One of the prettiest affairs of the day was the buffet luncheon given by Mrs. John D. McMillan at her home on Portland avenue. Mrs. McMillan chose pink American Beauty roses for her decorations and the fragrant blossoms in odd vases and bowls were placed in every available corner. The mantels were banked with a green tangle from which rose the royal flowers. In the hall the stairway was wreathed with southern smilax. A great cluster of white chrysanthemums drooped over the piano. The dining room was darkened and pink shaded tapers in silver candlesticks were on the table and plate shelf. In the center of the table was a silver jug filled with roses. Mrs. McMillan was assisted by Misses Frank W. Commons, W. B. Packer and C. M. Harrington and Miss Jessie Quail was at the punch bowl. A SUMMER REVERIE

Thro' the green leaves, to the blue sky above,
I look, from my hammock, and think of you
I love.
Think of the time, when first we met;
Wonder the while, if you ever regret.

The wind, to the trees, sings a sad love song,
It makes my heart stir, it makes my soul long.
Long for the time, when we never shall part,
Even now I am lonely, without thee, dear heart.

The birds sing a melody, soft, to the blue
And my heart keeps in tune, just singing of you.
So to leaves and the wind, the birds and the blue,
I'm grateful, dear heart, for they all speak of you!

Written at Wellcome Inn., Lake Minnetonka, June 25, 1901.

READ FOR THE BLIND

Mrs. Hinton's Washington Audience Was Most Appreciative.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Charles Howard Hinton, formerly a resident of Minneapolis, read to a particularly enthusiastic audience Saturday afternoon, in the reading-room for the blind at the congressional library. The poetry was best appreciated. Among the selections were "The Faithless Lover," "Golden Rowan," and "The Spring Song." After the reading of the first was concluded, the listeners exclaimed in a chorus, "Oh, we must have that in our type, so that we can learn it."

The beautiful quality of impressiveness which Mrs. Hinton's voice possesses, was demonstrated, when at the conclusion of the program, Miss Susie Duffy, one of the blind

BEFORE THE PUBLIC EYE

The coming lecture by Miss Jane Addams of Hull House upon Tolstoy's social theories is awaited with special interest. From every point of view it will undoubtedly be one of the rarest treats of the lecture season. Miss Addams is universally known, not only as a remarkable leader in sociological work, but also as one of the most delightful and entertaining speakers upon the lecture platform. Her recent lengthy visit to the Russian prophet is said to have augmented her former ardent admiration for him, and she was reported by her friends before that to divide mankind into two classes—those who had read Tolstoy's "What to Do," and those who had not. Plainly, her treatment of this remarkable personality will be no colorless affair.

Miss Addams is to give this lecture in the Unitarian church, Saturday, Nov. 2, at 8 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at the Metropolitan Music store.

A concert will be given to-morrow by the faculty of the Johnson School of Music, Oratory and Dramatic Art in the school auditorium. A string quintet will assist, of which the members are Carl Riedelberger, first violin; Sam Rosen, second violin; Joseph Frank, viola; Julius Blackstad, cello; Ernest Fleck, double bass. The following program will be given:

Sonata Piano and Violin, op. 22...G. Johnson (First Movement).

Gustavus Johnson and Carl Riedelberger. "Die Lorelei"..... Mrs. R. N. Parks. Reading, "An Angel's Wickedness"..... Correll Mrs. Charles Holt.

Audante Spinato and Polonaise, op. 22.Chopin Gustavus Johnson.

Fantaisie..... Wiestawski Carl Riedelberger.

Piano, Mrs. Vienna Neel Connor. "Oh, Thou Cherished Land," from Attilla, Verdi.

Mrs. R. N. Parks. String Quintet Accompaniment. Piano, Mr. Johnson.

Concerto in E flat..... Liszt 1. Allegro maestoso tempo giusto. 2. Quasi adagio. 3. Allegro vivace. 4. Allegro animato. 5. Allegro marziale animato.

Miss Mamie Swanberg. Orchestral accompaniment on reed organ and string quintet.

Yale Young Women Will Not Miss Bicentennial Exercises.

New York Sun Special Service. New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22.—The twenty young women in the day class of Anderson's gymnasium, over which presides Dr. Anderson of the Yale gymnasium, were up in arms Friday night against an order issued by Professor Arnold, one of the faculty, requiring them to start for Cheshire about this morning bright and early, and to walk back again on Wednesday. This program is extremely distasteful to the young ladies for the reason that it will prevent them from witnessing the principal events of the Yale bicentennial exercises.
