BUTTER IS CASTLE

'Tis Higher Now Than It Has Been for Years. Local commission men say the present price of butter will not only hold, but in all probability will soar steadily skyward.

MINNESOTA PRODUCTS DIVERTED

Rates Favor Eastern Markets and Prices Are Lower There Than Here. The fact that Minnesota was awarded first prize for butter at the Pan-American exposition is poor consolation for the Minneapolis consumers who are paying more for butter to-day than those of any other city in the United States.

Local commission men say the present price of butter will not only hold, but in all probability will soar steadily skyward. It is expected that 26 cents will be paid to-morrow, and it will not be surprising if 30 cents is demanded by Monday next.

While the price of butter will rise elsewhere, it is reasonable to expect that it will continue cheaper in Chicago and New York. On its face it is rather a remarkable proposition that a big city in one of the greatest dairy states of the union, with the base of supplies at its very door, should be forced to pay more for its butter than cities many hundreds of miles away.

Various reasons are ascribed for such a condition of affairs. Chief among them is the assertion of commission men that there is an understanding between the Minnesota shippers and Chicago and New York commission men which enables the former to sell their butter cheaper but at a greater profit outside of the state.

Another opinion one great inducement to our dairymen to ship butter out of the state is railroad discrimination against this city. It is believed that the railroads favor a route to the east, and make the shippers such a rate that they find it profitable to dispose of their butter outside of this state.

The state creameries are largely to blame also. They seem to be unable to produce a grade of butter that will sell in Minneapolis at a great butter market. Since this city has developed into a large market it has been impossible to convince them that they can get as high prices here as they can elsewhere.

It is also believed that the shippers supply the demand. Minneapolis has been bare of butter all season. No shipper seems to want to sell us a second lot. For some unknown reason the shippers will sell us one consignment and then drop us like a hot coal.
