

THIEVES TAKE A TEAM

A valuable team of horses... The Peterson Brothers Sidewalk company...

New Switchboard Ready - The switchboard at the south exchange of the Twin City Telephone company is completed.

Seat Supply is Limited - The call for tickets for the J. S. Adams opera house...

Garrity Says "Not Guilty" - Patrick Garrity, brother of James Garrity, alleged proprietor of the gambler's club at 208 Nicollet...

Name Not on the Rolls - A man purporting to be a sailor and giving the name of Gus G. Gilmore, has obtained money...

Driver Didn't Care - Carrie Rahm, 202 E. Twenty-first street, while on her way to her place of employment on her wheel...

Naval Recruits Pled - Thirty-four recruits have been signed by Gunner's Mate S. Daniel at the navy recruiting office...

A Good Friend Gone - J. S. Pillsbury, shortly before his departure on his way to his place of employment on the mill...

P. O. Clerks in Luck - Clerks working in the large room under the light well at the postoffice have had a very successful day...

Cathoon Cottages Burn - Fire of unknown origin burned three summer cottages at Spring Beach, on the west shore of Lake Cathoon last night...

Sodini Ordered Committed - J. C. Sodini, recently convicted of permitting a 12-year-old girl to frequent a saloon...

DAVID LEFKOVYUS - The funeral of David Lefkovyus, who died at the city hospital...

WORK ON DAM RESUMED - THE DELAYED MATERIALS ARRIVE

Coffer Dam on West Side Will Be Completed and Excavation Begun This Fall.

Work on the coffer dam at Meeker Island was resumed this morning. It has been suspended for two weeks...

Work on the lock is practically completed, but the steel pieces have not all arrived yet...

MEN IN THE MILLS - A Census of the Men Who Make Flour.

The Northwestern Miller has compiled the following census of the seven Minneapolis milling companies...

GAS FOR ONE-FIFTH - A Saving of $20 Out of $25 Paid for Other Light - A Great Invention.

The money actually saved in the use of the new household gas making apparatus...

The experience of Wadron & Co.'s grocery and meat market at 2600-2 Lundy avenue S. is a case in point.

Spilled Her Beauty Sleep - A water carrier in the employ of one of the local spring water companies...

KILLED HIS POS

Flagman Wm. Koenig Was Over 80 Years Old.

FOR 28 YEARS A G. N. EMPLOYEE

He Was a Most Conscientious Servant and Absolutely Reliable - Bought His Own Tools.

On the Great Northern tracks at Van Buron streets NE, where for twelve years he has stood guard over a dangerous crossing...

In all the vast army of Great Northern employees, there was no man more faithful, more conscientious or more attentive to his duties than William Koenig.

His was a humble position, but Flagman Koenig was proud of it. So filled was he with the sense of its dignity that he often helped the other yardmen at their work when there was no immediate demand for his services...

His fellow workmen feel his death keenly. Said William Koehler, car repairer foreman: "Poor Koenig. He was as faithful a man as ever railroaded."

William Koenig had been in the employ of the Great Northern for twenty-eight years. He was a section hand on the West Side tracks for three years.

Mrs. Koenig, four daughters and two sons, survive him. His aged wife is heart-broken.

TOLD OF MCKENZIE CLEARINGS CREEPING UP

Witness Says He "Went After Everything in Sight."

EX-JUDGE JOHNSON TESTIFIES

Special to the Journal. San Francisco, Oct. 25.-Ex-Judge Johnson of Sitka, attorney for the Pioneer Mining company at Nome, took the stand in the Noyes hearing this morning.

He said that when McKenzie and his outfit came to take possession of the property of the Pioneer company they had seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust, deposited by employees of the company for safe keeping.

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

He said that McKenzie and his outfit were in possession of the property of the Pioneer company when they seized everything, including many small "pokes" of gold dust...

TRUCKS FOR THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL

Little Falls Stands a Chance of Becoming One.

THE PURCHASE OF POWER THERE

It May Mean More Than the Building of a Manufacturing Plant.

The gridironing of the state by electric lines, which Thomas Lowry prophesied for the near future in Minnesota, has begun.

The immediate object of the company is the manufacture at Little Falls of certain pieces of machinery used by the Westinghouse Electric company.

The establishment of a manufacturing plant, however, may almost be said to be the least of the ambitious plans of the Westinghouse company.

The special with its valuable human freight was the subject of the interview.

These lines are not to be confined to small stubs. One will be built west of Swan River and Emdale, another to the east, and another to Pierz and ultimately to Mille Lacs.

Mr. Morgan gazed at him with a curious smile. "The project is not a bad one," he said, "whereupon the great man grinned sardonically."

"Mr. Morgan," called the scribe, holding up a pencil to make his intention known. "I would like to know if you would care to be interviewed by the Journal?"

Mr. Morgan made no reply to this, but his silence was more significant than his answer.

Mr. Morgan bowed his head affirmatively. "Well, I thought it was," observed the reporter, wishing to place the interviewee at ease.

"There's a good deal of moonshine about these stories of railroad combinations, is it not so? You are not going to gobble everything that the Associated County Attorneys tell you, are you, Mr. Morgan?"

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

WASPS ARE SWARMING

Now Very Busy Looking for Winter Quarters.

HE STOPPED TO CHANGE ENGINES

During the Brief Stop He Had a Chance to Make Some Startling Statements.

A Journal man enjoyed the proud privilege of interviewing J. Pierpont Morgan to-day. The world-famous banker and railroad financier does not accord interviews to newspaper men, and his magnanimity in making an exception of the Journal's representative was highly appreciated.

The Morgan special consisting of seven Pullman coaches arrived from the west at 12:41 1/2 p. m. That was the hour by the town clock, though Mr. Morgan's chattering motor did it 41 flat. This point is important in view of certain admissions made by Mr. Morgan to-day.

The special with its valuable human freight was the subject of the interview.

Mr. Morgan gazed at him with a curious smile. "The project is not a bad one," he said, "whereupon the great man grinned sardonically."

"Mr. Morgan," called the scribe, holding up a pencil to make his intention known. "I would like to know if you would care to be interviewed by the Journal?"

Mr. Morgan made no reply to this, but his silence was more significant than his answer.

Mr. Morgan bowed his head affirmatively. "Well, I thought it was," observed the reporter, wishing to place the interviewee at ease.

"There's a good deal of moonshine about these stories of railroad combinations, is it not so? You are not going to gobble everything that the Associated County Attorneys tell you, are you, Mr. Morgan?"

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

WASPS ARE SWARMING

Now Very Busy Looking for Winter Quarters.

THEIR NUMBERS ACCOUNTED FOR

Prof. O. W. Oestlund of the University Talks About Them-The Box Elder Bug.

Where do wasps go in the winter? That is a question Minneapolis people have been asking for the past few days, and yet its answer is before them.

For the past week the little yellow-bellied wasps have been numerous in every part of the city. Even the downtown districts are over-run by them.

The common yellow jacket never enters houses, but the wasp now so numerous about the city has different habits. It enters houses through cracks, and screens will not serve to keep it out.

Mr. Morgan gazed at him with a curious smile. "The project is not a bad one," he said, "whereupon the great man grinned sardonically."

"Mr. Morgan," called the scribe, holding up a pencil to make his intention known. "I would like to know if you would care to be interviewed by the Journal?"

Mr. Morgan made no reply to this, but his silence was more significant than his answer.

Mr. Morgan bowed his head affirmatively. "Well, I thought it was," observed the reporter, wishing to place the interviewee at ease.

"There's a good deal of moonshine about these stories of railroad combinations, is it not so? You are not going to gobble everything that the Associated County Attorneys tell you, are you, Mr. Morgan?"

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

"I've earned about 30 cents since I started out to find you," Mr. Morgan looked dubious at this, and shook his head.

THE PAST AT LEAST IS SECURE

The following table shows what per cent of the insurance terminated the companies named below paid to their policy holders and their beneficiaries during the ten years ending Dec. 31, 1900.

The companies in question are the State Mutual Life Insurance Company of Worcester, Mass., and the four largest life insurance companies in this country.

Table with columns: Company Name, Per cent paid to policy-holders, Differences in favor of the State Mutual, Differences in favor of the State Mutual are equivalent to.

Comment is unnecessary. It is easy to make prophecies and estimates but the past is secure and the facts speak for themselves.

C. W. VAN TUYL, GENERAL AGENT, 505-9 Lumber Exchange. SPECIAL AGENTS: AUGUSTUS WARREN, GEO. B. GRAVES, GEO. A. AINSWORTH, ALLEN R. BEACH, JOHN E. CALHOUN, GEO. L. NICHOLS, Ferguson Falls, Minn.

BALTIMORE BILKING Diamonds

For the Holidays we can sell Diamonds from 25 to 60 per cent and some even per cent cheaper than others do. Come and see us. We will explain to you the reasons therefor, and you will see the point immediately, and profit therefrom.

ALL RINGS. 227-Opal center, surrounded by 12 diamonds... 202-Three emerald, 14-day diamond ring... 15 diamonds... 15.00

DEBTS APPROXIMATE $200,000. Seiz Bros. Said to Have Turned Church Membership to Good Account.

New York Sun Special Service. Baltimore, Oct. 25.-One of the most sensational cases of merchants absconding from Baltimore has just come to light.

The financial ledgerman which the two young merchants employed to accomplish their purpose is unprecedented here. No transaction was so large nor none so small to further the general end-increase the exchequer of the firm-and appearances would seem to indicate that the brothers had a well-laid plan to get together a large amount of money and make their escape.

People of all shades and degrees were victimized, from bankers and brokers to club stewards and street girls. The transactions extend over a period of many months. The brothers sent the firm of Adler Brothers to the wall, and this is now in a receiver's hands.

When the sheriff seized what remained in their establishment claimants innumerable appeared. Cigar dealers, janitors, servant girls and others brought out bills while friends who had accommodated them with loans begged for possession.

Moses W., the elder brother, is about 35 years old and Isaac, the younger, 32. They came here about two years ago and started on a small scale. Moses married a daughter of Joseph Friedenwald, one of the wealthiest Hebrews in Baltimore, and got a start. Since then they have been expanding their business.

It is assumed that the same diligence and activity shown by the county attorney in bringing Sheriff Mearnsden to account will be employed in the investigation of his predecessor.

It has been suggested that there would be some impropriety in E. B. Clement directing against the state board of control. Papers have been prepared by H. W. Childs, attorney for the normal school board.

General Douglas will ask the supreme court for a writ of quo warranto directed against the state board of control. Papers have been prepared by H. W. Childs, attorney for the normal school board.

Control Board Begins Tomorrow. Attorney General to Petition.

Gen. H. W. Childs and Lafayette French Will Argue Case for Normal Board.

SHUT OUT BY STREET CARS. S. H. Chute Wants Easier Access to East Side Property.

Bills Ordered Paid. Judge McGee has directed the receivers of the St. Paul and Kansas City Grain company to pay certain claims for material furnished to the company's elevators.

Lind Wins His Case. The jury which heard the case of the Olivia State Bank against the Nansen Grain company brought in a verdict in favor of the bank.

Raptured a Blood Vessel - Al Brown, colored, a porter on the Great Northern road, dropped dead at his home, 407 Fifth avenue S. this morning.

ART ROBBERY. "Works of Old Masters" Produced With Two Great Ease. New York Sun Special Service. Paris, Oct. 25.-According to a number of well-known art dealers, a flourishing industry is now established here for selling bogus paintings to rich Americans.

PLAIN TALK. To Catarrh Sufferers. Every person suffering from catarrh in its many forms, knowing that the common notions, washes and douches, do not cure it, is needless to argue this point or to cite cases of failure, because every victim of catarrh should know it for himself if he has tried them.