second address of the day was delivered by Daniel Colt Gilman, LL. D., Yale '52, president of Johns Hopkins university. He was introduced by Thomas Maynerford Lounsbury, LL. D., professor of English at the Sheffield scientific school. He treated on the relation of Yale university to letters and science.

This afternoon the university football team played against the eleven of Bates college. At the conclusion of this game an eleven of former star players on Yale football teams will line up against the varsity eleven of the graduate team which will be made up as follows:

Captain Walter Carr, '80, right half back; Captain L. H. Thorne, '96, left half back; Captain J. C. Morris, '85, full back; Morris E. '98 (captain), quarterback; Captain L. Hartwell, '89, S, left end; Captain Frank Hinckley, '95, right end; Captain B. C. Chamberlain, '97, S, right tackle; Captain F. F. Murphy, '97, left tackle; Captain C. B. Smith, '90, right guard; W. W. Hefelfinger, '91, S, left guard; W. H., '99, center.

This afternoon the Gounod society of New Haven will perform the "Hora Nebulosa" which will be conducted by its composer, Horatio Parker, M. A., professor of the theory of music at Yale.

The drama presented by the students which the governor of the state, the state illumination of the campus and a festival of Yale songs, led by a brass band of 100 pieces and sung by several thousands of students and graduates.

Bicentennial Medal.

The Yale bicentennial medal, which will be struck for the alumni, is of bronze, 2 1/2 inches in diameter, 1/16 of an inch in thickness, of a fine tone and excellent workmanship. The design and models were prepared by Bela Lyon Pratt, P. A., a graduate of the Yale school of fine arts.

The design is classical, simple and dignified—worthy of a university which includes among its departments a school of the fine arts containing a splendid design in illustration of the motto of the university, "Lux et Veritas." Above the clouds Truth guides the chariot of Apollo, bearing in her hand wreaths of fame in the cause of truth. The reverse, between two flaming antique torches, bears the legend:

"UNIVERSITAS YALENSIS, FUNDATA MDCXXVI, CONCELEBRAT, COLLEGIUM YALENSE, A. D. MDCCLXXII, CONDITUM."

(Yale university, in 1901, celebrates the founding of Yale college in 1701.)

One of the features of the early morning was the dedication of the memorial gateway, erected by the graduates of 1886 in memory of Ward Cheney and Gerard Merriam, two members of that class who gave their lives for their country in the Spanish-American war.

President Hadley delivered an appropriate address, in which he reviewed the erection between Welch and Osborne hall as an entrance to the campus.

Six thousand graduates and students of Yale marched in the parade last night, and the popular enthusiasm of the exuberant spirit which has marked the observance of this festival from the beginning.

The enthusiasm of visiting graduates and of the whole student body was fairly let loose and the city of New Haven took a large part in the celebration. The march of the alumni, which was through streets bordered with blue, brilliant with many hued lanterns and bright with electric light.

Accompanying the Yale students and the march of the representatives of the militia and naval forces of the state, while several of Yale's sister institutions of learning celebrated their quota of membership in the parade to assist in the academic parade. Harvard, Princeton, Trinity and Wesleyan were represented and their costumes were emblematic of their respective institutions.

ROOSEVELT'S TRIP

President Spends the Day in a Connecticut Town.

Farmington, Conn., Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt, on the way to New Haven to attend the Yale bicentennial, spent the day here, the guest of his sister, wife of Dr. Charles Roosevelt, of Farmington. He reached the station, two miles from the village, about 3:30 a. m., and there the presidential special car was side tracked, President Roosevelt sleeping until 7 o'clock. At that time Mrs. Cowles arrived and welcomed her brother and the others of the presidential party, escorted to the station by family friends in the village. Before leaving the station the president shook hands and conversed with several residents of the place, but in company with his expressed wish that his visit should be regarded as a private affair, there was no demonstrative welcome such as the townspeople would have been glad to extend. Later in the morning the Episcopal ladies of the ward and burgesses of the borough, who expressed their best wishes.

The Normal Board Suit.

H. W. Childs did not file the suit of the board against the board of control to-day. He has all the documents necessary, but has not finished the complaint. It probably will be filed to-morrow. The commission is not in session this week, as General Childs has his hands full with the normal board suit.

LEGAL LIGHTS DISAGREE

REGARDING A VACANT REGENCY

The Act Creating Gov. Pillsbury a Regent Increased the Board to Thirteen.

Is there a vacancy on the board of regents of the state university? The question is one upon which lawyers disagree. At stated in The Journal yesterday, the framers of the amendment which made John S. Pillsbury a life member did not intend to increase the board permanently. His bill did increase the number from twelve to thirteen, however, and did not provide for a reduction of members on the death of Governor Pillsbury. The bill was chapter 15 of the laws of 1896, amending Chapter 2604 of the Revised Statutes of 1894. It reads: "The government of the university shall be vested in a board of thirteen regents, of which the governor of the state, the state superintendent of public instruction, the president of the university, and the Honorable John Sargent Pillsbury for and during his good pleasure as an honorary member, having the same power as any other member, shall be members thereof shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. Whenever a vacancy occurs for any cause, the same shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner."

The act by mistake names Governor Pillsbury as an ex-officio member, for he did not hold any office. The only change the amendment made was to substitute "thirteen" for "twelve" and to insert the clause: "And the Honorable John Sargent Pillsbury for and during his good pleasure as an honorary member, having the same power as any other member."

There are two views of the question taken. One holds that there must continue to be thirteen members, and that therefore there is a vacancy, which the governor must fill by appointment to a six-year term.

The other opinion is that the office was that of an honorary member for life, and that it ceased to exist with the holder's death. The act creates an additional member in the person of Governor Pillsbury and on his death the number reverts to twelve, three ex-officio and nine appointed for terms of six years. Those holding this view call attention to the clause which says: "Whenever a vacancy occurs for any cause, the same shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner as if there were no such case there can be no 'unexpired term.'"

Governor Van Sant is in Winona today and has no opinion on the question from the attorney general, but will do so before acting. Not having examined the question, the attorney general's office declines to express an opinion.
