American Statesmen Speak to the Point.

OUR DUTIES AND OPPORTUNITIES

Gov.-Elect Cummins of Iowa, Secretary Hay and Senator McLaurin Utter Patriotic Words.

New York, Nov. 20 .- The one hundred and thirty-third annual banquet of the chamber of commerce was held at Del-monico's last evening.

The speech-making was opened by President Jesup in a few words. He then proposed a toast to the memory of William McKinley. It was drunk with all standing and in silence.

President Roosevelt's health was then toasted, while the archestra placed.

A. B. Cummins, governor-elect of Iowa, spoke upon prosperity.
"When I speak of prosperity," said Mr. Cummins, "I have in mind a reasonable, moderate, but constant advance that will keep us well at the head of the march, but will not completely exhaust our com-petitors in their efforts to remain in the

"Looking into the future, it may be said with the utmost certainty, that if we hold the commanding position we now occupy and broaden our influence in the world's affairs. we must retain the exceptional manhood of the republic.

"While there has hitherto been an oc-casional note of discontent, the great body of the people have felt that the gov-ernment has accomplished in high de-gree the ends for which it was or-

But it is easy to see that we are rapidly passing into another phase of national existence, one in which we must not only concern ourselves with our relations toward other nations, and our trade with other lands, but also look with increasing care towards these laws which are intended to control the relations which our people bear to each other. "Good government must contribute its part toward the maintenance of the high standard of manhood which has hitherto been at once our pride and protection, and that good government in its highest form is unnattainable until we nationalize some of the mighty problems which are now vexing the public mind.

Work a Requisite.

"One of the fundamental conditions of prosperity is work for the people, not part of the people, but all the people who either want to work or must work.
"The American system of protective duties upon imports has given us our own markets, but it is not an effective weapon for the conquest of international trade.

"Reciprocity, in so far as it modifies or abrogates duties upon non-competitive products imported into the United States, is so plainly for the benefit of both the American producer and the consumer, that there can be no controversy with respect to the wisdom of kiving the principle free scope in these fields.

Let us hold fast to these fundamental rinciples. We must not surrender a ome market for a foreign market of equal extent. We must not yield a sure market for an uncertain one."

Mr. Cummins departed somewhat from his prepared speech. He said there was a feeling in this country that industrial combinations are tending to drift toward

Not a word could be said, he declared, against industrial combinations, but a monopoly was quite a different thing from industrial combinations. He said there are two forces to regulate prices—one competition and the other regulation by law.

I know," said Mr. Cummins, "that the

"If we wish to preserve the manhood of our citizenship the time will come when it will be necessary to nationalize the questions which are now agitating the public mind in this particular domain.

Speaks on Diplomacy.

John Hay, secretary of state, spoke in regard to diplomacy. He said in part:
"There was a time when diplomacy was a science of intrigue and falsehood, of traps and mines and counter-mines. It may be another instance of that credulity with which I have often been charged by European critics when I say that I really believe the world has moved onward in diplomacy as in many other mat-

In my experience of diplomatic life, which now covers more years than I like to look back upon, and in the far greater record of American diplomacy which I have read and studied, I can say without hesitation that we have generally told squarely what we wanted, told early in accordation what we ware willing to give squarely what we wanted, told early in negotiation what we were willing to give and allowed the other side to accept or reject our terms.

"During the time which I have been prominently concerned in our foreign relations I can also say that we have been met by the representatives of other powers in the same spirit of frankness and sincerties."

"The briefest explanation of our rule of conduct is, perhaps, the Monroe doctrine and the golden rule. With this simple chart we can hardly go far wrong.
"We have kept always in view the fact that we are pre-eminently a peave-loving people—that our normal activities are in the direction of trade and commerce; that The vast development of our industries imperatively demand that we shall not only retain and confirm our hold on the present markets, but seek constantly by all honorable means to extend our commercial interests. cial interests in every practicable direc-

'It is for this reason we have negotiated the treaties of reciprocity which now await action of th senate; all of them conceived in the traditional American spirit of protection to our industries and yet mutually advantageous to ourselves and our neighbors. "In the same spirit we have sought

COFFEE COMPLEXION

Many Ladies Have Poor Complexions From Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark colored blotches on my face and body. I had been drinking it for a long while and these blotches gradually appeared, until finally they be-came permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself.

"I formerly had as fine a complexion as one could ask for. "When I became convinced that coffee and Saar, by which means they hope to was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Cereal Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked it very much, and have since that time used it entirely in place of coffee.

"I am thankful to say I am not nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good as it was years ago. It is very plain that the coffee caused the trouble Please omit my name from public print.' Mrs. ____, 2081 Ogden ave., Chicago, Ill. The senator declared that the ruling question to-day with all nations, and the one to which all political questions are subordinated was, "what can we do to further industrial development and obtain substantial business prosperity?"

"Now that we have become the greatest export nation of the world, the might-iest potentiality on earth for progress, civilization and human freedom, we can no longer confine our institutions and our destiny to this continent, but are compelled by uncontrollable events, to seek fraternity with other nations, and to reach out for new channels of trade." to be free on one side and fettered on the other; that goods were not to be taken
